Senate Halts Filibuster Temporarily

Will Resume Rounds Monday, Still Adamant

WASHINGTON (AP) — After more than 125 hours of a virtually non-stop session, the Senate temporarily broke off late Saturday its marathon election - year battle over Civil Rights legislation.

On motion of Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), the Senate recessed at 5:31 p.m. EST until noon Monday when round-the clock sessions are to start once again in an effort to reach a vote.

Neither advocates of broad new civil rights measures nor a band of 18 Southern senators fighting against them expressed any willingness to give ground.

Senators caught in the middle of these no-compromise stands cast about for a bill that would win enough support to break the deadlock.

For the time being at least, it appeared that the two-thirds majority required to invoke the debate-limiting cloture rule and choke off the Dixie filibuster could not be obtained.

COMMENT

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating R-NY taking the floor in midafternoon, said it may be necessary next week for the civil rights forces to mount "an antifilibuster filibuster."

As he outlined this tactic, Keat-

Castro Says U.S. Behind Cuban Blast

Washington Issues Fast, Firm Denial

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro angrily blamed the United States Saturday night for what he said was an act of sabotage that caused the explosion of a munitions shipment in Havana Harbor.

In his strongest attack on the United States, the bearded revolutionary leader declared those interested in blocking arms shipments to Cuba had caused the explosion aboard the French freighter La Coubre Friday. And he said "United States officials" had blocked such shipments in the past.

(The State Department in Washington quickly replied: "These implications are categorically and emphatically denied." It said the United States will enter a "vigorous protest to this unfounded and irresponsible accusation.")

UNLOADED

From 54 to 73 persons were killed and from 206 to 345 were injured when grenades and small arms ammunition blew up as the French ship was being unloaded alongside a dock here.

In a two-hour speech before a

Adm. Burke Speaks At New Iberia

NEW IBERIA, La. (AP)—Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said Saturday he felt a general all-out war with Russia is remote because we could "destroy with missiles possibly 150 cities" in the USSR while she got "one or two of us."

Burke, interviewed while here for commissioning ceremonies of the New Iberia Naval Auxiliary Air Station for advanced training in anti-submarine S2F planes, said the mobility of an aircraft carrier fleet was a big deterrent to all-out war.

"The ballistic missiles must have a fixed target, and they cannot change once they are set off," the admiral said, but a carrier force can change position after each attack.

BASE

In his address, Burke said the new base shows the Navy firmly believes in the need for manned aircraft in sea operation.

He said long range ballistic missiles can be expected to become the basic nuclear deterrent and retalitory weapons.

Although missiles can do many things, he said, "they cannot think. They cannot choose. They cannot decide. They cannot vary or omit. A man in an aircraft can do all these things and more."

The ability to make these decisions and fire at moving targets, he said, "will be necessary in naval warfare for as long as we can forsee."

And, he said, the "greatest challenge to our free use of the seas lies in over 400 submarines of the Soviet Union.

50 Negroes Terrorize Drive-In

Tense Stage Grows Worse In Country

By The Associated Press

Fifty club-wielding Negroes terrorized a white drive-in at Columbia, S. C., Saturday in the latest outbreak of violence accompanying demonstrations against segregated lunch counters.

An already tense situation in Montgomery, Ala., worsened Saturday night with an announcement that police would break up any attempt by Negroes to hold a mass protest meeting on the State Capitol grounds Sunday.

Peaceful demonstrations were staged in Florida, Texas and Kentucky.

Police arrested four Negro students from Allen University in the flare-up at Columbia. All were released when officers said no evidence was found to connect them with disturbance.

INVADE

The Negroes invaded the drive-in about 3:45 a.m., saying they were going to take over the place. They battered several cars with clubs and bricks. A white woman in one car was injured slightly by flying glass.

A Negro spokesman said groups of white and Negro students hurled bricks during the night near the campuses of Allen University and Benedict College, Negro institutions.

Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan of Montgomery issued the ban against the Negroes' Sunday meeting. He did so after a group of white men and women drove along the streets displaying signs urging economic retaliation against Negroes.

Sullivan's statement said "We are not going to have any further demonstration by white or Negroes in the city of Montgomery

U.S. Airmen Parachute Out Of Fiery Plane

CATANZARO, Italy (UPI) — Nineteen American airmen parachuted from their burning C119 Flying Boxcar Saturday minutes before the big plane crashed in flames into the sea off the tip of the Italian boot.

The others apparently were carried into the countryside by a windswept rainstorm and Italian search parties went out to look for them.

TROUBLE

The plane developed engine trouble on a flight from a Middle Eastern Air Base to Naples Capodichino Airport. One engine caught fire. The plane circled the village of Botricello, 20 miles north of here three times while the crew jumped.

After all the men were overboard, the plane crashed into the sea 100 yards offshore. Villagers said it looked like a blazing meteor.

Some of the airmen landed in the village, where town officials were holding a meeting. The session broke up immediately, with the officials joining police and other residents in rounding up the stranded airmen.

Police and fire department units from nearby towns converged on Botricello after the plane crashed.

Fair And Cold Weather Looms

Arkansas weather is forseen as cloudy and continued cold through Sunday night, with a possibility of some light freezing rain in the west portion.

Yesterday's the high here was 37 degrees, the low, 26.

Solon Urges Buildup In U.S. Might

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Albert Gore (D-Tenn) urged Saturday a buildup in U.S. military strength to bolster its position in the East-West disarmament negotiations that open March 15.

Gore, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on disarmament, also called on the Eisenhower administration to develop a positive policy on disarmament.

"It may appear to be paradoxical to say that we should increase our armaments in order to disarm" he said. "Yet such is our position at the present time that we have little with which to bargain."

OTHERS

Two other Democratic Senators, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Joseph S Clark of Pennsylvania, proposed that the Senate explore the disarmament situation thoroughly next Tuesday in a major floor discussion.

Humphrey and Clark suggested in a memo circulated among other Democratic Senators, including Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, that it might be appropriate to see if Senators could agree on a general position that might be helpful to U.S. negotiators at the Geneva sessions between five Western and five Communist nations.

Gore, in a speech to the Senate during a lull in the civil rights debate, said it is "unbelievably, but fearfully true" that a definite Allied policy is lacking for the East-West negotiations.

He said the United States should take a positive approach, firm to the point of breaking off the Geneva talks if the West faces nothing but a bullheaded Communist attitude "and a blatant exercise in propaganda."

Gore said the United States had no program ready when Allied representatives held policy talks here last month.

U.S. AUTHORITIES SAY

Adenauer Need Not Fear Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower is prepared to assure Chancellor Konrad Adenauer that West Germany can exeuse a virtual veto over Western policies for summit negotiations on the future of Berlin and Germany.

Adenauer is bound to be worried about what he considers the danger of weakness in the Western approach to the summit meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev at Paris starting May 16. He is coming to the United States in a week to try to stiffen U. S. resistance to any concessions to Russia, especially on West Berlin.

Administration authorities say Adenauer's concern is understandable but that U.S. planning gives him no real cause for concern.

The United States, they add, is determined that West German leaders, particularly including those in West Berlin, must be satisfied with the whole Western policy on Berlin and with the negotiations at every step of the way.

AFRAID

Adenauer seems to be afraid, however, that as Khrushchev builds up his combination of threat and pressure in an effort to wrest West Berlin from U.S.-British - French protection, new Western concessions will be offered in the hope of avoiding any new, militarily dangerous West Berlin crisis.

Diplomats said Adenauer's confidence in his Western allies has not been strengthened by the handling of their decision to make high altitude flights between West Germany and West Berlin in defi-

De Gaulle Steps Briskly After Inspection Trip

He stepped briskly from his special Caravelle jet liner to be received by local officials.

Meanwhile, discontent boiled up in Paris over what he reportedly told French forces fighting the nationalist rebels.

QUESTIONS

Questions were being asked by politicians and newspapers which had squarely lined up behind the self - determination program De Gaulle announced last September.

The Socialist party, from which De Gaulle has received some of his most loyal support on Algeria, expressed its concern over "what appears to be a new policy in contradiction with the one we have supported." The party called on De Gaulle for an explanation.

Suspect Caught With $10,000

A Negro chauffeur who has worked for a Monroe man for about 15 years was apprehended in Tallulah Friday with $10,000 which he had taken earlier, police said.

The chauffeur, Jessie Smith, 41, was transferred to a Vicksburg, Miss., jail after his arrest by law officials in Tallulah. He was apprehended while riding in a taxi.

Eddie Moran, owner of the Southern Valley shows, said he awakened Friday morning to discover the cash from his trousers and his chauffeur were missing.

Moran was remining overnight in Vicksburg en route to Memphis, Tenn., to buy new equipment for his carnival, he said, when the theft occurred.

As reward, yesterday was set aside by the office of the Mayor to allow the public to park anywhere it might be desired on downtown DeSiard.

It carried the injunction that autos should endeavor to have no fatal accident of traffic for the next six months.

SCOPES TRIAL RECALLED

New Controversy Sounds Familiar

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A controversy with a familiar ring, evolution and the public schools, has flared anew in Washington State. It has raised the shadow of a possible religious issue in a campaign for governor.

Like the Dayton, Tenn., monkey trial of 1925, it was touched off, although inadvertently, by a young teacher.

In Dayton, John Scopes was tried and convicted for violating a state law against teaching evolution. The conviction was later reversed by the State Supreme Court on a technical point.

Prof. Harold Simonson of the University of Puget Sound here assigned a freshman English class the task of writing a theme on Darwin's evolution theory.

An 18-year-old coed, Gretchen Williams, wrote to school officials of five states for material. Four states didn't answer. But Dr. John M. Howell, supervisor of curriculum guides and courses of study for Washington, did.

"No one really believes the Darwinian theory," Howell wrote.

"It is most damaging to the minds of growing boys and girls to have such untruths taught them by men and women paid by public funds and who should tell them the truth.

"If the doctrine of evolution is true, then the Bible is untrue. I prefer to hold by the old book."

Gretchen clipped the letter to her theme when she handed it in. Simonson showed it to a fellow professor, David P. Jacobson. Jacobson is also advisor to the student newspaper, The Trial. He handed the letter to its student editor, Randall W. Smith, who ran it on the front page.

20 Families Flee After Earth Sink

SCRANTON, Pa. (UPI) — A cave-in in a mine beneath a semi-residential section routed 20 families in bitter cold weather early Saturday and damaged several homes.

The families were forced to leave their beds and flee into near 15-degree temperature and more than a foot of snow by the sinking.

Some persons had to be removed from the homes through windows as doors jammed tight. The cave-in was discovered shortly before four a.m.

Ben Nocella, one of the evacuated residents, said he heard cracking and crashing noises in his home.

JUMPED

"I jumped out of bed and ran through the houses to see what was the matter," he said.

"Before I knew what happened, the people from next door were running over here in their bare feet."

No one was injured in the cave-in which apparently came from the workings of the Moffat Coal Co. It damaged three homes seriously, caused lesser damage to 10 others and threatened at least five more.

The home of Mrs. Mary E. Kosh tilted so much on its foundation that the eaves touched with a home three feet away.

Police Capt. George Davis ordered the immediate evacuation of several homes when he arrived on the scene in answer to a telephone call from one of the residents.

Occupants of numerous other homes were alerted and police roped off the area where the cracks appeared.

The railroad sent a switching engine to remove several freight cars from a siding in the danger zone and rail traffic on the other tracks moved at reduced speeds.

The cave-in broke a gas main and the flow to the area was cut off, as was electrical power.

Many of those forced from their homes were given shelter in homes of relatives and friends while the Red Cross took others to a center city hotel.

Authorities began an investigation to determine the exact cause and Earl Lamb, general manager of the Moffatt Company, said engineers from his firm would also investigate the mine workings.

$100,000 Fire Hits Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP)—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Brown-Edwards meat packing plant near here Saturday, causing an estimated $100,000 damage.

Firemen said the blaze broke out in the one-story concrete block building shortly after midnight after workers had finished cleaning the plant.

Co-owner I. L. Wooten said the fire destroyed packing equipment and meat products, leaving only the shell of the building standing.

Dutch Say Science Messing Up Moon

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania Dutch think science is messing up the moon business.

They believe we can learn more about the moon by staying firmly on the ground than by rocketing off into space.

"And don't call us old fogies for thinking that way," snapped one.

Their convictions, stemming from centuries - old cultures, are wrapped up in a booklet, out Saturday, called "Moonlore." It is published by John Baer's Sons, who bring out a famed almanac yearly.

"Critics of moonlore dismiss it as superstition," the introduction says. "Those who pay attention to moonlore say it works."

The Pennsylvania Dutch swear by it. Many make it the way to better farming, better housekeeping, better romancing, better liivng generally.

"Modern scientists," the book assets, "are positive it won't help mount a rocket that will zoom to the moon for exploration. Let them scoff."

To which a spokesman for the picturesque people added: "How can they be so certain that moonlore won't help them, these cocksure modern scientists? Anyway, who wants to go to the moon? We let the moon come to us."

It's much better to stay home and make sauerkraut—when the moon is on the wane. Or to trim your corns in the same moment of truth, to keep them from growing back.

All real believers, as the Pennsylvania Dutch see it, have their hair cut in the moon's increase, to make sure of luxuriant growth. If a bit of thinning is desired, it should be cut during the wane.

HOMEMADE VIOLIN VALUABLE

LITCHFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A violin made by an industrial arts teacher drew praise from David Rubinoff, concert violinist who made an appearance here. "An amazing instrument worth $1,000," said Rubinoff.

The violinist put aside his Stradivarius to finish a concert with the violin made by Drexel Mey, teacher at nearby Hillsboro Junior High School.

Mey said he brought the violin to Rubinoff at the urging of friends who thought it to be of exceptional value. He said he made the instrument in 1933 as his senior shop project at Milliken University in Decatur, Ill.

FISCAL THINKING

Davis Moving Toward Plans

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Jimmie H. Davis and his leaders are moving toward definite fiscal planning for the 1960 Legislature in May, Davis informants said Saturday.

The Democratic nominee for governor, in a speech to the Public Affairs Research Council here Friday, gave one hint.

He said the people of Louisiana expect the new Legislature to help him control spending and not dump all the burden on his shoulders.

Davis, who repeatedly has stressed he favors an independent Legislature, indicated by his remarks he prefers shifting some of the major financial thinking in the coming administration to the House appropriations and Senate finance committees — originally designed for that job.

Under the Louisiana pattern of government domination by the governor, dating from the days of the late Huey P. Long, the Legislature in recent years has followed the easy habit of passing most all money bills and forcing the governor to decide the final issues with vetoes or signatures.

Davis showed awareness, in his speech to PAR of the financial troubles ahead. These money problems arose in part by Gov. Earl K. Long's using up surplus funds to operate the government in high gear without all the new taxes he sought.

The Legislature will have a headache of something like 100 million dollars, because current spending is running approximately 50 million ahead of revenues and budget requests now are more than 50 million higher than present spending.

Two Davis spokesmen, asking not to be mentioned by name, said the state budget planners are ahead with several alternative approaches, which will be submitted at the proper time to Davis and his fiscal lieutenants.

The new governor, named in the April 19 general election, must submit a budget to the Legislature balanced according to the revenues in sight.

Davis has received advice from supporters, informants said, to adopt a firm fiscal policy for guidance of the Legislature when it tackles the tough money problems coming up.

Davis, preparing for the general election, has not made public any preferences for his legislative leadership.

When he does, the Senate finance and House appropriations chairman are likely — under his preferred type of operations — to occupy powerful roles in state government.

He has pledged political harmony in working with the Legislature.

In Crowley, Sen. W. J. Cleveland, Senate president pro tempore under Gov. Earl K. Long and a Davis supporter and longtime friend, said his experience with Davis during the Davis regime in 1944-48 "shows he has great ability to get along with a Legislature — without high pressure tactics."

Cleveland, a businessman, was a member of Gov. Long's budget planning committee. He said he believes under Davis "the Legislature will have more to say about fiscal matters."

The biggest problem ahead is finances, he said, "finding the money to run the state the next fiscal year and satisfying the various state agencies."

RIGHT TO VOTE

Will Key Work On Doors In Rural South?

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The right to vote may be the key to civil rights in cities. Will the key work on doors to civil rights in rural areas of the South?

Election records indicate a degree of Negro vote influence in big city government in some Southern states. Rural areas, where there is a large proportion of Negroes, present a different picture.

Will the vote key work more effectively in rural areas of other Southern states than it has in Liberty County, Georgia, the only county in the South which officially lists more registered Negro than white voters?

An Associated Press survey in nine Southern states showed more Negroes than white persons in 31 of 82 counties in Mississippi, 36 of 159 counties in Georgia, 21 of 46 South Carolina counties and in 6 of 75 Arkansas counties.

Louisiana has 11 counties with larger Negro population: Alabama 13; North Carolina 9, Tennessee 2 and Florida 2.

Liberty County, 35 miles south of Savannah, made it easy for Negroes to vote. This is in contrast to Terrell County, in south Georgia, where the federal government hailed registrars into court for allegedly discriminating against Negro voters.

The Terrell suit was the first brought by the government under the 1957 Civil Rights Act. Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis ruled parts of the act unconstitutional and threw out the case. It now is before the U.S. Supreme Court.

Negroes have outnumbered white persons on Liberty voting rolls for several years. Hundreds were stricken from the lists last year, registrars say, because they did not exercise their right to ballot. Negroes, however, still claim a margin of 200 votes.

Liberty registrars say Negroes, like many white persons, show apathy in the matter of regular balloting. Under Georgia law, a citizen must vote at least once every two years to remain on the rolls.

The preponderance of Negro voters in Liberty posed several questions. Had any ever offered as candidates for county or city office? Was block voting practiced and did white candidates actively solicit Negro votes?

In the city and county elections they have had a choice only between white candidates. A Negro spokesman said he did not care to jeopardize the small business he operates by getting into politics and arousing the ire of white customers. Other Negroes with qualifications for elective jobs made similar statements or declined to talk about the subject.

There was block voting when Negroes first began voting 12 years ago. A Negro said that was because "we didn't know then who our friends were."

In 1958 the registration lists showed 2,472 Negro and 2,123 white voters. The 1950 census placed the population at 5,100 Negro and 3,200 white.

Mrs. Lucille Wood, registrar board chairman, said Negroes voted in large numbers in some elections. In an election for sheriff last year, 32-year-old Bob Sikes received a majority of both Negro and white votes in all seven precincts. He succeeded his father Paul, who died after holding the post 22 years.

Sikes and others said race relations are excellent. He said Negroes prefer their own schools and called attention to three modern brick schools for Negroes he said were the equal of the one white school in the county.

The county's Negro citizens are employed mainly in lumber, pulpwood and shrimping industries. Some work at nearby Ft. Stewart. Graduates of the Negro high school who might become political leaders are not likely to remain in the county and work in a pulpwood plant or sawmill. Many will move to Atlanta or northern centers where job opportunities are better.

Atlanta, now claiming a population of one million, has many Negro business and professional men.

When Mayor William B. Hartsfield was returned to office for a sixth term in 1957, Negroes said they cast 19,000 votes for him out of the 37,365 he received. The city has won praise for efforts to improve Negro schools and housing.

The same balloting saw re-election of Dr. Rufus E. Clement as the only Negro member of the Atlanta school board. He is president of Atlanta University, a Negro institution.

Another Atlanta Negro, T. M. Alexander, got enough votes in a race for alderman to force a runover and lost to a white opponent in the general election.

The Rev. William Holmes Borders, pastor of Atlanta's Wheat Street Baptist Church, commenting on Atlanta elections, said he might offer for mayor himself if the Negro vote continues increasing.

Man Finds Son, Girl Dead In Car

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Gallagher went to his garage early Saturday to get his car and go to work, only to find the bodies of his son, David, 23, and Barbara M. Moore, 20, North Canton, Ohio, apparently accidentally asphyxiated by carbon monoxide fumes.

Gallagher said the two were "just acquaintances."

The young couple had been to a dance on the Ohio State University campus Friday night. He was a junior in the college of arts and science and she a sophomore in home economics.

Gallagher said the motor of the car containing the couple in the garage was still running. He pulled both of them out and then called for a fire emergency squad in an unsuccessful effort to save them.

The father said he had not noticed that the young men had not returned home from the dance as "we have a big house and he has his own room."

Police said the two apparently drove into the garage and were asphyxiated. Miss Moore was found leaning out the right door as though she tried to get out but but could not since the car was parked too close to the garage wall.

Ike's Long Tour Unqualified U.S. Success Junket

RAMEY AIR FORCE BASE, Puerto Rico (AP) — President Eisenhower's 15,560-mile South American tour was an unqualified success, U.S. officials said Saturday.

They said the tour of Brazil, Argentina, Chile and Uruguay created good will and understanding vital in settling specific problems in each country.

At the same time, they emphasized the tour was not tied in with specific loan projects, but that an increasing attitude of U.S. cooperation in achieving Latin-American aspirations could be expected.

Among the achievements of the trip they listed:

1. Chile's overriding interest in Latin-American arms limitations, proposed by Chilean President Jorge Alessandri, was not tied to any request to the United States to cut its sale of small arms. The United States pointed out, however, that the 1947 inter-American treaty of reciprocal assistance permits moves to limit arms.

2. Opportunity was provided for Eisenhower's National Advisory Council on Inter-American Affairs to come to direct grips with problems involved in improving U.S.-Latin-American relations.

3. Interest was shown by nations visited in increasing trade opportunities. They were particularly concerned about U.S. protectionism as applied to raw materials they sell.

4. Approval was expressed for the U.S. policy of patience toward the revolutionary government of Cuba.

5. There was evidence the tour will help slow down an all-out Communist drive in Latin America.

U.S. officials said Uruguay presented a list of projects in which it is most interested including, electric power and transportation. They said Argentina appeared anxious to take advantage of a wider exchange of persons ,particularly in technical fields.

Out of the improved understanding, achieved in large part because of trust in and respect for the President, concrete measures to meet Latin-American needs could evolve.

Eisenhower was wary of making any major new commitments. He hinted Friday, however, he might be receptive to at least one specific new move. He said a need is indicated for exploiting "the mastery of space and natural resources, of science and machines."

His objectives for the four-nation are outlined in a broadcast speech to the United States on the eve of his departure from Washington Feb. 22. These were:

1. "To learn more about our friends to the south."

2. "To assure them again that the United States seeks to cooperate with them in achieving a fuller life for everyone in this hemisphere."

3. "To make clear our desire to work closely with them in building a universal peace with justice."

A preliminary summing up of his trip came at Dorado, Puerto Rico, where Eisenhower said Latin-American needs must be answered soon and effectively. He then went on to stress that development must be achieved primarily through efforts of the individual nations.

He said any idea of the United States alone developing a master plan to raise hemispheric living standards "has been rejected by us and by the leaders of the states I have just visited and is foredoomed to failure."

"Panacea proposals, facile solutions," he said, "will lead only to disillustionment."

ROBERT C. TURNER, information officer for the British Consulate General in New Orleans, will speak on the British Commonwealth Thursday at a Social Science Club at Northeast. The meeting will be held in the Fine Arts Auditorium at 8 p.m. and is open to the public.

Air Force Chief Backs Titan Missile Power

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. (AP)— The Air Force chief of staff spoke out Saturday night in behalf of the Titan intercontinental ballistic missile which is in process of development.

Gen. Thomas D. White said the Air Force has encountered certain difficulties with the Titan as it did less than a year ago with the first American ICBM, the Atlas.

"I want to point out, however," White said, "that despite some well publicized failures of the Titan, we have made substantial progress and have attained six successful firings out of nine launches. The latest test firing placed the nose cone on a target 5,000 miles from the launch pad."

White, in a speech here, said "the current reliability of the Atlas is indicated by the success of of the last 17 consecutive test launchings of operational type missiles. Furthermore, we have attained amazing accuracy with these weapons."

In his summary of missile development, Hhite noted that the solid-fuel, quick-action Minuteman ICBM is due to come into the arsenal "somewhat later than the Titan."

The Minuteman will be used either for launching from underground positions or mobile launchers. Part of the Minuteman force will be put on railroad cars to "move at random from place to place throughout the country's vast rail network," he said.

Five years ago the Air Force had only three missile installations, of all types, White said, and "today we have 41 missile facilities in operation or under construction." On Jan. 1, about 35,000 Air Force military personnel were engaged in missile work, over six times the number five years before, he added.

Actress Discusses Her Public

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Angie Dickinson is an up - and - coming actress and while she certainly can't be called a "nobody" is classed as a "who?" in film star hierarchy.

Angie got her "big break" last fall starring in "Rachel Cade," but the film won't be released until August, a delay she admits is "frustrating" to somebody looking for a hit picture to be turned loose.

"By next December, after that picture and some of my others are released, I'll be 10 times more popular with the public," she said. "To moviegoers right now, I'm not a star.

"In fact, when you say 'Angie Dickinson' to people now, they just ask 'Who's she?' I'm only a 'who?.'"

SEE BRIGHT FUTURE

Warner Brothers, a studio that developed Bette Davis, Ann Sheridan, Jane Wyman and Olivia de Havilland, is banking on a bright future for Miss Dickinson, purposely holding back her films and biding their time until the pictures have a chance for maximum exposure.

"For me, it always happens that my pictures are held up, darn it," Angie said with mock anger. "One picture was held six months, another nine and now 'Cade' is being kept for 10 months.

"One of the reasons for the delay is that 'The Bramble Bush,' in which I appear, is out now, and 'Cade' happens to be somewhat similar to 'The Nun's Story' currently showing."

"Sure, there's a certain amount of frustration in waiting for a picture to be released to the general public," Angie said. "But as far as important people in the industry are concerned, friends, producers and actors, they see it at private studio showings.

"While my career is in the formative stage, people who are interested in me professionally are seeing my pictures. Many actor-producers, like John Wayne and Frank Sinatra, show pictures for friends at their home or a studio before release dates."

"As far as the general public is concerned, I'd be further along in my career if pictures were released earlier," she said. "When you think about it though, it's much better to have one picture out every three months than two showing at the same time.

"A lot of people advise me not to make too many pictures. But, I want to make as many as I can right now. Everybody can't see them all. Then, when I'm better known, I'll cut down and the public will look forward to seeing me."

Head Suspends Parliament In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)— President Sukarno suspended the Indonesian parliament Saturday on grounds it was endangering the unity and well being of the country.

The act was interpreted here as a bid to forestall parliamentary defeat of the government's 1960 budget. Parliamentary sources said all parties had agreed to oppose the budget on grounds the figure called for was higher than the director of the cabinet, Dr. Tamzil, and broadcast over the state radio throughout the island republic.

Before the radio announcement army authorities clamped down a tight holddown on all of communication. The telegraph office said it had been instructed to block all overseas cables until the hour of Tamzil's broadcast.

Sukarno's decision was taken only four days after Soviet Prime Minister Nikita Khrushchev had left Indonesia following his state visit, and it is believed here the decree was deliberately delayed until the Soviet leader was out of the country.

One leading Indonesian politician, hearing the decree commented: "This means democracy —if it existed at all — is dead in Indonesia."

There were similar comments from other politicians, none of whom chose to be identified.

Port Hassle To Be Aired In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A member of the executive committee of the state Agricultural and Industrial Board said Saturday th Mississippi Port Authority and three men who filed an injunction against the port authority will meet with the board Monday.

Bob Cannada said Monday's meeting would be closed to the press and an effort would be made to solve a stalemate over operations of the port.

An injunction to the state Supreme Court was filed earlier by three Gulfport businessmen, Sam Allman Jr., a bottler; William G. Simpson, seafood packer, and A. L. Rainey, salesman.

They are appealing a chancery court decision which cleared the way for a special Gulfport election Jan. 12 when a state port contract was ratified bv city voters.

The state port authority has issued a statement that port development was being blocked by the appeal intiated by the three men.

The port authority said the A&I Board appointed by Gov. Ross Barnett had refused to take over supervision of the court until the litigation was settled.

Later, Atty. Gen. Joe Patterson held the A&I board may recognize the new state port authority as legally constituted to administer the port.

Patterson said, however, the A&I board may, "in its discretion, defer further action on this matter until such time as it determines that further action is proper."

Also Saturday, two Gulfport city officials issued a statement calling for the resignations of all five members of the port authority as one means of settling the dispute.

The statement was signed by Mayor R. B. Meadows Jr., and commissioner H. E. Blakeslee. Commissioner J. H. McManus did not sign the statement.

The port authority includes three members appointed by former Gov. J. P. Coleman and one member from the city of Gulfport and one from Harrison County.

IN PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY

Sen. Kennedy Calls For Big Showing

FRANKLIN, N.H. (AP) — Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts stormed across New Hampshire like a political nor'easter Saturday, calling for a smashing Democratic showing in the presidential primary election Tuesday.

"This is a celebrated and important primary," he told audiences. "It can have very important effects on the other primaries to follow and on the Democratic nominating convention in Los Angeles."

Kennedy opened a three - day campaign which will end Monday night. Kennedy flew all night, leaving Hutchinson, Kan., at 2 a.m. and arriving at Laconia, N.H., at 9 Saturday morning.

Meanwhile, New Hampshire Republicans continued an intensive telephone campaign urging voters to come out in large numbers Tuesday and cast their ballots for Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Kennedy and Nixon are virtually unopposed in their respective elections.

Nixon will not appear in New Hampshire. A number of persons who said they were Republicans were among the audiences that heard Kennedy Saturday. Some were critical of Nixon for not having come into the state.

Kennedy traveled by car and strolled through the slushy streets shaking hands, signing autographs and making brief speeches.

He told the crowds "I regret that other candidates do not avail themselves of the privilege of campaigning in this primary.

"I believe the Democratic party will not take any candidate who has not run in one or more primaries."

Kennedy is virtually assured of winning all New Hampshire's 11 delegate votes. But even more important for his future campaigns is the "beauty contest" section of the New Hampshire ballot. This is the presidential preference.

His backers said they would consider a total vote of 25,000 in the preferential section a victory. Four years ago Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn) rolled up a vote of 21,000 in the "beauty contest."

Obviously aware of the potential psychological impact, Kennedy pointed out that he is entered in primaries in Wisconsin, Indiana, Nebraska, West Virginia, Maryland and Oregon.

Again and again he urged his listeners to go to the polls Tuesday and to urge their friends to vote.

There are two classes of delegate - candidates on the New Hampshire ballot.

Republicans traditionally run as "favorable" to a candidate. There are 28 running as "favorable" to Nixon, six for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and three for other Republicans.

On the Democratic ballot, Kennedy gave his approval to a slate of 15 delegate candidates running as "pledged" to him. These were selected by the Democratic state committee. Another full slate, composed of "rebels" are on the ballot as "favorable" to Kennedy.

Both parties stepped up the drive to get out the vote. Kennedy's lieutenants said they are writing to, or personally contacting, every Democratic and independent voter in the state. In addition to the Republican telephone campaign, Nixon will make a recorded radio broadcast Monday night.

Unusually large crowds turned out for Kennedy in Laconia, Tilton, and Franklin. They overflowed a breakfast meeting in Laconia and virtually filled the city hall auditorium in Franklin.

Ernie Ford To Meet King Arthur

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Tennessee Ernie Ford Meets King Arthur" in a forthcoming TV spectacular. History may never be quite the same again.

Can you imagine Ernie, sporting his pin-stripe mustache, saying howdy to "Cousin Art" and his pea-picking court?

"Old Ern" confronts "Artie" in a story based on Mark Twain's "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" on NBC-TV next month.

The Twain tale was done before in movies by Will Rogers years ago and later in a musical version with Bing Crosby. So Erne's following in pretty big footsteps.

"This will be something new for me becausee I won't be doing any singing," Ernie said over a country-club luncheon.

"I've done a few little character roles in the past but never starred," Ford said. "It sort of scares me—the durn thing.

"I think it's like waving a red flag in front of a bull," he added, brushing his mustache lightly.

"Maybe I'm just building things up in my mind," he said, wrinkling his brow. "But, we've got a pretty good regular show on the air now and it's a big enough job keeping your own house clean without doing something else."

Another concern for Ernie is that his job in Arthur's court is bound to be compared with the old Rogers movie because of Ford's reputation as a country humorist.

"Mind you, I'm not griping or complaining, I just don't want to trip and fall," he cautioned. "I want to do it and do it well not just because it's a spectacular with a big budget. You can't put ketchup on that."

Ernie's current schedule calls for one show a week, but he hopes to cut down when his current contract ends.

Adenauer Need Not Fear Policy

ance of Communist warnings not to do so.

The three-power agreement to resume such flights, made several weeks ago, became known Monday. The idea was to send official notice to the Russians at once but some complication within the U.S. government delayed this action all week. Many officials feared the over-all effect of this would be to show up the Western powers as irresolute.

The delay apparently has stemmed from differences over notification procedure between the State and Defense Departments or within the Defense Department.

The issue may be resolved shortly with the return to Washington Saturday of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and the return Monday of Eisenhower.

Adenauer, due in Washington March 14, favors a tough and unyielding attitude toward negotiations with Russia over Berlin. Diplomats said he believes the Russians are quite serious about their express determination to break the Western hold on the city.

Adenauer therefore is expected to urge that at the summit conference the Western powers should make no retreat from the vital elements of their main policy: That the only real protection for West Berlin is the presence of 11,000 U.S., British and French troops; that the Western powers have a war-won right to be in Berlin; and that the only possible solution is to unify Germany and restore Berlin as its capital.

In negotiations last summer the Western foreign ministers offered Russia such concessions as limiting Western troop strength and softpeddling propaganda under certain conditions. Russia would not agree, however, to recognize the status quo in Berlin until Germany is united so there was no deal at Geneva.

It became apparent, however, that British officials are far more willing than are U.S. Frenchmor West German leaders to work out a negotiated settlement which would put West Berlin on some kind of new basis and avoid a showdown.

The heart of Adenauer's present worry is that in the heat of the summit talks the British attitude may prevail. Adenauer apparently wants to strengthen Eisenhower's determination to stand up against more conciliatory British views.

Flames Damage Apartment Here

A duplex apartment house at 1300 Grammont burst into flame at 6:05 p.m. yesterday after a gas line erupted near the building.

No one was injured in the blaze, but the building was extensively damaged. Firemen said the blaze was in advanced stages when they arrived.

Trucks No. 101 and 110 were dispatched to the scene. One returned to the station at 8:55 last night, but the other was still on the scene at 9 p.m. to guard against possible flareups from the smouldering remains.

Public Utility repairmen sped to the scene to plug the leaking gas line shortly after the fire erupted. There was danger of it spreading and firemen were kept busy soaking down surrounding buildings.

lived in Monroe since 1945. They have one son and three grandchildren.

His statement follows:

"The future of Monroe has never appeared brighter than at present and as Monroe grows so will our schools. Growth will be accompanied by problems as well as benefits. We will need more schools, more teachers, and more equipment. As we grow in size, we must also grow in quality of educational offerings. We must offer opportunities for all our youth to get the correct training for a satisfactory place in our American society. Every student, average, below average, and above average, must have a chance to develop into a useful citizen. This will call for an increased curriculum. In developing our schools we must call upon our school people to lead us, and we must cooperate to the end that every boy and girl will get the education to which he is entitled.

FOREFATHERS

"Our forefathers realized the importance of education in our democratic way of life. If possible, it is even more important today than in the past.

"Surveys have shown that as the educational level of a community increases so does its standard of living. Everyone benefits as our economic standards increase.

"Whereas our "growing pains" may challenge our ability, if elected to the Monroe City School Board, I pledge to work untiringly with all of you to develop a school system that will keep pace with the best in the land.

"In order that we may work together, you will need to know what our schools are doing. As a board member, I would ask that a method of public relations be established; and to do this end, someone should be appointed to direct our public relations office so that at all times we will have an informed public. It has been my experience that when the public understands a problem, it is generally solved for the best interests of all.

"It is never trite to acknowledge that our children are still our greatest asset, and I hope to work with you to develop this greatest asset of Monroe."

Senate Halts Filibuster Temporarily

ing said civil rights proponents could take turns speaking from midnight until 8 a.m. daily so that others would not have their sleep interrupted by quorum calls.

The Southerners, who have been doing most of the speechmaking in an effort to stave off a vote on the civil rights bill, have been routing their foes out of bed in the wee hours by insisting that a quorum, or a majority of the 100 senators, be in the Senate chamber.

Keating, however, said he never felt better. He said he and other senators are finding out they don't need as much sleep as they thought they did, and declared that "we will never be intimidated by any talk-fest."

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga) leader of the Southern filibusterers, said just as firmly that he could see "no area of compromise."

When the Senate recessed at 5:31 p.m., it had been in continuous session for 125 hours and 31 minutes since last Monday noon with the exception of one 15-minute break.

In 1954, in a battle over an atomic energy bill, the Senate stayed in session for 85 hours and 23 minutes including time out for one 24-minute recess. That was a record until this week.

Khrush Eyeing Summit, Seems Calm And Fit

proposals are known to the whole world. If the Western powers are sincere in their desire for peace and will not create new difficulties then they will make their contribution to the cause of achieving results."

In reporting on his tour, Khrushchev persisted in his attacks on what he calls "imperialist colonialism." He denounced colonialism at every turn and blamed it for most of the ills of the nations he visited. That was his theme throughout the trip and the theme of the Russian press.

At only one point did he raise his voice about something more specific. He backed Afghanistan's argument that the Pushtu people, now mostly in Pakistan, should have an opportunity "to express their own wishes at the polls to say where they want to go."

The idea of creating a separate state of Pushtoonistan for these people has been a hot issue in the mountainous border area for years. Khrushchev came out in support of it when he visited Afghanistan in 1956. Pakistan, a Western ally, rejects such talk.

The Soviet premier told his Muscovite audience that colonial efforts of Britain in separating the Pushtu country from Afghanistan long ago are to blame for the existing dispute.

"We consider the demands of the Afghans correct—the demand of Afghanistan to see the will of Pushtoonistan expressed by plebiscite," he said. "It is for the Pushtoonistan people themselves to decide whether they would like to remain in Pakistan, to form an independent state, or to join Afghanistan."

Country by country, Khrushchev reported on his tour:

Indonesia: It is scenically beautiful. "They must do a lot to overcome their backwardness. This is a legacy of colonialism."

India: His visit was "very fruitful." He recommended the success of the farm at Suratgarah, financed and tooled by Soviet Russia. A retired Indian general is running it.

"It was a pleasure to see him engaged in peaceful labor on the soil," Khrushchev said. "This is a hint to our generals and officers in connection with the reduction of armed forces."

Burma: "It was pleasant to meet U Nu in Rangoon. This man is a great fighter and independence, a great peace fighter. His party recently was overwhelmingly victorious in the elections and soon will be called upon to form a new government."

That brought applause and Khrushchev quickly added: "This applause might be construed as interference in the affairs of another country." There was laughter.

Afghanistan: Khrushchev and his party were welcomed as old friends. The Afghans were assured they could always rely on Soviet support.

that the curve did not enter into the accident. The smashup occurred when the Negro's car darted out into the opposite lane to pass a truck and crashed into the oncoming auto.

Sheriff officials said last night no charges had been made in the case, but investigation might produce charges at a later date.

Saturday night's traffic fatalities brought the highway death toll in the district to seven during the past week.

Earlier in the week a Winnfield man was fatally injured in an accident on an icy road near Olla, and on the same night two persons were killed and one person injured in a head-on collision on a road near Bastrop.

Winter-Mad Weather Is Still Raging

By UPI

Temperatures plummeted to new records in the Midwest and Ohio Valley Saturday and two-thirds of the nation remained under the heel of the winter-mad March hare.

An Arctic cold wave swept from the Rockies to the Atlantic coast and south into Dixie, setting or matching all - time low temperature marks in Iowa, Indiana, Missouri and Illinois and spreading near-zero cold across the nation's heartland.

New England dug out of one of the worst snowfalls in history in the wake of a five-day storm, spawned the first day of March in the Rockies and Southwest. Spreading east, it brought deaths and damage in the millions of dollars.

United Press International counted 166 dead in the storm since Tuesday, including 22 in Massachusetts, 16 in Pennsylvania, 14 in Connecticut, 13 in New York, and 12 in Indiana.

that would tend to create further racial tensions, today, tomorrow, next week, or hereafter."

The prayer meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

It was called by the Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy after an estimated 900 Negro students at Alabama State College renewed their support of a mass walkout when spring registration begins Monday. The strike was proposed in protest against expulsion of nine students who led earlier student demonstrations.

Two peaceful sit-ins were staged in Tallahassee, Fla. no arrests were made.

A white youth who declined to identify himself accompanied a group of Negroes who sat down in a variety store.

Asked by newsmen why he was with the demonstrators, he replied: "I have a great deal of sympathy with the Southern Negro and I feel my being here shows that the Southern Negro doesn't stand alone." He said he was not from Florida.

Thirty-six orderly negro high school pupils, accompanied by the state president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People staged the fourth sitdown demonstration this week at a downtown Tampa, Fla., variety store lunch counter.

The youngsters were refused service. More than 15 policemen stood behind the group and other patrolmen were stationed at the store entrance. A police photographer took several pictures but declined to say if they were to be used for identification in case of arrests.

UNDATED STATE TAXES

Some Plan To Hold The Line Against Big Tax Increases

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some states plan to hold the line against tax increases. In others taxes are going up, the common direction since World War II.

Those conflicting trends were brought out in a survey by The Associated Press.

Legislatures now are meeting in 17 states, an off year in the state lawmaking field, where most of them convene in the odd-numbered years.

This also is an election year, when legislators tend to be hyperconscious of the voter and his pocketbook.

There are reports from state capitals:

The Kentucky General Assembly recently enacted a brand-new three per cent sales tax. It will go into effect July 1, and is expected to produce 62 million dollars a year. The tax bill also provided for reductions in personal income taxes that will cut revenue from that source about 40 per cent, effective Jan. 1, 1961.

The California Legislature has received no tax increase proposals, but has a number of suggestions to cut taxes.

Gov. Edmund Brown (D) pushed through the 1959 session an annual tax boost of 288 million. It has yielded a paper surplus this year of 73 million.

So Republicans have offered a bill to eliminate a new three cent tax on cigarettes, to reduce the personal income tax and to exempt drugs from the sales tax.

There are some tax-hiking bills in New Jersey's Legislature. But Gov. Robert B. Meyner (D) has introduced a balanced 431 million dollar budget that requires no new or increased taxes, and there is little legislative steam behind any of the tax measures.

The Massachusetts House defeated, 185-47, a proposed new three per cent sales tax.

Mississippi's income tax on both persons and corporations will be reduced under a new law that was signed last month. The tax rate now is 2, 3, 4, 5 and 6 per cent, rising by $5,000 income steps. The new law, effective this year, reduces the tax maximum by ½ per cent per year until the maximum rate is 3 per cent. The move was designed to lure industry to the state.

The Colorado Legislature recently adopted a bill to allow counties to put a two per cent tax on retail sales—if the voters approve. The new tax would be in addition to the current statewide two per cent sales tax.

Michigan's legislature is considering a proposed constitutional amendment to raise the sales tax ceiling from three to four per cent.

In Georgia, the Legislature recently approved a personal income tax withholding act. It does not change tax rates but will increase collections by an estimated 2½ million dollars a year by catching people who are dodging the tax. It goes into effect May 1.

Gov. Christopher Del Sesto (R) of Rhode Island has suggested increases in automobile registration and driving license fees, boosts in business corporation income taxes and bank excise taxes and a new 15 per cent tax on tobacco products other than cigarettes.

Arizona's Legislature has been asked to hike automobile and driving license fees and registration fees on cars.

Gov. George Docking (D) of Kansas proposed a cut of ½ cent in the 2½ cent sales tax. He also suggested a reduction of 1 cent in the gasoline tax of 5 cents per gallon, with the loss to be offset by a ton-mile tax on heavy trucks. Republicans didn't allow his plans to reach the floor of either house.

Kansas Republicans proposed suspension of the 1.75 mill property tax for one year, but bills along that line were vetoed by the governor.

Jimmie H. Davis (D) is not making any comment on state affairs until the April 19 election that will make him governor of Louisiana. But he and many lawmakers campaigned on a no-tax-raise platform.

West Virginia's Legislature postponed for a year reductions that had been scheduled for July 1 in the insurance premium tax and the transportation privilege tax paid by railroads and other carriers.

No new taxes seem likely this year in Maryland and Pennsylvania, where big increases were approved in previous sessions.

The second session of Alaska's Legislature currently is considering proposals to increase the tax on motor fuel from 5 cents a gallon to 7 cents and the tax on boat fuel from 2 cents a gallon to 3 cents.

No new taxes are in prospect in New York, which adopted increases last year.

When the Wisconsin legislature reconvenes May 16, it will consider a package plan proposed by Gov. Gaylord Nelson (D). It calls for a 34 of 1 per cent boost across the board in state income taxes, now ranging from 1 to 8½ percent.

Also included are slightly higher personal exemptions, a cut of 10 per cent in the current surtax of 25 per cent, and a new franchise tax on banks and savings and loan associations.

AFTER CUBAN DISASTER

State Department Gives Sympathy

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department Saturday expressed sympathy for families of victims who died in Havana's munitions disaster Friday. It's public statement pointedly bypassed government-to- government condolences.

The handling of the statement again reflected the strained relations between the United States and Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro's regime.

Under formal circumstances such a message would have been sent from the government and the people to the government and the people.

In diplomatic practice, omission of reference to the government in such messages indicates displeasure with the government itself.

The U.S. charge d'affaries in Havana conveyed sympathies to the Cuban government and offered any possible assistance. But the formal State Department message pointedly omitted any reference to the Cuban government.

As released to the press by the American Embassy in Havana, it read: "The government and the people of the United States are deeply distressed over the tragic explosion which occurred yesterday in Havana Harbor with such a heavy loss of life. Our deepest sympathy goes to the families of those who mourn the death of their loved ones. We share the grief and shock which this disaster has brought to the Cuban nation."

There still was no official figure on the number who died when the French merchant ship delivering Belgian arms to the Castro government blew up. Estimates to the death toll ranged from 54 to 73.

Castro charged that U.S. interests were to blame for the disaster. Revolucion, organ of Castro's revolutionary movement, charged "The United States had pledged that these arms should not reach Cuba." There was no official Washington comment on these charges.

Some Latin-American diplomats in Washington said the disaster came at a difficult time for the Castro regime.

The tragedy, they said, undoubtedly will focus attention on the fact that Cuba apparently is importing large quantities of arms, although Castro himself claims he has almost unanimous support among the people.

The accumulation of such a store of arms could alarm other nations, particularly in the Caribbean area.

Only Friday the State Department vehemently denied charges of Castro spokesmen that the United States is plotting economic or military aggression against Cuba.

There were indications the Eisenhower administration plans to ask Congress next week for a four-year extensive of the U.S. sugar quota law, with special provisions aimed at the Castro regime. The most important of these would give the President authority to cut the quota of a foreign sugar supplier at any time.

The United States buys about half the Cuban sugar crop and pays above-market prices for it. The premium prices net about an extra 150 million dollars yearly for Cuba.

Rep. Harold C. Cooley (D-NC) said again Saturday that the slightest cut in Cuba's sugar quota would give the Castro regime an excuse to blame Uncle Sam for Cuba's economic troubles.

Senator Eastland Says Rights Bill 'Beyond Russia'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. James O. Eastland (D-La) believes that some of the civil rights proposals "go beyond those of the Soviet Union in Stalin's time."

In a speech before the Senate Friday, Eastland said the civil rights proposals were attempts by the federal government "to take over election in the South."

Reading most of his speech, Eastland was aided by the questions of Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC).

The Mississippi senator cited numerous statistics on the school system of his state and said "we are not going to give up our dual schools. We are not going to give up segregated society."

Eastland said Mississippi Negroes are satisfied with their present schools and do not want integration.

ALBINO FROGS PAMPERED

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Florida State University zoologist has thre efrogs in a bathtub in his office and he's giving them loving care.

Dr. John A. Davison hopes they can be nursed to maturity and that he can use them to initiate what he thinks will be the first pure strain of albino frogs in the world.

The albinos showed up as an accident of nature in the cross-breeding of normal colored frogs to get tadpoles for research on blood circulation. They are lacking in pigment, the material that gives color to the skin.

After producing a pure strain, Davison plans to give the offspring to other scientists conducting research in genetics, pigmentation and embryology. It takes a year or more to raise the frogs to the breeding stage.

AFTER QUAKES

Shattered City To Be Rebuilt

AGADIR, Morocco (UPI) — The earthquake-shattered city of Agadir will be rebuilt on solid rock just south of the present ruins of the once-gay seaside resort, Moroccan government authorities announced Saturday.

The present site of this "City of Death" — shaken anew by two mild earth tremors Friday night—will be given over to a stadium, a racetrack, a swimming pool and playing fields.

This was announced following a cabinet meeting in Rabat, presided over by King Mohammed V, and a news conference in Agadir by Crown Prince Moulay Hassen, who is directing resuce operations for victims of Monday's disastrous earthquake.

The Crown Prince said more than 4,000 bodies have been found in the rubble of Agadir. He estimated that another 6,000 to 8,000 victims still lie undiscovered under the rubble. This would mean a staggering death toll of from 10,000 to 12,000 persons.

The new tremors felt within seven minutes of each other Friday night caused no further damage. Officials ascribed them to a settling of the earth following the original devastating quake.

But survivors encamped in the fields outside the town were terrified and police had to tour the refugee camps to reassure the huddled peasants.

In the wake of the new tremors, however, the control tower at the French Naval Air Station was abandoned by its French and American technicians. The tower had been cracked in the original quake and the new tremors aggravated the fissures.

French warships standing off the coast from the destroyed city said the stronger of Friday nights two tremors made the stern of their vessels vibrate.

Authorities decided after much hesitation not to raze this ruined city for at least five weeks despite the threat of pestilence being spread by thousands of rats and millions of flies.

The decision was made in order to allow every chance of rescue of any persons still entombed alive in the shambles.

Authorities also decided against burning the ruins with napalm (jellied gasoline). This would destroy the considerable amount of currency, goods and achieves officials believed was still recoverable.

Instead 600 rescuers, gravediggers and demolition workers will remain within the ruins. They will be quarantined for the full five weeks or more.

The city Saturday was encircled by 5,000 Moroccan soldiers who prevented all unauthorized persons from entering. Entry permits were marked: "Permit to circulate within the dead city."

Inside the ruined city, U.S. Army engineers were bulldozing the rubble from the Medina, the old Moslem quarter, in which more than 5,000 persons were believed to have been killed.

Working with the Americans were Moroccan troops airlifted in through Friday by French, American and Spanish aircraft.

The remainder of the 400 American soldiers, airmen and marines who had been engaged in the rescue operation began withdrawing.

Only the engineers and a few liaison personnel will remain to aid the Moroccan rescuers.

PASSENGERS AMUSED

Pilots For Big Airlines Have Good Sense Humor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—All was quiet in the cabin of the Trans World Airlines plane when the Cabin PA mike clicked on.

"Ladies and gentlemen, this is the captain. We are now cruising at 10,000 feet and it's certainly a pleasure to be flying in this fine weather after the poor weather we've been having recently.

"The temperature upon our arrival in Pittsburgh will be 42 degrees.

"Incidentally, we in the cockpit also read the newspapers, and I want you to know I'm a very happily married man and have three lovely children. I like my job and the company for which I work, and I really enjoy living. The first officer feels the same way.

"So if there are any back there who have problems, and who feel the only way you can solve them is by going off the deep end, please come up to the cockpit and let's talk it over. If after our discussion you find that we haven't been able to help you with your problems, and you still want to go off the deep end, we'll be glad to accommodate you. We'll depressure the cabin, open the door and let you jump out."

That light-hearted but subtly-serious approach to the air sabotage problem brought laughs and applause from the customers. It also was just one more proof that airline pilots have been known to have a sense of humor.

Flight deck funnies aren't as frequent as they used to be, because commercial aviation has grown so complex crews don't have time to joke with passengers. There was one captain in the DC-3 days who used to fill his pockets with assorted nuts and bolts. When all was serene, calm and boring, he'd open the cockpit door just a tiny bit and roll a few pieces of metal down the aisle.

This was the same captain who was browsing through a novelty store one day and saw a rubber mask of the Frankenstein monster. It was a bilious green with a hideous scar and the fake electrodes protruding from the skull.

"I'll take it," he told the clerk.

On his next flight, he summoned a brand-new stewardess to the cockpit. She opened the door. The captain, wearing the mask, turned around and said pleasantly:

"Good morning, my dear."

The stewardess said (censored)

One of the leading airlines had a captain who would touch down in a perfect landing, taxi up to a ramp, and announce happily over the cabin PA:

"Does anyone know where the hell we are?"

United Airlines recalls a pilot who passed a fish market on the way to the airport. He bought a string of fresh trout, packed them in ice and proceeded to his flight after making one more stop: He purchased a fishing pole.

Once airborne, he walked through the cabin with the pole over his shoulder and informed the surprised passengers, "It certainly is a nice day for fishing and we'll be passing over Lake Erie shortly."

The passengers were even more surprised a few minutes later when he emerged from the cockpit, with the string of trout hanging from the pole.

Road Workers

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Road workers of Madaba, 25 miles south of here, have accidentally discovered two ancient pieces of mosaic, one measuring about 42 and the other about 25 square yards. The government antiquities department said they are believed to have come from a Roman building of 2,000 years ago. Organized search has begun for other parts of the building.

DEADLY WEAPONS

Gas Station Killer Is Captured

JUPITER, Fla. (AP)—Miami's savage gas station killer was captured near Jupiter today after he struck for a fourth time, beating a woman to death and hiding her body in the woods.

The red-haired, six-foot slayer was taken by a posse a few hours after he abducted Mrs. Virginia Selby in Miami, brought her here in her car and gave her a fatal beating. Jupiter is about 80 miles north of Miami.

In Miami, one of the greatest manhunts in the city's history had been launched for the man who shot three night service station attendants, killing two and critically wounding a third.

He refused to give his name but told H. L. Conyers, chief criminal investigator of Palm Beach County:

"I guess you know who I am. I killed those guys in Miami."

Officers stumbled accidentally over the body of the 60-year-old Mrs. Selby while hunting through a remote wooded area for a prowler who had entered a nearby house and washed blood from his hands.

Bonnie Boales, 17, phoned officers in Jupiter about 2 a.m. and reported that she and her sister, Linda, 14, lay terror-stricken in their beds, feigning sleep, while the prowler roamed the house.

Return of the girls' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Boales, frightened the prowler away.

During the search, Glenn Mayo, Jupiter police chief found Mrs. Selby's abandoned car on a little-traveled road. Her body had been dragged 25 feet back into the woods.

The killer told officers he approached Mrs. Selby's car in a Miami parking lot Friday night and asked her to get out.

When she refused, he shoved her over, got behind the wheel and headed north.

At Jupiter, she found a hammer in the car and struck at him. Then, he said, he beat her to death.

Two Survive On Moose Meat In Alaska

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Two men who lived on moose meat sausage and dry biscuits, who slept in ice igloos and drank snow water for a week were safe in Kotzebue today.

George Baumann, 58, polar bear hunter from Nevada, Mo., and Lee Holen, 43, Anchorage pilot, were rescued Friday, a week after their light plane was forced to land on an ice flue in Chukchi Sea.

Holen described their ordeal in a telephone interview from Kotzebue, about 200 miles north of Nome.

He said they spent their first night sleeping on the wings of the plane, which partially sank through the top layers of the floe. After two days Holen said they left because of the ice's instability.

Using a raft fashioned from the plane's gas tanks and often leaping from one rotting ice cake to another, the two made it some 30 miles to shore.

Only their sleeping bags and the snow igloos that protected them at night kept them from freezing in the near zero temperatures, Holen said.

Holen said they hiked down the coast toward Kivalina for four days. Thursday night they met a party of Eskomos who took them into Kivalina.

It was the second rescue this week. Max Eastman, hunter from Omak, Wash., and his pilot, Warren Johnson of Anchorage, had accompanied Holen and Baumann in a separate plane. They, too, were forced to land on an ice floe and were rescued by Air Force helicopter Monday.

Two other hunters, pilot Ward Carroll, and G. Stanley Gordon of Anchorage, were killed in the crash of a light plane Feb. 19. Their bodies were seen on an ice floe which drifted away. A search for the bodies has been abandoned.

West Decay Symptoms Are Noted

LEIPZIG, East Germany (AP) —Nude photographs in Communist magazines. Baby-doll nightgowns on sale in state-owned stores. Pointed Italian shoes offered to the well - dressed functionary.

Such symptoms of so - called Western decay in a Soviet-bloc country might make a veteran Bolshevik turn in his grave. But for Communist East Germany these are a few striking samples of its campaign to reach what it regards as world norms in living.

The nude photos are rationed to one a month. Only a few women can afford the nightgowns. And the Italian-style shoes are advertised but are not on sale.

There is still an enormous gap between domestic needs and supplies of things for a brighter life.

But a survey of the Leipzig spring fair shows a steady improvement in many production fields. In some branches of heavy industry the norm has been well achieved.

East Germany appears to be economically the most successful Soviet ally. Statistics indicate that it has outstripped Czechoslovakia to become the East's biggest industrial power after the Soviet Union.

Government officials predict an 80 per cent increase in exports within five years. East Germany claims to be the world's fifth biggest machinery exporter and has trade relations with about 100 countries.

Only the Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia have accorded diplomatic recognition to East Germany, but it has semiofficial commercial contacts with many Western countries.

East Germany leaders display an increasing air of self-assurance, fed by both Soviet space feats and East Germany's economic growth.

BY RABIN'S VIOLIN

Sophistication Of Music Noted

By DELOS SMITH
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ten years after his debut as a violin virtuoso, Michael Rabin played with the same orchestra in the same hall this week. That bald fact will lose its baldness when you remember that 10 years ago he was a boy of 13.

It's a mark of how musically sophisticated our times have become. There was a day when a phenomenal child prodigy was a freak, and the public marveled—unmusically. Rabin may be the first such who has matured with very little notice having been taken that he was a growing boy.

The public interest was concentrated on his having been a growing musician, and his playing of the Beethoven Violin Concerto, with the National Orchestra Assn.'s symphony in Carnegie Hall, revealed how very grown-up musically he has become.

There was no exploitation of his childhood, by parents or managers. His father, George Rabin, is a violinist in the New York Philharmonic and his mother, Jeanne, is a pianist. They couldn't very well marvel that their cihld turned out to be a musician.

Michael Rabin's degree of maturity may be judged by his own view of himself. Most matter-of-factly he accepts his musicianly bent, the way sensible people accept the plain fact that they possess two ears, two eyes, and a nose.

"The artist is, after all, a human being," said Rabin. "And he wishes to be treated as such."

At the other end of the age-scale, is Pierre Monteux, one of the most beloved and deeply respected musicians in this century. He will be 85 years old on April 4. He has had intimate conductorial associations with the Boston Symphony and its members asked his permission to arrange a party to celebrate his birthday.

Monteux said it was a delightful idea but he wanted to choose his own birthday present. He chose a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony for the benefit of the orchestra's pension fund, and he named the conductor—himself. It will be given in Boston's Symphony Hall the evening of April 6. That's two days after the birthday but when you get to be 85, the exact date of a birthday isn't important.

Mischa Elman is a violinist who has been along much of the road which young Robin has traveled only a little way by comparison. He made his debut as a virtuoso at the age of five and has been continusously before the music public since early adolescence.

For that reason, the public may think he is older than he is. He has just turned 69, but you'd never guess it, watching and listening to him play his violin.

In his annual Carnegie Hall concert, he played the Chaconne from Bach's D Minor Sonata as though, from the technical viewpoint, it were nothing. Keep in mind that this is unaccompanied violin music and is unplayable to many a violin virtuoso.

But even more dramatic, in contemplation, was the way Elman insists upon being himself. At 69, he still gives superficial resemblance to a bobbing, weaving prize-fighter, the way he attacks violin with bow. These mannerisms of his have been under constant critical notice through all his years. If anything, they're more emphatic than ever before.

New Windows Upon Universe To Open Soon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Electronic vision is about to open new windows upon the universe and reveal wonders never before witnessed.

Some scientists go so far as to hope that, if an astronomical observatory can be established on the moon, the new seeing techniques will disclose existence of other worlds in the "solar systems" of nearby stars.

Two new electronic developments, each providing a new and different view of the universe, were described before 40 of the nation's most brilliant young scientists Friday night by Dr. John W. Coltman of the Westinghouse Research Laboratories, Pittsburgh.

One is a pint-sized electronic tube called the astracon which can amplify a single packet of light energy 20,000 times. The other is an electronic system for making ultraviolet radiation—"black light"—visible on a photographic film.

The other window-opener, electronic tubes capable of seeing with ultraviolet light, will be used in a satellite observatory riding in orbit hundreds of miles above the earth.

Westinghouse and the Smithsonian Instituion are working together on plans for such a satellite, carrying a whole battery of telescopes, for the National Aeronautics & Space Administration (NASA). It would relay television images to earth of the "new universe" thus revealed.

Coltman spoke at a dinner meeting at which 40 winners of the 19th annual science talent search—31 boys and nine girls—entertained members of Congress from their home districts.

The youngsters are attending a science talent institute and are competing for $34,250 in Westinghouse scholarships. They were picked from 29,402 high school students all over the United States.

Police Outlaw

SINGAPORE (AP) — Police have outlawed the noisy gongs and cymbals traditionally accompanying Chinese funeral processions. Rival processions from secret societies used to meet en route to the cemetery and try to out-gong each other. To prevent the defening din, the bereaved families will have to take the shortest route to the cemetery, submit a list of the mourners and play music only at graveside.

Ward 1 Fire District Meet Monday Night

F. G. Studdard, ward 1 police juror and temporary secretary-treasurer of fire district No. 1, has announced a mass meeting of ward 1 taxpayers Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at A. L. Smith School cafeteria.

Property owners in ward 1 will go to the polls April 5 and vote on a proposal to establish and equip a fire protection district in the ward.

"The purpose of the meeting Monday night is to bring before the public exactly what we plan to do and where their money will be spent if they approve the bond issue," Studdard said. "I hope we get a good turnout," Studdard declared.

He explained that all property owners or any other interested person in the ward will be welcome to attend the meeting.

Through Studdard's efforts the election was called by the Ouachita Parish Police Jury in order that residents in ward 1 could vote on the proposal to establish fire facilities in that north Ouachita parish area.

The proposal to be voted on calls for $200,000 in bonds to finance the firefighting facilities. These funds would be repaid through a 5-year 3- mill tax.

Another proposal calls for another 3- mill assessement to run for 10 years in order to finance maintenance of the fire protection system.

On hand for the Monday night meeting will be District Attorney Albin P. Lassister who will explain the legal aspects of the bond election.

Also present will be members of the fire district committee, composed of Al Joseph, Lewis Gannaway, John Osterland, Otha Barnes and Studdard.

A special guest for the meeting will be Monroe Fire Chief H. L. Hales, who will be prepared to answer any technical questions about fire protection.

"I personally feel that much can be learned at the meeting, and every voter should attend if possible," Studdard declared.

Elvis Presley Officially Out Of Army

FORT DIX, N. J. (UPI)—Elvis Presley was separated from the Army Saturday after two years

The final moments of his military life were witnessed by a half - dozen squealing teen-aged girls, more than a dozen newsmen and photographers and a special detail of six military policemen to protect him from the crush.

The GI's being separated with him roared a farewell to Elvis as he left the post, wearing his Army uniform for the last time and clutching his final Army pay of $109.54 in his hand.

"This boy is something, he really is," declared First Sgt. Daniel C. Brunetti, of the 16th Transfer Company, a veteran of 21 years in service.

"He sold me, boy. And I am one of the die-hards about this rock 'n' roll.

"You can treat Presley like any other soldier. He never asked for one extra preference. He went along with the boys. He changed my mind. He is a fine lad.

"Anyone saying anything derogatory about this boy will have to fight me. You had better believe it."

This praise from a sergeant followed a statement read by Sen. Estes Kefauver, from Presley's home state of Tennessee, for the congressional record Friday night.

As for Presley, he was glad to have Army service behind him so he could resume his million dollar a year career where it left off when his draft board summoned him two years ago.

Col. Tom Parker, Presley's business manager, was here to shake the singer's hand in congratulation before heading for New York City and civilian life. Elvis is scheduled to appear on television with Frank Sinatra May 12 and make a movie titled "GI Blues."

But first, Elvis will go home to Memphis, for a dish of blackeyed peas and a reunion with his father, who returned from Germany Friday night.

Presley had little to say on his final moments as a soldier. He handed each of his teen - aged admirers post - card - sized, autographed pictures of himself and posed for pictures with his final pay in his hands.

The final hours in the Army began for Presley at 6:30 a. m., when he was routed out of his Army bunk for the last time. He ate a breakfast of scrambled eggs, bacon and coffee and then heard the routine farwell lecture that is given to all men leaving the service.

Woman Files Suit Against Negro Paper

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A one million dollar libel suit was filed Friday against the Tri-State Defender, a Negro newspaper here, by the white woman who claimed she was raped by lynch victim Mack Charles Parker.

The Petal, Miss., woman said that a story printed by the newspaper contained "fraudulent and false" statements concerning her.

The suit was against the Defender and the Robert Abbott Publishing Co., Inc., of Chicago, which puts out the Defender.

The suit was filed at Hattiesburg, Miss., six months ago, but was dismissed and re-filed here because of a jurisdiction angle.

Parker, a 23-year-old Negro, was dragged from a Popularville, Miss., jail April 25, 1959, by a gang of masked men. Nine days later his body was found in the Pearl river, punctured by several bullet holes.

JES' Ramblin'

so honored was Willard R. Hancock.

Mrs. Oreatha Luttrell, before her marriage, Miss Oreatha Saterfeil, was given mention as representing that class that finished in 1951.

She is a first grade teacher in the Drew Elementary school, West Monroe.

Letter

Of interest to friends at Northeast State College here is a letter "Jes Ramblin just received from Prentiss Cox, popular and well known here by fellow students. He is now assuming a new position as Director of Public Affairs at Springfield College, Springfield, Mass.

His letter was of interest to "Jes Ramblin" for he spent his teen age days in Springfield after removal from his native Conn.

Cox recited many changes, especially as concerned the college which we knew by the name French - Canadian college. It is now American International college, which Springfield College is a second college it appears, and is at Lake Massassoit. In our time this body of water was called rather cynically "The Watershops Pond." This indicates that cities besides our own Monroe are ever making changes.

Debating

Teams from Natchitoches High and St. Matthew's tied for first place in debating at the Pineville High school. It was at the eighth annual Speech and Drama Festival in Monroe.

Some 185 students from 21 high schools were entered. James W. Parkerson, associate professor of speech, directed the festival.

Chimes

Chimes sounded on the campus at college at 1 p.m. Friday rang in recognition of the World Day of Prayer, which 112 nations were observing. The theme of the observance had for its motto: "Laborers Together with God."

This year students around the world joined in observing a specified day in united action.

Court

Judge W. M. (Bill) Harper has done it again. This Monroe city official, casting defiance at one of the coldest days hereabouts for more than a decade, painstakingly entertained and instructed women members of 20 or more clubs hereabouts as to just how a court is conducted.

"Never expected these fine women would brave a freezing morning to attend, but they came just to show that bad weather would never stop them." Judge Harper later informed. "They were just fine women, of the sort that do things when they set out on any project," Judge declared.

After they had been shown details of court procedure, they were next taken to the Detention Home on the Milhaven road where, after light refreshments and a welcome that was hearty by those in charge, the guests inspected the well equipped plant, met many of the inmates and got a new slant on the fine work that is being done.

The success of the day generally was due to the judge and to Mrs. George Forman who is state representative of women's clubs and she exerted efforts to see that no less than 70 north Louisiana clubs were informed of plans that were carried out here. Had the day been a bit more favorable, far more than the small attendance would have been present, but at any rate Judge Harper and Mrs. Forman regarded that their job had been well done.

Same

S. R. Braley, assistant principal at West Monroe High school, reports an experience a bit unusual. He reported at the license bureau to obtain his 1960 auto license. He succeeded, but to his amazement he got the same numbers as he had received for his 1959 license plate.

But still another surprise. Mrs. Braley, his wife, accompanying her husband, also got a new plate for her car. And she got the same numbers as she had received for 1959.

Who can explain this unusual occurrence?

Cage

The Ouachita Parish Hi-Y squad began its basketball season with five winning games, plus a tournament that comprised West Monroe, Neville and Shreveport. Ouachita, as host team, swept the tournament with victories over Neville and Shreveport.

Hi-Y cagers have also been successful in the role of visitors as they set back Neville, West Monroe, Shreveport and Natchez. The traveling squad composed of George Johnson, Ronnie Thomas, Gary Warlick, David Rawls, Gary Futch, Ray Taunton, Larry Kulcke, Wayne Bryant and Bobby Knickerbocker have been easy winners. They rolled over Natchez in a 23-point victory

British

On March 10, a British information officer will come to Northeast State college as speaker to be honored by the Social Science club. He is Robert C. Turner with the consulate office in New Orleans since 1957. His topic will be: "The British Commonwealth."

Turner is a graduate of Cambridge University and received his master's degree in history.

In the World War Two, he was cadet pilot in the RAF and made his first visit to the United States in 1945. After his graduation he worked for a time for the London Star, evening newspaper.

His meeting here is scheduled for the Fine Arts Auditorium March 10 at 8 p.m. The public may attend.

Attracted

Another fine residence is planned by Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Griffin. It will be out among the trees that attract so many these days to rural West Monroe.

Space

Spaceships some day may cruise indefinitely on free space fuel, according to a recent report submitted to Congress. If this proves correct, it would lead to the charting and using plasma or energy belts found in space. Several of these belts exist around the earth. Spaceships could cruise "by judicious navigation" from one such energy belt to another, the report declares.

Speaker

Seeking to rid himself of fear, a businessman took a public speaking course. But when he had ended the course he was badly disappointed, that old ogre Fear was still with him. He complained to his instructor.

"Why of course your fear has not disappeared," his teacher replied, "and you should be thankful that such is the case! If it had completely vanished, you would sure enough be fearful! It is the complacent speaker who bores his audience!"

Visitor

"Buck" Grandstaff, formerly of Monroe where he has many friends, was a visitor here Friday. He admitted that some of his oil wells have run out, but that he has more to replace them. His producing wells are in Georgetown and vicinity in central Louisiana.

Good Luck

Jes 'Ramblin ran into a friend he had not seen for some time yesterday. She is a very interesting and active specimen of womankind. Several years ago she informed us that she had a bit of luck. She took a thousand dollar diamond from one of her fingers and traded it even for a piece of land along a local bayou.

Until yesterday we had not heard the outcome, but she now states that she and her husband have sold sufficient lots on the tract to equal fully $50,000 for herself and spouse. Some woman we'll sty!

The program is open to the public.

In the month of July, 1959 there were 2,190,000 persons on government paprolls.

crowd at a mass funeral service for blast victims, Castro appeared to have shut the door on any hopes for negotations on U.S. - Cuban differences as proposed recently by his own government.

He heatedly re-emphasized at the end of his speech that the Cuban revolution would not take one step backward from its stated objectives. These call for the fulfillment of drastic reforms that are at the bottom of the major Cuban-American differences.

Revolucion, the organ of Castro's revolutionary movement, charged "the United States had pledged that these arms should not reach Cuba." Its attack appeared under the black headline "Sabotage."

Revolucion said an American passenger aboard the ship had been detained for investigation. The U.S. Embassy said the American's name was given as Don Chapman of North Bend, Neb., who boarded the ship at Antwerp. The embassy added it has been unable to find him.

David Salvador, head of the powerful Cuban Confederation of Labor, charged the ship was sabotaged. He asserted the blow "which killed and maimed our workers and our soldiers" came from the same people "who are planning to cut our sugar quota."

Without singling out any nation, President Osvaldo Dorticos said on TV that the explosion "had all the characteristics of a barbarous and criminal attack on the people of Cuba."

Neither officials nor newspapers furnished any proof for accusations that a time bomb or other device caused the blast. The independent newspaper Informacion suggested the collapse of a loading net may have touched off the first of two blasts that wrecked the ship and spread death and ruin over the docks.

But a spokesman for union harbor workers rejected this suggestion, saying all his men were experienced in handling explosives.

Maj. Juan Almeida, Army chief, refused to say whether there was sabotage after visiting the shattered 4,300-ton ship, adding: "It is difficult to say because I am not an authority on explosins.'

Complacency Big Enemy Of U. S., Says Hungarian

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Dr. Nicholas Nyaradi, ex-Hungarian minister of finance and now a U. S. citizen, told business leaders here Friday night that America never before has been in "such dark, such imminent danger."

Dr. Nyaradi, director of the institute of international studies at Bradley University, said American complacency and not Communism was the key danger to the nation.

In his address to the membership meeting of the Louisiana Public Affairs Research Council (PAR), Dr. Nyaradi said also that America's political office-seekers have consistently failed to tell citizens about the realities of survival.

"We need to hear more of the truth," he said.

Dr. and Mrs. Nyaradi fled Hungary in 1948 when Communists seized control.

At El Dorado, the players will perform on three occasions: twice during the morning Thursday for students in the schools and Thursday evening as a bonus attraction for the symphony series.

SOLOIST

A highlight of the performance will be a piano concerto, "Wedding Cake", a Caprice - Valse by Saint-Saens. The soloist will be Mary Ann Caldwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Caldwell, Monroe. Miss Caldwell, a student of Frank Parker, began her musical study seven years ago as the student of Mrs. Almer Bright of Shreveport. She plays alto clarinet in the Neville High School band and is a member of the A Sharp Coterie music club and Lambda Sigma Chi sorority.

PROGRAM

The program to be presented in El Dorado includes "Symphony for Young People," Clifton Williams; "Theme and Variations," Corrielli; "Petite Etude," Pochon; "Wedding Cake," Saint-Saens; "Plunkin' Peter"; "Barcarolle" from Tales of Hoffman, Offenbach; and an original composition of Conductor Fominaya which is to be named by the youth group.

The original sponsors of the Youth Orchestra, the Monroe Musical Coterie were joined in this work last year when the Monroe Junior Charity League assumed financial support of the group. The Community Arts Committee of the League combines support of the orchestra with other active and proposed programs to broaden the cultural opportunities of the youth of Monroe.

Local performances of the orchestra were scheduled for April City Symphony; May 6 for the Musical Coterie, and May 7, for the Junior Charity League homecoming luncheon.

5-Man Panel To Discuss Education

A five-man panel from Webster parish schools will discuss the San Angelo education program at a special conference here on March 23.

The Fifth District P-TA is sponsoring the discussion.

Two-hundred invitations will go out this week, to a cross-section of Ouachita parish residents, to attend the discussion at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The meet, starting at 1:30 p.m., will be in the Fine Arts building.

Mrs. Earl Brimberry, program chairman for the P-TA's Education Committee said that limited space in the Fine Arts building prevents holding the meeting open to the general public.

DESCRIBED

The San Angelo, Tex. school system is described as "one of the outstanding education systems in the United States."

R. O. Machen, assistant Superintendent of Education in Webster parish, E. O. Cooper, principal at Springhill High School, Cecil Ross, principal of Stewart Elementary school, and Browning Elementary school's principal W. D. Baucum and guidance counselor Ralph Rentz will give their impressions of the San Angelo system.

They have observed it twice.

W. W. Ward, Ouachita parish superintendent of education, Van D. Odom, Monroe school system superintendent, school principals and classroom teachers are invited.

Presidents of federated clubs, the Farm Bureau and other parish organizations are expected to be on hand.

An open discussion will conclude the program.

Bill Hollingsworth is chairman of the Education committee, which was P-TA appointed one year ago to study school board policy, principles and philosphy of education, and outstanding education systems throughout the nation.

"The committee was appointed with the ultimate goal of having an educational conference. We hope eventually to learn enough about our own schools to make recommendation to the Ouachita Parish and Monroe City School Boards," Mrs. Brimberry said.

TEACHER PAY RAISES

School Experts Give Suggestion

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Legislative school experts recommended Saturday a quality education program to give better teachers maximum pay raises.

The recommendation came from members of House and Senate education subcommittees on teacher pay after wrestling with the problem of stretching limited funds over the greatest area.

The subcommittees recommended a quality education program with pay raises based on scores registered by teachers on naional teacher examinations.

The proposals developed by the subcommittees were explained to newsmen by Rep. Georgt Rogers of Warren County and Sen. H. V. Cooper of Vicksburg, heads of the subcommittees, and Rep. J. P. Love of Holmes County and Sen. Eddie Williams of Olive Branch, heads of the two education committees.

"The quality education program is in addition to the minimum foundation program of the state," Rogers said. "The basic program will not be changed, except to give addditional raises for experience to teachers with degrees."

The subcommittee versions would give $500 per year raises to teachers in class 1 as determined by the examination, $350 to those in class 2 and $100 to those in class 3.

In addition, teachers with degrees would get $50 per year for their sixth and seventh years of experience. They now get $80 per year for the first five years.

Class 1 teachers would be those making 560 or more of a possible 900 score. Class 2 teachers would be those making 460-559 and class 3 those making 350-549.

The national average on the tests—made up only of objective questions—is 580. Experts said a barely literate person could make about 300 just guessing at the answers. Scores on the tests will be confidental.

"Based on scores of examinations in South Carolina, Pascagoula and Natchez, the subcommittee said in a report, "half of all the white teachers with as many as seven years' experience will receive salary raises of $600. Another 40 per cent with the same experience will receive raises of $450.

The subcommittee noted that the maximum across the board raises recommended by Gov. Ross Barnett was $300 for those with master's degrees and $250 for those with bacherlor's degrees.

The tests given in Natchez and Pascagoula, which use the tests in addition to classroom rating, and in South Carolina indicate 30 per cent of the Negro teachers would be in the top classes and 60 per cent in the third class.

Teachers with bachelor's degrees in class 1 would start at $3,150 and make $3,650 under the program, "rather than the minimum of all the southern states."

The raises would go only to classroom teachrs and not to supervisory personnel.

Cooper said in a statement, in which Williams joined, that the tests "will serve as a basis of incentive pay above the minimum program determined by training and experience. It will be strictly voluntary on the part of teachers now in service. It will be a means of rewarding our best teachers."

Subcommittee spokesmen said the figures for raises were determined by the $7,800,000 Barnett said would be availablefor teacher pay raises.

Teachers with master's degrees now get $2,875 a year to start and with bachelor's degrees $2,650. Preesntly these get $80 a year for experience through the first five years.

The $50-a-year increment for the 6th and 7th years would go to all teachers, whether they elect to come under the quality education program or not.

Already pending in the Legislature are bills to enact Barnett's $300 and $250 raises and to enact the $600 across the board raise sought by the Mississippi Education Assn.

Seeks State Trial For 2 Mississippians

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Mississippi Gov. Ross Barnett has requested Gov. Earl K. Long to extradite to New Orleans two men, both suspects in separate armed robberies.

The men, Charles Genard and Richard Conway, are free on bond.

Extradition papers for both were reissued in Harrison County, Miss., after attempts to extradite them failed last year.

Gov. Long received papers on Genard the end of last year but were found to have a technical error.

Conway was brought to trial in Orleans parish criminal court on a fugitive charge from Mississippi. But when no agent from Mississippi was present in court, the charges were not pressed. Mississippi officials said they were not informed of the trial.

Rumors Fly About Meg's Wedding Day

LONDON (AP)—Whispers flew round the society grapevine Saturday that Princess Margaret's wedding has been set for one day in May.

Nobody was giving the exact date. But titled tattlers put it toward the end of apple blossom time, before the London society season has swung into its elegant stride.

Guessing when Margaret will march up the aisle has been Britain's most popular parlor game since she announced her betrothal to Antony Armstrong-Jones a week ago.

And as plans for the nuptials went ahead behind palace walls, a few indications inevitably drifted out to those aristocratic echelons living on the fringe of the royal confines.

Canvassing for bridesmaids, for one thing, provided a pointer to the big day. A cousin of Margaret's, Mrs. Denys Rhodes, disclosed that her 8-year-old daughter, Annabel, had been picked.

"I know Princess Margaret would like to be married at the end of May," she said.

Mrs. Rhodes was herself a bridesmaid at Queen Elizabeth's wedding in 1947.

One sure bridesmaid is 9-year-old Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth.

Armstrong-Jones will be pending his 30th birthday Monday as guest of the Queen at Buckingham Palace. Neither Margaret nor Queen Mother Elizabeth has any other engagement for that day and they are expected to join him in a celebration dinner party at the palace.

Income Tax Deduction Tips Given

John L. Tolar, local Administrative officer of Internal Revenue Service, explained recently the types of deductions that can be claimed by taxpayers on their dependents.

In a statement released by the U. S. Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service, Tolar said, "A part or all of the cost of caring for children and other dependents may be considered a deduction on income tax form 1040. A deduction may be allowed for expenses paid for the care of one or more dependents of such care enables the taxpayer to be gainfully employed, or to actively seek gainful employment.

DEDUCTION

"This deduction may be claimed by any woman or widower including men who are divorced, or legally separated under a court decree and have not remarried.

"The dependent (or dependents) cared for must be a child under 12 years of age, or person who is physically or mentally incapable of caring for himself, regardless of age."

For complete details and full particulars, interested taxpayers should obtain a copy of document 5052 from the local postoffice, Tolar stated.

Day For Nationwide Nose Count Near

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam is about to count the divorcees in Hells Half Acre, Wyo., the bathtubs in Buncome County, N.C., and the population of the United States.

As part of the big once-a-decade census, every household in the country will be visited. So will every jail, skid row mission and nudist colony.

This will be the biggest and costliest census in the nation's history. The government will use 170,000 temporary workers, four electronic brains and 118 million dollars to count 180 million Americans.

BIG DAY

The nose count will begin on the night of Thursday, March 31. The Census Bureau calls this T (for transient) night. Soon after dusk it will send its workers to all but the smallest hotels, motels and tourist courts to find out who's away from home.

All information collected about individuals is kept secret. Any census taker who talks out of turn is liable to two years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

On April 1 the visits to 55 million houses, grass huts, apartments and igloos will begin. Some interviewers will travel across Alaska by dog sled.

The final result will be a statistical portrait of America that will fill about 100,000 pages in more than 100 bound volumes. These big books will tell how many people were counted and also how they live and work.

There will be no information on how they worship. The Census Bureau bowed to protests that this would offend many people and might violate religious freedom.

PRESSURE

People who do balk at answering census questions will be subjected to persuasion, then pressure. Those who refuse to answer, or answer falsely, will be courting a fine and jail sentence.

The census is authorized by the Constitution, which specifies that the states will be given seats in the House of representatives according to their population.

Reapportionment of the House thus is the chief reason for the new census—the 18th since Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson directed the first census in 1790. The reapportionment will take effect with the congress elected in January 1962.

Census statistics will also be the basis for parceling out various federal aid funds and for planning new schools and highways. Businessmen will use them to adjust sales campaigns to changing markets.

You'll probably have your first contact with the census late in March. At that time the government will send a copy of the principal census questions to every household on a mail route.

The plan is for you to answer these questions before the arrival of the enumerator. He will transcribe the data to his own forms.

Questions to be asked of everyone include name, relationship to head of household, sex, race, month and year of birth, and marital status.

Similar data will be asked about any guest who may have stayed overnight at your home on March 31.

All householders will be asked about cooking facilities, water supply, flush toilets, bathtubs and showers, number of rooms in the dwelling and whether the quarters are owned or rented.

At every fourth household, the enumerator will leave a more detailed questionnaire to be filled out and mailed to the nearest census office within three days.

Among other things, Uncle Sam will want to know the size, age and value of the living quarters. He'll also ask whether the residents own an auto, TV set, radio, washing machine, clothes dryer, food freezer or air conditioner.

Every person in every fourth household will also be asked about his job, income, education, ancestry and commuting arrangements.

QUESTIONS

Questions change with the times. There will be no inquiry this year about kitchen sinks. The government learned in 1950 that most dwellings have one. By the same token, a question about illiteracy was dropped after 1930.

The 1960 questions about washing machines, clothes dryers, air conditioners and food freezers are new. So are the inquiries about autos and commuting.

The bureau is recruiting 160,000 census takers. They'll work for about two weeks on a piecework basis that will net them about $12 a day if they're diligent. Supervising the enumerators will be 10,000 crew leaders who will work five to eight weeks for about $80 a week.

Because a Republican occupies the White House, members of his party have priority for these jobs. However, enough qualified Republicans may not be willing to work for $12 a day in these prosperous times so Democrats may apply in some sections.

SEEKERS

Job seekers must be citizens at least 18 years of age, have a high school education, pass a test, write legibly and have sturdy legs. About three out of four enumerators will be women.

Despite their best efforts, census takers won't reach everybody — some are sure to be missed. The Bureau believes it missed about two million people in 1950, when 151 million were counted.

Hoping for greater accuracy this year, the agency has adopted a "quality control" program and mustered a bank of electronic machines to digest and tabulate the reports of enumerators.

The first census results will be made public on a local basis during late April and May.

Final population figures and breakdowns by states, counties, cities, towns and villages will be announced by Dec. 1 and are expected to show the biggest population gain for any 10-year period in the nation's history.

Likes To 'Keep Tough'

Lady Astor Lively At 81

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—In her 81st year the irrepressible, irascible, outrageous Lady Astor is still spouting Astorisks.

They're just as prickly as the sharp, six-pointed little symbol for the Greek word meaning star.

"I stopped celebrating birthdays when I was 32—but I'm a rather aging 32 now."

A lot of men should like Nancy Astor.

With a long, beautifully boned face, a surprisingly unwrinkled countenance, the aristocratic nose of the thoroughbred, she faintly resembles a handsome painting of George Washington's horse.

FRISKY

She's still frisky, too.

"I still like a nimble game of golf," she said not long ago.

At an age when many ladies are in a wheel chair, Lady Astor maintains the quick, erect carriage of her youth.

She takes regular exercises every morning. She jumps into a cold bath before breakfast, and she keeps her rooms colder than most people do.

"I'm an open-air person," she explained to a visitor who complained of a draught. "I like to keep tough."

Her rule for mental health is simple': "Forget the past and don't fear the future."

She erupts perhaps less frequently than Old Faithful (four minutes every hour), but the comparison with the famous geyser is irresistible.

From the sweep of time, take these at-random barbs:

"I married beneath me. All women do."

HOPE

"I hope my husband is a millionaire. That's one of the things I married him for."

"We (women) are not asking for superiority, for we've always had that. All we want is equality."

The first woman ever to sit in Britain's House of Commons, she was seldom in her seat. For 25 years she spent more of her time on her feet, giving her views on practically everything.

With Sir Winston Churchill looking on, she once told the House:

"I have voted against my party many times and Winston Churchill asked me to leave it—but I told him I was not as used to changing my party as he was.

Lady Astor has always been a staunch, but often defiant, member of the Conservatives.

Of rough and tough Laborite Bessie Braddock, Lady Astor once said: "I take off my hat to her—but I wouldn't put hers on."

REMARKS

To Joseph Stalin she addressed in 1931 remarks no man ever dared make.

"Why do you insist on carrying on a czarist form of government?" she asked.

"What do you mean?" asked Stalin.

"You know what I mean," she snorted, "shooting your enemies without trial and all that sort of thing."

There was the time she was talking to King Edward VII. They were interrupted by a woman socialite who insisted, with some emphasis, that the king should join a game of bridge.

"Only if Mrs. Astor joins in," replied the king.

"I wouldn't know the difference between a king and a knave," came back Mrs. Astor.

The king roared with laughter.

She's even taken a slam at motherhood: 'All this sentimental slush peddled about mothers and motherhood is just too sickening. Motherhood is only a quality of mind and outlook."

Lady Astor is the mother of six children, five sons and a daughter, and one of a family of 11.

NO CREDIT

"I take no credit for being a suffragette," she once told guests at a large public luncheon. "I had a father who would have made any woman a suffragette.

"My mother married at 17 and didn't want any children. Humph. she had 11."

Lady Astor overflows with moral and physical courage—and an unmatched audacity.

One night during the last war a German incendiary flamed down upon the roof of her big home in Plymouth. Explosive bombs were raining from the night sky.

To a group of men huddling with her she commanded: "Come on, where in hell are the sand buckets?"

SNAPPED

To a reporter she snapped: "I think it would have been more appropriate if I had done the unveiling. I'm delighted he did it, of course, but he's a Yankee. He was born in Maine. I'm a Virginian."

Lady Astor became British when she married her husband, Waldorf Astor. But she has remained an unregimented Southerner.

"I'd rather be a rattlesnake than a Yankee," she says.

She was born on May 19, 1879, on her father's Virginia estate. He was Chiswell Dabney Langhorne, a well-to-do citizen of the Old Dominion. Shortly after her debut in Richmond in 1897, she married Robert Gould Shaw, a Bostonian. They were divorced in 1903.

On a sea voyage to Europe after the divorce, she met Astor. They became engaged and were married in London the same year.

Not long ago she paid him a beautiful tribute.

"I love men," she told a luncheon meeting. "We can't do without them. You see, I'm only half the person without my husband. He gave me so much."

OUTSPOKEN

Her son Michael said some of the most outspoken things ever said about her when he wrote recently of her in a British magazine.

He referred to her "disconcerting lack of scruple." He said this would show itself "when her will was challenged."

He also said she gave an occasional "appearance of ruthlessness, which was elemental and unpredictable."

He even referred to her "overbearing desire to get her own way."

Asked about this, Lady Astor replied: "Michael's a highly strung boy.

"Perhaps I've been a little tough, but I didn't think I'd ever been tactless, or ruthless, or overbearing."

At 65—after 25 years in the House of Commons—Lady Astor decided she didn't want to run again.

Asked recently if she missed it, she replied: "yes I miss the House—but the House doesn't miss me."

Benefit Seen In Farmer Incorporation

There are seven benefits which might result from incorporation of the family - type farm.

The liability would be limited to debts of the corporation only. Incorporation is a method of establishing multiple ownership. It is a means of transferring ownership within the family.

Benefits are possible under the Small Business Act. An employe of such a corporation, if he is also a shareholder, may find additional benefits under retirement laws. It might become easier to get credit for such a corporation.

Finally, the complete records and reports which are a part of incorporation may help guide the farmer to more efficient operation of his holders.

The authors of the circular do not claim that incorporation would be beneficial to all farmers but it would aid some.

Louisiana Economy

In two major pre-inauguration speeches, plus a king-sized press conference sandwiched in between, Governor-designate Jimmie Davis has been pounding at the need for complete public understanding of Louisiana's economic condition and what can be done about it.

Mr. Davis has been frank in presenting facts which most seekers or occupants of public office avoid. He views Louisiana and its future with tremendous optimism; but he has not hesitated to inject what some might consider notes of pessimism but which actually are cold and hard facts.

In his speech Friday before the Public Affairs Research Council's Sixth Annual Conference on Government at Baton Rouge he emphasized the fiscal problems ahead: For example the annual budget in his last year as Governor in 1948 was $170,000,000. Now it is more than $800,000,000. The jump is tremendous, as Mr. Davis said, even allowing for inflation and population gains. Is this jump justified by a comparable jump in the state's economy?

> "Some people are of the opinion that the boom has been a little bigger than we can afford," Mr. Davis said. "This may or may not be so. But the trapper on the bayou and the banker in his office must understand that, as taxpayers, they will pay for anything they get from government. The only thing I or any other government official can do is to make sure they get what they pay for.
> "Government is like a family. If it turns out that we have overshot our incomes. . . then we must face up to that fact and take whatever steps are necessary."

The step needed may be hard to take.

The incoming Governor said he expected to face a deficit when he goes into office and that "the outlook is gloomy."

It is.

Not only is there likely to be a deficit, but a scale of state spending has been established during the present fiscal year that is estimated at $50,000,000 to $64,000,000 more than revenue for the present fiscal year.

Yet, every governmental agency will want an increase over the present scale of spending. There will be public pressure from all over the state in behalf of specific budget increases. Every pressure group will want its project given more money.

It is doubtful if any state administration in many years has gone into office facing fiscal condition presenting problems of the number and size that will face the Davis administration.

> What Mr. Davis also may need to deal with in another speech is that the tremendous dollars volume of industrial development—new plants and expansion of old plants —that has come in the past 15 years has not materially increased manufacturing employment in Louisiana It is about time to start measuring the values of industrialization by net gain in jobs rather than in dollar volume of plant construction.

For example:

Averaging manufacturing employment in Louisiana in 1948, according to current data from the Louisiana Division of Employment Security, was 150,344. In 1952 it was 147,968. In 1956 it was 147,301. In 1958 it was 141,606, — nearly 9,000 less than in 1948. As of last November (1959) it was 148,500, which included a normal as sugar processing.

It is interesting to note that seasonal increase in such factors government employes—state, federal and local — in Louisiana increased from 97,000 in 1950 to 122,000 in 1956 and 137,000 in June, 1959, the latest figure available.

Thus, the influx of multi-million dollar manufacturing plants in the Baton Rouge, New Orleans and Lake Charles areas have not brought any real net big gain in total manufacturing jobs. The public is unaware of this. Politicians do not emphasize the fact that there are always a certain number of plants going out of existence or cutting back employment, even as new plants are built. This has been especially true in several branches of South Louisiana industry in recent years, including some petroleum products plants.

For example, a few days ago Swift & Company announced that it would discontinue operation of its Lake Charles meat packing plant effective April 2nd. Approximately 100 employes will be affected. The company will attempt to transfer as many as possible to other units but not many can be absorbed in this state.

The Swift manager at Lake Charles blamed high labor costs as one of the reasons for the closing—also high cost of livestock.

High labor costs have been listed at times as one reason for lack of interest of some small outside interests in establishing small plants in Louisiana. Mr. Davis himself has mentioned this fact at times and emphasized his own desire to work closely with state labor leadership to try to bring about sliding scales of pay that would be more attractive to small industries which might locate outside the Baton Rouge - New Orleans - Lake Charles areas—areas of lower living costs.

The State Labor Council would do well to consider just what part labor costs may be playing in keeping small industry out of the state.

It is amazing that here in Louisiana—which has been growing steadily in livestock production an has tremendous natural attractions for industry—a branch of one of the nation's largest industries shuts down because of shortage of livestock and ever-rising labor costs. The Swift & Company Lake Charles situation can be multiplied in Louisiana and transferred to various other parts of the state. Louisiana Division of Employment Security statistics also show that 29 parishes, including both Caddo and Orleans, had fewer workers covered by employment security in 1958 than in 1956, and 16 (including Orleans) had fewer in 1958 than they did in 1953. Added to this is the fact that in 26 parishes population is less now than 10 years ago, due in some instances to factors mentioned above and in others to such things as decline in cotton production.

Mr. Davis, in discussing some of these problems Friday, pointed out that Louisiana has "the necessary courage, talent and intelligence to solve any problem that confronts us. All we have to do is tap the energy that is available to us in the form of our citizens."

What is needed most of all is for the people to realize that their energy will have to be the prime factor in solving the problems ahead, and that they must do their part in seeing that full and adequate efforts are made toward solution.

DULUTH, MINN., PUBLICITY: "Big budgets mean big tax demands, and yet, everyone knows that taxes already are too high. So, in Washington, they're talking about closing the 'loopholes.' But, it turns out that the biggest beneficiaries of the loopholes are the small taxpayers and that the middle bracket folks have fewest loopholes. There aren't enough big taxpayers around to matter much. So it looks like the only hope the citizens have is to tell their Congressmen that they want cheaper government"

Symington's One Note

Presidential Aspirant Apparently Pins All Hope On Strong National Defense Proposal

There is a musical allusion in politics, used in describing a candidate for office which says, "He's a one note man."

That's what some are saying Symington (Dem.-Mo.) who is Symington (Dem.)Mo.) who is being mentioned more frequently these days as a compromise nominee for the presidency, as party leaders back away in increasing numbers from the idea of naming Adlai Stevenson for a third try.

The word "compromise" used in a Symington connection carries no implication that the senator himself is inclined to compromise. In fact, the description in the opening paragraph applies to his single objective in public life — a strong national defense centered on airpower.

While the current rumble over adequate national defense involves President Eisenhower and a dozen other military and civilian authorities, Senator Symington, as usual, is at the very hub of the revealing dispute, and as the possibility grows that the nation's defense may become the key issue in the presidential campaign, so does the feeling among a good number of Democrats that Stu may be the boy to carry the ball.

However active the President may be in the coming campaign, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, almost certain to be the Republican nominee will have to defend the Eisenhower record on defense. That of itself will be a heavy load because both Democratic spokesmen and the nation's press have made it the Achilles heel of the administration at a time when an otherwise satisfied country has begun to wonder whether the so called "missile gap" between the U.S. and Soviet Russia isn't the fault of those in executive authority in Washington.

This is water on Symington's wheel. He can show a record of thorough consistency — except for one knuckle-under — in his championship of air strength as the essential element in national defense.

From the time in 1947 he became Secretary for Air, as it was called when the Department of Defense was first set up as a single cabinet unit, Stuart Symington has been a fighter for greater air strength, and now speaks with the same vigor for more and better missiles of all types.

In his report in 1949 as Secretary of the Air Force, he urged a 70 group air force within four years,which had been favored by the preceding Republican Congress. He declared then that the "U.S. needs an Air Force instantly ready for war." Almost immediately there broke the battle between the services over which should have the larger slice of the multi-million dollar defense pie, with Symington demanding that the Air Force buy immediately 75 B-36 bombers.

He said then the U.S. needed planes capable of carrying 10,000 pounds of bombs 10,000 miles. Admiral Arthur W. Radford, who later became chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff under Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson called the B-36 program a "billion dollar blunder." denounced the "blitz theory of warfare as a fallacious concept" and declared the heavy bomber as obsolete as the battleship.

Symington at hearings on unification of military services charged in turn that the Navy was imperiling U. S. defense by peddling falsehoods about U.S. defense plans. Later, in 1950, he was among the first to make the blunt assertion, on the basis of what he had learned, that "a foreign power had the capacity to attack the U.S. on our own soil for the first time in history."

On resigning from his Air Force post in 1950, with his eye on the U.S. Senate and seeking the favor of President Harry S. Truman, Symington still contended that the U.S. needed a 70 group Air Force, but supported Truman's view that a 48 group program "could be acceptable because the nation could be defeated by economic disaster as well as by military disaster."

That was his only political knuckle-under. Symington's view at that point acould be compared with President Eisenhower's position now. The public debt then that point could be compared with 285 billions now, and the USSR, despite Republican efforts to refute Symington is further ahead in the skies than it has ever been.

Divided U. S.

Americans With Curved Mirrors Present Distorted Pictures

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Race riots are becoming more common in London than in Atlanta. Segregation is far tighter in the Union of South Africa than in the former Southern Confederacy. Religious warfare goes on daily in the Middle East. It is almost unheard of in the United States, where the leading candidate of one party is Catholic and the leading candidate of the other party is Quaker, both minority sects.

The "right to vote" in America is left to the States, save that nobody can be denied on grounds of race, color or previous condition of servitude. The filibuster tactic in the U. S. Senate is a method to prevent tyranny by King Numbers. It has been used in recent years about equally by liberals and conservatives.

The disfranchisement of District of Columbia residents does not have the low purpose of taxation - without - representation. It relates to a fully respectable and defensible proposition that the Federal City ought to be governed by the Federal Government. Censorship of any kind in the USA is rare (probably because the press is very quick to squawk about it), and the genuine danger regarding Federal "information" is that we give out too much, not too little.

All these foregoing propositions are self - evident. They are available to anybody who can read the papers or listen to the broadcasts. There is no excuse for them not to be accepted as common knowledge. Yet it is the opinion - staters rather than the fact-staters who have held up to America a curved mirror and presented us with a distorted, ludicrous, often nefarious picture of ourselves.

Today, this falsified reflection of our country — shown as a race - baiter, a bigot, a slave state, a garrisoned stockade — is the result of phony hysteria about the matter called Civil Rights now before the Senate. A few members from the Southern States are using their floor privileges to make long speeches. A cabal from other regions is striving to wear down this little band. The end result would be to bring up for passage a number of as yet unknown bills to make the South, under Federal duress, yield to a daft demand for social conformity.

Unusual Convention

One of the most unusual conventions ever held in Monroe will be conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Hotel Virginia. It will be the 14th anniversary party for Alcoholics Anonymous. The public is invited to attend.

There will be no discussion of the recent election, no appeal to congress for some special aid, no caucuses, no elections, no smoke-filled political rooms, not even a resolution.

In fact, it can barely be called a convention, because the organization that is holding it really isn't an organization. It doesn't even have any officers, any constitution, dues, signs or symbols—but it does have one of the greatest fellowships in the world.

If you go to the public meeting at Hotel Virginia at 2 p.m. today you'll see some of the happiest folks on earth. You'd never dream, unless they told you, that they've been at times some of the most miserable creatures in the world, and now are happy and drinking deep from the cup of joy.

Alcoholics Anonymous is the organization meeting here today. It is a fellowship of men and women from all walks of life, and all creeds, who have found a common denominator of their faith and a way to help themselves and their fellow man without fanfare or publicity.

Right here in Monroe, miracles have occurred among members of this fellowship, and men and women have risen from despair to joy, and from shame to respectability. You see some of them every day you walk the streets of Monroe. They seek no fame, and their anonymity is not based on secrecy, but humility.

They'll rise in the middle of the night to go to the rescue of a fellow sufferer. They prove the slogan that "a man may be down, but never out." The world admires those who can make a comeback from the brink of disaster.

CRITICIZES EDITORIAL
West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Bet you don't have guts to print the following criticisms which are constructive.

I have before me your editorial captioned — "Add extra billions to Federal Highway" — wherein you criticize the raising the clearances of bridges from 13' to 17' for the benefit of military trucks, missiles, etc.

As for extra expense to be incurred you may have grounds for criticism from economical standpoint, but you don't criticize the extra expense (20 or 30 million) involved in building the elevated highway through the Twin Cities.

You will recall the past, when the U.S.A. district engineers and the Chamber of Commerce were ironing out differences as to the navigation clearance of the bridge and during the talks the district engineers (C of E) asked why the highway had to come through town and every one was at loss for an answer.

From a defense standpoint the highway, when completed, and all of the bridges (Louisville - R. R. and City Bridges) will be vulnerable to one bomb only, which would get the town and destroy all communications whereby traffic or relief could not go through east or west.

Such would not be the case if sound engineering would have been accepted.

I might add that the army engineers are very competent and you are putting your foot in your mouth if your criticism is aimed at them. Having worked for them for 33 years, I believe I know they know their profession.

ONE NATION'S INFLUENCE
West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Although billions of American dollars have been spent around the world to influence foreign nations to our way of thinking, now it turns out that our government is influenced by one small nation, or was it by a threat? If this is so, what has happened to our national leaders that they are afraid of world thinking, with regard to our domestic affairs.

If an American wants to get action from the state department he could do so by getting some foreign nation to propose his idea or by a threat to the state department.

And if he wants a favorable decision from the supreme court he can join the N. A. A. C. P. for $3.00 membership per year. That is, according to the one I saw and I saw this card quite by accident.

Is it not about time the American people let our national leaders know that we expect them to stick to our Constitution? That is for the welfare of the people and for the defense of our country.

I think there is only one way whereby this can be done — by cooperating with all patriotic organizations in the U. S. A. to bring into being a party that will adhere to our Constitution. That will get the U. S. out of the surplus real estate, manufacturing money lending, and turn these back to private enterprise which can reduce the tax burden, lower cost of living, make the money paid to old age pensions, welfare, social security and savings better meet the needs of these people.

RAPS GUN EDITORIAL
Monroe, La.

To The Editor:

Your editorial of Friday, Feb. 26, 1960, was undoubtedly the most unbelievably ridiculous piece of "editorialism" I have ever witnessed. Entitled "Guns For Protection," the article could well have been the work of an old grouch who despises the sound of laughter, dislikes the word, pleasure, regards the opinion of the majority as "hog-wash." The word "pessimist" would not adequately describe the writer of such an article.

To suggest the existence of guns is responsible for criminal inclinations within the minds of men, to any great degree, is as foolish as to suggest the existence of books is responsible for insanity within the minds of men. To advocate controls over ownership of guns, for the masses, because criminal elements of our population use them or because death is often the result of a carelessly handled gun is to suggest that transportation and pleasure value of automobiles be disregarded and that cars be allotted to a specified few, to be used in a specified manner.

A majority of your editorials are excellent and I do not heartily concur with my own statements with reference to your disposition. Herein, however, lies the puzzle. You stand up and speak out in defense of the rights of the individual to defend the privacy of the home against the intrusion of a federal health inspector without a warrant. Your article, by my interpretation, openly advocated federal control over another freedom and smacked of dictatorship conditions of control.

Did you intend that such a law apply only to instances where guns are owned for the sole purpose of protection? Where would the line be drawn? Would it be possible that whomever ruled on the case would decide all citizens owned guns for protection and all guns should be confiscated.

You mentioned cheap foreign weapons. The availability of guns to minors. Either subject would have been worthy of your comments and recommendations. A thousand reasons for wanting a gun could be given. When the day comes for our gutless wonders to hand our cherished land over to the Godless Reds, someone might like to fire one shot. Not withstanding the right of the individual to own, I do not necessarily advocate shooting federal intruders.

FOOTBALL SCHOLARSHIPS

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

Talent scouts for many of the nation's biggest and best educational institutions are embarked again on their annual man hunt.

In city and country, hamlet and metropolis, they are screening this year's crop of high school seniors for that rare combination of brains, brawn, agility—and aptitude for football.

Many are called potentially great athletes, but comparatively few are chosen by the talent scouts. The competition is keen, because the rewards are great.

Consider the case of a young man we'll call Jimmy Jones.

Jimmy is in the top half of his high school class academically, and as a football player he is a coach's dream come true. If Jimmy wants to go to college he can justh about write his own ticket.

The maximum aid allowed by the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. is room and board, all tuition and fees, books, and $15 per month for incidentals. That is practically a free ride, barring such items as transportation between home and college, clothing, social life, etc.

If Jimmy was at the top of his class academically, but not an athlete, he would be lucky to get a scholarship covering his tution and fees.

Not all athletes, of course, are offered the full aid allowable, and some institutions will offer bright students more than just tuition and fees. Generally speaking, however, an athletic scholarship is worth much more than one given for brains alone.

This situation makes many educators unhappy, particularly college presidents.

Dr. A. Whitney Griswold, president of Yale University, has called the traffic in athletic scholarships "one of the greatest educational swindles ever perpetuated on American youth. Its aim is not the education of that youth but the entertainment of its elders, not the welfare of the athlete but the pleasure of the spectator."

There is no doubt that many other university presidents breathed a fervent amen to Dr. Griswold's remarks. Others, however, feel he made his point a bit too strongly.

Whatever their opinion, they are reluctant to speak for publication. They are like the man with a bear by the tail—they don't want to hang on, but they're afraid to let go.

The old grads are most insistent that the alma mater fields athletic teams strong enough to gain national recognition. They bask in the reflected glory, and any move to de-emphasize intercollegiate athletics is met by angry howls. The college president needs a happy alumni group. Regardless of his personal feelings, most college presidents have to go along with the system.

The amount of aid offered an athlete varies from section to section and from conference to conference. So do the rules by which such aid is granted.

Some scholarships are based primarily on academic achievement, some on the basis of need, and some solely on athletic ability.

One prominent football coach, perhaps with tongue in check, has said academic achievement means the athlete can read and write; the basis of need means how badly the school needs the athlete.

In the Ivy League, purest of all major conferences, there are no athletic scholarships as such. There are scholarship funds, available, however, for worthy and needy students. The fact that an applicant for such funds is a good athlete won't be the decisive factor in awarding a scholarship, but it will be given some weight.

Elsewhere, the competition is rough, both among schools anxious to enroll a promising athlete and among youngsters for the scholarships available.

When Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain was a Philadelphia schoolboy, there wasn't a college basketball coach in the country who didn't drool at the very thought of having him on the team.

Wilt's case has been the most publicized in recent years, but it isn't unique. It's not unusual for a really talented basketball or football player to get scholarship offers from 100 to 150 schools.

But these scholarships don't grow on trees, just waiting to be plucked by any young man who can run, throw or shoot baskets. A big university's talent scouts check the high school records of thousands of young men, but personally contact probably fewer than 200. Of these finalists, scholarships are available to maybe 20-30 of each freshman class.

They're bound to miss some good ones.

Take the case of Gerhard Schwedes, captain of the 1959 Syracuse University football team that swept through a 10-game season undefeated and went on to beat Texas in the 1960 Cotton Bowl game.

Schwedes quite likely could have made the grade academically at any university in the country—he's a "B" student at Syracuse—and he almost certainly could have made any college football team.

Books

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCIS FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

This is fine weather for reading and the Ouachita Parish Public Library is attempting to supply the needs of the reading public. Several interesting fiction titles have been added to the library collection during the past week. Outstanding is "The Lincoln Lords" by Camcron Hawley. You will remember that he is the author of "Cash McCall and "Executive Suite." "The Lincoln Lords" will probably be acclaimed as the outstanding work of Mr. Hawley. In this book he has reached the full maturity of his genius and has given us a warm penetrating story of a marriage, of a man and of the world of big business. Mystery stories are always popular and there are two exciting ones among this week's additions. "Show Red For Danger" is the title of the latest book written by Richard Frances Lockridge. It is written with their usual skill and makes exciting reading. "The Devil's Own" is the title of a mystery, by the outstanding novelist, Nora Lofts, written under her pen name of Peter Curtis. It is a story of terror and madness and puts a complete spell on the reader. The fact that the setting is a quiet English country town makes it even more terrifying.

Two exciting historical novels have their setting in the early days of our country. "Storm The Last Rampart" is the title of a book by David Taylor with a Revolutionary war setting, while "Buckskin Baronet" by Margaret Widdemer is located in early New York State. Both of these books make pleasant and enthralling reading. "The Horses of the Sun" is the title of a new book by Oriel Malet. It has it's setting on the island of Elba in the Mediterranean. It is especially appealing to read about a warm climate and a group of delightful people, when we are shivering with cold. It is an enchanting summer tale and is pleasant, although not great literature.

The book collection of the library is constantly enriched by the addition of memorial books. Two very lovely ones were added this past week. "Techniques of Painting the Waterfront" by Henry Gasser, will be extremely valuable to the artists of the community. It combines hints on techniques with beautiful illustrations, some in color and some in black and white. Another beautiful book is "The Varsailles I Love" by Robert Descharnes. This is a lovely book of text and photographs of Versailles and will appeal to many readers.

Joseph F. Dineen is the author of a very timely book called "The Kennedy Family." It gives the background of one of the leading political figures of our time. Reading it should add to our understanding of one of the outstanding political figures of our day. Emmet John Hughes is one of the more literate commentators on the world scene. His new book is called "America the Vincible." It is a searching critique, a bold appraisal, an eloquent plea for America to adopt a world role and affect on Southwest-strength.

One of the great men of American letters was Mark Twain. A recent book by Kenneth S. Lynn appraises his role and affect on Southwestern humor. Reading i tis a glorious experience.

An interesting history of one phase of the growth of our neighboring state of Texas is "The Texas Republic," written by William Ransom Hogan. It is a serious and important book and merits real study. A most unusual book is "Open Wider, Please" by J. Stanley Clark. This a history of dentistry, which should interest many readers in the profession. "Arabian Sands" by Wildred Thesiger is a remarkable true story of one of the last great adventures of modern times. It is an account of five years travel by the author with the nomads who inhabit the unknown deserts of southern Arabia.

Beyond All Reason One You'll Like

BEYOND ALL REASON By Veanna Lee Wietrick (Vantage, $2.95).

In this short novel Veanna Lee Wietrick has written a book anxious mothers will want to give their quixotic daughters of marriageable age, pointing out that its heroine is a young (twentyish) wife "just about your age." It clarifies the sometimes dull but eternally solid blessings of marriage to a good provider, and motherhood.

April Kingsley escapes narrow academic halls populated largely by lonely, aging spinsters, and marries — on the rebound — an unpolished, solid, plodding, steady, sterling young man. Their flight to the woods, to which he is native, leaves her miserable and desperate for stimulation after a very brief honeymoon.

And now April tries to reconcile herself to living with George Lind, the man she has married, and to the virtues of life with him. Just as he is packing his bags, convinced that she will never return his love, she realizes that she must come to a decision. . .

In her struggle to decide upon a course that will determine the way her life is to go, April finds herself caught in a dream:

April could see a little. . . . She could see George now. He was trying to come to her, but something was stopping him. It was a woman who was trying to seduce him. She was giving him the tenderness that April never had . . . Each time he tried to break away, she clung more tightly, until he became too weak to offer much resistance — for he wanted to give his love to a woman who would cherish it . . . . . .

April forgot her own predicament. She had to retrieve George. She struggled toward him, not blindly, but with the will of one who had learned what he wants, and what is finally important . . She had been searching without knowing what she sought. . .

The Little War Of Private Post Excellent Book

SEPARATE PEACE

Unusual Novel All About Boys

A SEPARATE PEACE. By John Knowles. Macmillan. $3.50.

A tree by the little river out beyond the Playing Fields, and a flight of slightly worn white marble steps in one of the academy buildings — it is to these two fearsome sites that Gene Forrester returns, and it is here that he begins the searing story of himself and his roommate Phineas.

The place is Devon, a New Engand preparatory school; the time is 1942, with a war still to win; and the boys are hung up on a common dilemma: To stay in class and wait for their country's call or enlist in a branch of service of their own choosing. Gene and his friend Finny are under the pressure of extra summertime courses. Finny, who acts the leader, entices Gene away from his books down to the riverbank, or off to the shore which is strictly out of bounds. He dares Gene to jump from a limb of the tree to the water; with a big leap a boy can land where it's deep, but if he misses he's apt to break his back on the ground beneath. Once Finny catches Gene just off balance and saves him from a dreadful fall. Then Finny, with Gene not far behind him, steps out for his jump and, as Gene tells it, "my knees bent and I jounced the limb."

It had occurred to Gene, in a flash of insight, that Finny's maneuvers to draw him away from his desk were Finny's way of assuring his own school - boy supremacy. Finny excelled in sports, Gene outdid him in studies; the appearance of friendship masked Fenny's guile, he didn't want Gene's company so much as he wanted Gene thwarted in his studies. The friend was the enemy. Didn't he want to drag me down with him when he fell, Gene wonders accusingly; and Finny in traction in his hospital bed tells himself that he wants to forget, he insists he "just fell," he regrets a suspicion which he felt but is careful not to define.

You will remember not only Gene and Finny but a handful of other boys, Brinker, "Leper," or Quackenbush. You will chuckle at their wit and laugh at their "Winter Carnival" high jinks. But this is frighteningly serious business, at bottom. For a mere caprice, for a random flareup, a life is lost and a life is turned topsy - turvy. An error, a misjudgment, the pettiest misunderstanding, can be as deady as gun or knife. This brilliant picture of boys and their triumphs and their hurts makes a remarkably touching novel.

Eden's Full Circle Hits All The Points

FULL CIRCLE: THE MEMOIRS OF SIR ANTHONY EDEN. Houghton Mifflin. $6.95

Sir Anthony writes his second book first.

After service in World War I, and some subordinate government roles which led to meetings with Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin in the 1930s, the author entered Churchill's cabinet in 1940. His major participation in Commonwealth affairs ran from 1951 to 1957, Foreign Secretary to 1955 and Prime Minister to 1957, when, after the Suez disaster, he resigned at the bidding of three doctors who diagnosed a recurrent illness as very serious. He intends to write about those early years, and the failure of the democracies to block the dictators. But he decided the more urgent subject was our new failure: We have come "full circle" smack up against a new set of dictators, and he gives precedence to our dealings with them.

Some domestic problems are disposed of in the course of these 675 pages: Budget, politics, labor, taxes, among others. But mostly these concern the author's abiding interest and activity in foreign affairs. Russia looms large, there is a lot about Korea, Indo-China, France, Germany, Israel, Egypt. But the United States looms largest, and if there is one thread that holds the whole absorbing story together, it is the uneasy relationship with Secretary of State Dulles.

From early in their acquaintance, Sir Anthony found Dulles "a preacher in a world of politics (who) seemed sometimes to have little regard for the consequence of his words." He blames Dulles for a too warlike attitude in Southeast Asia, and a misunderstanding of France's difficulties. He charges Dulles was actually on the point of interfering with British shipping, when the United States feared trouble in Guatemala in 1954. When Egypt under Farouk wanted to overrun the Sudan, American Ambassador Jefferson Caffery in Cairo "was not wholly behind us," Sir Anthony claims. He complains of Washington's reluctance to join the Baghdad Pact which it helped inspire.

But a third of the book, the climactic section, is Suez. In midsummer 1956 Dulles abruptly cancelled plans for the Aswan Dam loan to Nasser. Nasser promptly seized the canal. Dulles said he ought to be made to "disgorge." But for every two steps forward taken by the British in conjunction with the French, Dulles or Eisenhower generally took one step back. Sir Anthony's firm words to Nasser would be toned down by remarks in Washington; the Canal Users' Assn., was undermined when the United States didn't pay dues to it. "It is at least a grim possibility" Israel would have been destroyed if she had not attacked Egypt, says Sir Anthony. But when he and Pineau committed their armed forces, the United States led the chorus of fierce denunciation: and despite Eisenhower's promise to clear up problems when fighting ended, fundamentally they "still remain untouched."

Sir Anthony based his whole course in the Suez crisis on his conviction that it was easier to scotch Nasser at the start, as it would have been easier to stop Hitler once and for all in the Rhineland. Whether his method was right, no one can deny that his prophecy of calamity has been fulfilled, and no one can help regretting that he got some assurances from our government that were not implemented.

It would be hard to overestimate the value of these memoirs. Ostensibly the autobiography of a very likable English gentleman, scholar and statesman, this is really a staggering attack on Dulles and his or our foreign policy. It is both urbane and deadly. Here we are as others see us: we can't afford to skip a page of it.

Our Times Good Background On New Magazine

Our Times, edited by Max Ascoli (Farrar, Strauss and Cudahy): Marking the first 10 years of The Reporter, a magazine that started as "an experiment in adult journalism." The book is a collection of representative articles from back issues. Based on current events in politics, public affairs, people in the news and other headlined topics, these pieces are still timely and interesting.

Names, This Novel Has Them

HERE LIES THE HEART. By Mercedes de Acosta. Reynal. $5.75.

Everybody may have to write his life story in one or another of his incarnations, this author says, and she's glad she got hers out of the way in this particular sojourn on earth. Presumably that means, too, that everybody has to read such a story in some one of his incarnations, so we have the chance to be glad, at least reasonably glad, with her.

Born into a blue - blood, wealthy Spanish family, brought up and educated in this country and abroad, Miss de Acosta wrote poems published in Harriet Monroe's Poetry magazine and in separate volumes, did novels, and turned out scripts for Hollywood and plays for the New York and Paris stage. A Lucy Stoner, she always used her maiden name, though for 15 years she was married to painter Abram Poole, brother of Ernest who wrote "The Harbor." Her family was Catholic, but she was introduced to Eastern religion by Kahlil Gibran; believes in psychic phenomena; and has been associated with Eileen Garrett, whom she calls a great medium, perhaps best known in the book world however as founder of Creative Age Press. She says she has wished for rain, and it rained; for snow, and it snowed. In a house into which she once moved, there was a constant file of ants across her ground floor. The owner promised to destroy them, but Miss de Acosta took care of it herself: To spare their million little lives, she talked to them, veered them off in another direction, and got them out of their danger and out of her way.

She tells extraordinary stories — how Isadora Duncan danced for her in a Long Island barn; how Sinclair Lewis pulled a chair out from under her at a dinner so she gave her head a painful whack: how she went to a bullfight with artist Zuloaga and Spain's King Alfonso: how Toscanini made sure of the gift of a Guardi painting; how she went on a wild ride with F. Scott Fitzgerald; how she wrote Amy Lowell a letter, then wired her regrets at having misspelled a word in it, and got a telegram back from the eccentric New England poet: "Which one?" She was a close friend of Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich. She rattles off names like mad: In Paris "I met Rodin, Bourdelle, Henri Bergson, Bidieux, Anatole France, Boldini, Yvette Guilbert, D'Annunzio, Edith Wharton, Helleu, Sarah Bernhardt, Jacques Copeau" — who else was there, except maybe Alice B. Toklas, whom also she knows. In New York for dinner "I invited . . . Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Doris Keane, Jeanne Eagels, Alla Nazimova, Elsie Ferguson, Constance Collier, Laurette Taylor, Helen Hayes, Helen Menken and Katherine Cornell."

This book might be used to divide sheep from goats, Social Register from nonentities. If you know personally 25 of these people, you belong; only 10, you're on the make; nobody, you're hopeless. Miss de Acosta doesn't elevate this into a social document, but limits herself to the personal aspects of life. If everybody in it buys a copy, it'll be a best seller.

Science And You

By JOSEPH L. MYLER

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States stands on the brink of bacterial warfare—against insect enemies.

A new insecticide, which derives its killing power from a rod-like bacterium named bacillus thuringiensis, is expected to go on the market late this year after exhaustive field tests by the Agriculture Department and others.

Bacillus thuringiensis, or B. T. for short, is said to be deadly to such crop scourges as the alfalfa caterpillar, the imported cabbage worm, the salt marsh (or woolly bear) caterpillar, the tobacco horn worm, and the European corn borer.

It does not hurt useful insects, such as honey bees, and is described as harmless to warm-blooded animals, including man.

Disclosure that B. T. was about to be sent into battle against harmful insects in this country followed a report from Prague that the Biological Institute of the Czechoslovak Academy of Sciences already was producing an insecticide containing the bacillus.

An article published in Prague and distributed in translation here by the Commerce Department described the Czech work as "the first industrial production of a bacterial warfare in the battle against insects, anywhere."

This, it was learned, is not the case. Three U.S. companies have been turning out a B. T. insecticide in ton lots since 1958 for experimental use. The University of California had been making it in test quantities for years.

In fact, the Czechs got their first samples of the bacterial agent from this country. Scientists have been studying B. T. for a long time. Dr. Edward A. Steinhaus of the University of California at Berkeley revived interest in it more than 10 years ago.

This particular bacterium appears to be choosy as to what insect larvae it will attack. This is its great virtue. Scientists say it can be dusted or spread directly on crops without hurting anything but harmful insects.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With the performance of "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," now an event of Monroe dramatic history, three is a crowded agenda for the balance of the month. On the local entertainment scene, March may have come in quietly, but the big winds are still blowing.

Fred Waring's "Stereo Festival" is billed for a March 11 performance at Neville Auditorium here. Please note the change in the date — the original booking was for March 14.

Overlapping are performances of the Oberammergau Passion Play slated here March 22, 23 and 24, and the National Ballet of Canada on March 23, loomed for those who also hold memberships in the La. Tech series. Concert enthusiasts who want to take in these two events may do so easily since the Passion Play, booked under sponsorship of the Twin City Symphony, will give two performances on each of the three days slated here.

AND FURTHERMORE

To finish off the week, John Browning, a new bright light on the piano solo horizon, will play a recital on the evening of March 25, at Neville Auditorium. So with the American Oberammergau play depicting the life of Christ, the National Ballet of Canada and the performance of John Browning, pianist, professional talent will crowd the next-to - last week in March.

COMPOSERS' CORNER

A composers' conference has been scheduled next December in Dallas, with Darius Milhaud as moderator. Scores of interested composers may be sent now to the Dallas Public Library for possible selection and discussion at the meet. Those selected will receive a going over by Paul Creston, Kent Kennon and Guy Fraser Harrison in addition to Milhaud. The event is being sponsored jointly by the Dallas Public Library, the Symphony and Dallas alumnae of Mills College.

If there is any field which needs an injection of life blood, it is the field of serious musical composition.

This scale - runner had the opportunity to hear a broadcast of a Brahms symphony several nights ago and as to form and content, the old vehicle — composed around 1880 — simply had more to offer than more recent symphonies.

Of course, the conductor, on the program, Bruno Walter, is "modern" in the sense that he is still living. Also the members of the orchestra were alive and the very medium of broadcasting is more modern than the Brahms symphony. So we are not going backwards on all fronts.

But the possibility that musical composition has reached some sort of dead end is not so much ghost talk. Consider the art of oratory and the languages of ancient Greece and Rome. They're gone and not in the sense of the beatniks.

Perhaps a calling together of the better minds in the business will serve to give the art something to grow on. And the list of names at the Dallas conference contains some of the finest living composers.

In this album Mavis returns with twelve wonderful love songs, set in sparkling arrangements for her by Jack Marshall. She has a rich spacious sounding vocie which she handles with sensitivity and taste.

CLASSICAL

CASELLA: "LA GIARA." and RESPIGHI: "THE PINES OF ROME." Fernando Previtali - Orchestra of Accademia Di Santa Cecilia, Rome. London CS 6111 (stereo). In the early part of the twentieth century some Italian composers, perceiving that their country had long neglected instrumental music for vocal, set out consciously to redress the balance. Of these two of the most distinguished were Respighi and Casella, near contemporaries. The works by which they are represented here were both composed in 1924 and were actually first performed within a month of each other. Despite surface parallels, their music is very different, Respighi's being more opulent in texture and deriving in style from his master Rimsky-Korsakov, and Casella's is cleaner - cut and tending towards the 'neo-classic' idiom which was shortly to become popular among composers.

PUCCINI: "TOSCA." Opera in three acts. Orchestra and Chorus of the Accademia Di Santa Cecilia Rome. London OSA 1210 (stereo), A 4235 (LP), two records. Renata Tebaldi as Tosca, Mario Del Monaco as Cavaradosse, and George London as Scarpia. Tosca differs greatly from Puccini's "La Boheme" and "Madama Butterfly" the heroine, although she suffers for her love, is not one of those child-like creatures who form a fairly constant factor in Puccini's works. Tosca is a mature woman and her charm is without the childish appeal that both Mimi and Cio-Cio-San count as special weapons in their armory. In addition to this change the opera shows a marked leaning towards violence, there are four violent deaths and the special horror that comes from political policing and its accompanying terror and torture changes the whole atmosphere. Renata Tebaldi, the greatest soprano of our time, gives a fascinating performance in this album of London's.

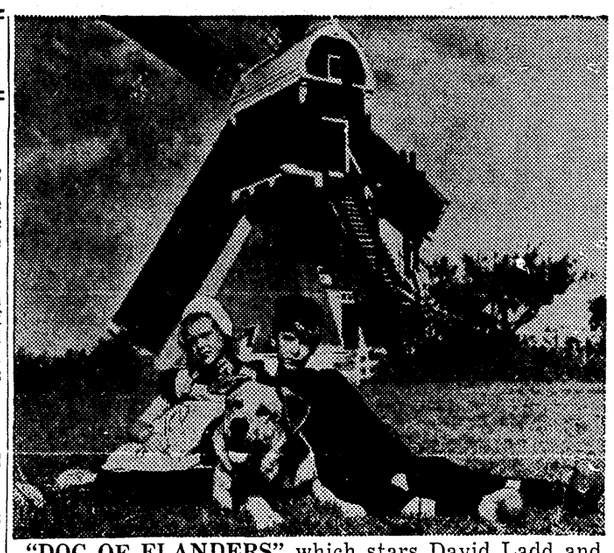
HIS RX FOR MOVIES

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What the movie industry needs is "a good hypo of daring, mixed with imagination and guts," says a young actor who claims type casting is strangling the business.

Jack Lord played all sorts of roles in legitimate theater and television in New York. In Hollywood, however, he declares: "The majority of people who cast pictures can't see beyond the last part you did. They play it safe."

This tendency has built a star system with a dozen men at the top commanding astronomical salaries and percentage deals, says Lord. He points out the studios all grumble about paying a high price for names which draw customers.



"DOG OF FLANDERS" which stars David Ladd and his faithful dog "Old Yeller" opens today at the Paramount Theatre. The CinemaScope-De Luxe Color Twentieth Century Fox release was filmed in Belgium and Holland.

'Dog Of Flanders' Now At Paramount

Twentieth Century - Fox brings Ouida's classic juvenile novel, "A Dog Of Flanders," to the cinemascope and color screen opening at the Paramount Theater, starring Alan Ladd's son, David, as Nello Daas. The simple yet poignant story of a boy, his aging grandfather and a dog they find was penned by the famed Dutch novelist in 1890 and, subsequently, has been reprinted in every language, including over 80 printings in the United States.

More specifically, "A Dog Of Flanders" tells the story of a poor little Dutch boy and his dream of one day painting like the masters. Wandering all alone in what he feels is a completely hostile world after his last relative — his impoverished, lame grandfather — dies, the lost lad manages to find love and consolation from two fine friends. One of these friends is a hot-tempered painter from nearby Antwerp who sees talent in the plucky boy. The other is his faithful dog.

Filmed entirely in Holland and Belgium by Producer Robert Radnitz, "A Dog of Flanders" features Antwerp's famed Cathedral Onze Lieve Vrouw and many of Ruben's greatest masterpieces for the first time on the motion picture screen.

In fact, producer Radnitz had to obtain special clerical and governmental permission to film shots of "The Deposition" in the cathedral, which is considered by experts to be the rarest of all Rubens works.

Directed by James B. Clark from a screenplay by Ted Sherdeman, the Ouida classic received critical raves at advance screenings and is considered by preview fans as one of Hollywood's warmest family films of the decade.

In addition to its appealing story, the Twentieth Century-Fox film is a wonderful deluxe color travelogue of the picturesque Dutch and Belgium countryside, featuring the colorful farmhouses, windmills and canals of the rural areas of Hollywood and Belgium.

Broadway

By JACK BAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — The works of two established playwrights have failed to add any ecstacy to the Broadway scene which has been drab so far in 1960.

Many looked forward to the first New York production of a play by France's late great writer, Albert Camus, but the spectacular production that has been given his "Caligula" at the 54th Street Theater is a disappointing one for the most part.

It is true that Britain's Kenneth Haigh gives an inspired and many-faceted performance in the title role of the mad Roman emperor, but this isn't enough to carry the play.

It is also true that the play is a provocative one as regards human values, and that there is enough good argument in it for several dramas. But the fact is that it is much better understood in the reading than in performance despite Haigh's fine work.

The play is concerned with Caligula's change, after the death of his sister-mistress Drusilla, from a fairly reasonable ruler to one surfeited with the world who embarks on a campaign of senseless killings and debaucheries. He says he is trying to prove that pure logic is the only way of life, which, of course, negates the give and take of human relationships. He expects to be assassinated and is.

Sidney Lumet's direction has resulted in a bravura staging replete with fantastically armed soldiers, awesome settings and so on. Such an approach is understandable and, in a way, effective, yet there are times when it seems to be too much of a good thing for the welfare of the play as a whole. I take exception also to the manner in which Lumet has his Roman patricians acting like a bunch of caricatures instead of characters.

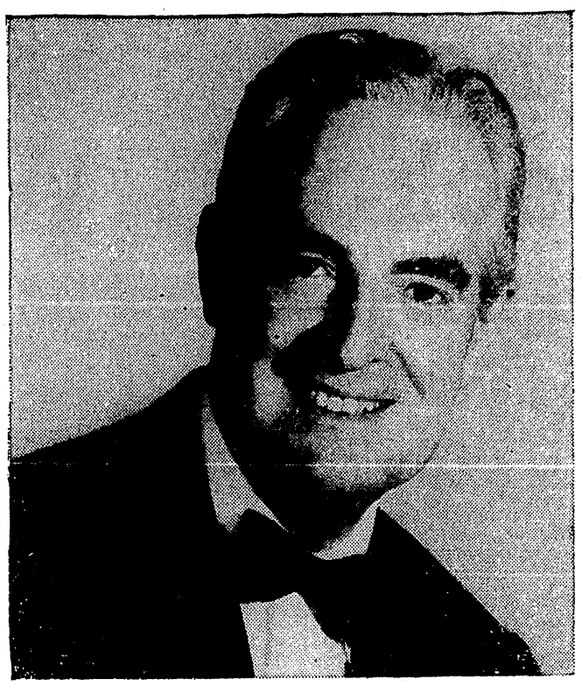
The second playwright to come off with less than acclaim is Ketti Frings, who wrote the prize-winning "Look Homeward, Angel" of two seasons ago.

Her "The Long Dream," based on a novel by Richard Wright, is a racial melodrama that has nothing new to say in this line and says what it does in a rather routine way. Lloyd Richards' direction leaves considerable to be desired, especially in view of the excellent work he did his first time out with "A Raisin in the Sun."

Opera and concert baritone Lawrence Winter, essaying a dramatic role, is outstanding as a Mississippi Negro who has had some financial success in shady enterprises thanks to bribe payments to a white chief of police. His way of life is a coldly calculated one solely for the purpose of making things easy for his adored son.

A tragedy upsets the crooked deals, and the Negro is determined that the chief is going to suffer as much from the investigation as he will. The fatal shooting of the son restores the father to some sense of right and dignity.



FRED WARING will lead his internationally-known musical aggregation in a local concert Friday night at the Neville High School auditorium. The program, beginning at 8:15 p.m., is under the auspices of the Northeast State Concerts Association.

HERE FRIDAY

Fred Waring Will Present Concert

Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians will appear in Monroe in a concert at Neville High School auditorium Friday under the auspices of the Northeast State Concerts Association. The concert, open to members only, will begin at 8:15 p.m.

Vaudeville, Hollywood, radio, Broadway and television have all challenged, and been conquered by Fred Waring in a career that has spanned four decades.

From the time he twirled one of his mother's curtain rods topped with a glass door knob, as leader of the Boy Scout Drum Corps in his hometown of Tyrone, Pa., Fred Waring's been making music. While still a lad, he formed the "Banjazzatra," a banjo band of four including the famed, frog-voiced Poley McClintock with whom he grew up. (Today, McClintock is the "ranking" member of the Waring organization.) The "Banjazzatra," which Fred gradually enlarged and later called "Waring's Collegians," played fraternity dates and club affairs, singing as they played . . . an inspiration from Mother Waring, a stalwart of the Tyrone Methodist Choir for 35 years. As engagements came pouring in for the colorful combo, Fred Waring, who'd been attending Penn State in the daytime, put aside his banjo for the leader's baton and manager's date book, deciding then and there that entertaining people was to be his life work.

In the 20's the name "Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians" was officially adopted. Under this title they became first a national sensation. Then, some years later, an international "institution."

During World War II, the Pennsylvanians added a steady string of appearances at war bond rallies, the New York Canteen, army camps and naval training stations to their daily radio show. They were available any time, for any worthy cause.

Little Theater

HELP! HELP! HELP! Everybody wants Little Theatre to put on another musical comedy but so far Ivan has not been able to fill out the cast for GUYS AND DOLLS. He needs ten or twelve more men who can sing, dance, and act. There are a few non-singing roles available too, so non - snigers please take notice. Hie yourselves out to the playhouse this very night or give Ivan a ring at FA 3-8413. We need you and we promise you an enjoyable experience that you'll never forget. As for skill in dancing or acting, you don't have to start with it. We have experts who can develop talents you may not even be aware of. Though down with the flu at the moment, Pat Watley, our choreographer, can make a dancer of you in ten easy (free!) lessons; and everybody has seen the smooth acting that Ivan can evoke even from novices. In the realm of singing - this is for fun, man, not for the Metropolitan Opera. Lloydell Birdsong will have you sounding like her last name. Come on, you who are hesitating. Try it and get stage struck for life.

Already rehearsing are John Pierpont, Lloyd Voorhies, Betty Bandy, Kay Harris, Diane Bennett, Arlyne Winn, W. J. Haddad Ray Barr, V. P. Dalrymple, Garland Moore, Curtis Rape, Margaret Friant, Charlene Correro, Patsy Cooper, Joe Wayne Johnston, and Dick Grider. Some of these people were in Pajama Game and Boy Friend. They know how much work lies ahead, but they wouldn't want to miss the wonderful satisfactions which outweigh any personal inconveniences.

How we wish we could have been in our new theatre for this musical! Instead of that still deferred paradise, we are once more shifting to arena style in the Selman Field Playhouse - no small job. Sidney Gill, Larry Shipman, Ray Magruder and Bill Eason and maybe a few others have been our highly appreciated muscle men - unscrewing the seats from the floor and fastening them to platforms on four sides of the room. That's a real engineering feat.

Up from New Orleans last week came Sue Snyder Levy to spend several days in Bastrop with her parents, Shirley and David Snyder, who are most loyal members of Little Theatre.

Did you happen to see in the Feb. 28 issue of the New York Times the rave notices of an off Broadway play called "Come Share My House"? The leading lady, Elisa Loti, was interviewed by Arlene Frances substituting for Jack Parr the other night. Critics call Elisa Loti the discovery of the year- but of more interest to us is the fact that our Monroe boy, Louis Guerriero (known as Louis Girard on the stage) has a very substantial character part in the show.

See you at rehearsal!

DEATH TOLL RISES

SHANNON, Ireland (UPI)—The number of victims in the Alitalia airliner crash here on Feb. 26 rose to 34 Friday with the death of 50-year-old Antonio Fragapane, an Italian national. All but two of the 18 remaining survivors were out of danger, officials said.

"ON THE BEACH" starring Ava Gardner and Gregory Peck opens Sunday, March 13, at the Paramount Theatre.

Gotham Woman Catches Snow With Tongue

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The lady stuck her tongue out right in the middle of Fifth Avenue.

Sounds like an unladylike thing for a lady to do, but the lady had reasons. It was snowing, and she had never seen snow before.

"Is this really it? I can't believe it," cried luscious - looking Karen Steele as the swift falling flakes dissolved on her tongue and piled up in pretty drifts on her enormous eyelashes.

"This is my first stay in New York and I certainly never expected to see snow. It tastes. . . m-m-m-m-. . .wonderful."

This hard boiled town needs more soft - boiled tourists like actress Steele. Too many of the transients, particularly from Hollywood, go out of their way to knock the old town just to show how sophisticated they are. It isn't often that one falls in love with the place over a little snowfall and even goes around collecting matchbooks from hotels and restaurants as souvenirs.

Such unfettered exuberance might indicate a real hick, but actually Karen, who is blonde, beautiful and built, has seen a lot of the world in her 23 years.

She was born and raised in the Hawaiian Islands, where her family was in the pineapple business. Karen was sent to a convent school in Honolulu, then to Rollins College in Florida and made several trips to Europe with her parents. Her father is a Bostonian of English descent, her mother a Californian of French and Danish stock. Between them they speak 14 languages to Karen's three — English, Polynesian and Japanese.

Daddy, who now administers the Caroline Islands for the U. S. government and lives on the South Pacific island of Truk, was appalled at her decision to become an actress but has since become an avid collector of her clippings.

"He saw me in a German-language edition of 'Marty' and immediately became a fan. I don't know what he'll say when he sees me in "The Rise and Fall of Legs Diamond."

LOOKS 'EM OVER

St. Matthew's In Finals

The old grads of St. Matthew's High School, who have never had much to really whoop it up about in the way of championship athletic teams, find themselves likened to a desert suddenly vitalized by a rainstorm. Everything is blossoming in this sudden release of school pride that has been bottled up so long. It's all because the Fighting Irish are just one step away from a Louisiana state basketball championship.

The St. Matthew's crowd really enjoyed Friday night when Coach Jim Mahoney's boys reached the title round of the state Class A race by defeating DeQuincy High, 53-46. If they can hurdle LaRose-Cutoff as well, the state throne is theirs.

One of the oldest prep schools in the state, St. Matthew's had never won a district championship until last year. The Irish had campaigned for years as Class B in football, basketball, and baseball. Football was dropped after the 1956 season, the cage sport became the major Irish offering, and Jim Mahoney was picked as the man to develop the budding show of cage might left when Jay Broussard departed to coach Loreauville.

Mahoney's first request to the school was elevation by application (the school still has Class B enrollment) to Class A. The higher class would give a lift in morale, Mahoney figured.

Folks who saw John Varino, Frankie Accorda, Buddy Embanato, Victor Zagone, Charles Biggar, and Sam Marsala storm DeQuincy were made to realize, if they hadn't already, that the Irish have "arrived" on the state sports scene. They have won 42 games this year while losing seven for the most active season in St. Matthew's history regardless of wins and losses. Only LaRose-Cutoff can now challenge the Irish claim as the state's best of their class. We await the decision.

While one area team was being shorn of a crown Friday night, another was taking one. Monroe's Neville High School girls had their two-year reign as double-A queens ended when Springhill stopped them, 48-30, but the Lake Providence High girls backed Betty Lou Johnson's 36-point effort with the 57-58 defeat of Pioneer to win the state Class B championship. And the Winnsboro girls, at the same time, got a 37-point production from all-state Claudine Watson to beat Winnfield, 48-36, earning a finals Class A shot at Mt. Carmel in New Iberia.

The West Monroe girls, who still claim the Louisiana triple-A championship as they were ruling when the class abandoned state title play, had to end their season at the district level after a campaign in which they lost only one game, that to Pioneer in the Ouachita tournament. They feel that loss has been avenged in a round-about way as Pioneer fell to Winnsboro, beaten by West Monroe, and yet Pioneer's strength is evident in the fact that they're state title runners-up of their class, and Winnsboro is in the finals of their classification.

Autos Or Sports

See where The Athletic Institute (209 S. State St., Chicago 4, Ill.) has announced results of a national survey with this view:

"The parents who complain about sports participation as hindering school work, better take a closer look at a survey of 1,455 junior and senior high school students, which showed that automobile ownership hurt the modern teen-ager's performance in school. Students who own cars are more likely to be found in the lowest quarter in scholastic standings. Their grades drop even further when their study time is cut by the part time jobs they must hold to pay for the operation and maintenance of their automobiles."

Sports Car Running

Mansfield is the attraction of automobile racing addicts today for sports car races that end a two-day production for the medium and small cars dominating the field with their more expensive sports machine brethern.

Events are arranged for all classes, giving drivers of the smaller, less powerful machines a chance to take home some of the trophy loot. The Mansfield Jaycees are sponsoring the races at the DeSoto Parish Airport off highway 171.

Long Betters World Shot Mark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dallas Long, sophomore at the University of Southern California, Saturday bettered the world shot put record by 5 inches with a toss of 63 feet 7 inches.

His heave came on his final throw in the Southern Pacific AAU Relays at East Los Angeles Junior College.

The existing record for a 16-pound shot is 63-2, set by Parry O'Brien in 1956.

Long's mark is subject to weighing of the shot and surveying of the area to see that it conforms with international regulations.

Eight Marks Bettered At Lake Charles

LAKE CHARLES, La. (Special) — Northeast's swift Indians ran away from McNeese's once-powerful track squad here yesterday afternoon, winning 15 first places and sharing another to take a dual meeting of Gulf States Conference rivals, 103 points to 38.

Twins Don and Dave Styron led a Northeast assault that bettered eight GSC records, the Styrons accounting for four of the record-bettering marks.

Dave won the 100-yard dash in 9.6, one-tenth of a second faster than the conference record he shares with Louisiana Tech's Bruce Lenoir. He breezed through the 220 in 20.7, half a second better than his record.

Don's time of 14.1 in the high hurdles bested his league mark of 14.2 and his 22.6 clocking in the lows bettered his league mark of 23.1.

Distance ace Don "Buddy" Eiland galloped the two-mile in 9:31.5, :10.2 better than his conference record. Junior college transfer Hoy Rogers sailed the discus 153 feet and ⅝ of an inch, almost two feet farther than the record.

Freshman sensation John Pennell pole vaulted 13 feet and six inches, three and ⅝ inches higher than Jim Allen's GSC record.

The Tribe 440 relay team won that event in 41.6, well under the record set by Northeast in 1958 of 42 flat.

Besides winning their specialties, the Styrons also ran on the winning 440 and mile relay teams and Dave ran on the victorious 330 relay foursome, tied for first in the high jump and finished second in the broad jump.

The only undisputed first place won by McNeese, GSC champion in 1958, was the borad jump where record-holder Don Troutman jumped 21-9 to win. Fred Thompson and Darrell Ocker of McNeese tied Dave Styron for first in the high jump at 5-10.

Other first places for Northeast on the cold and windy afternoon were won by Jim Mouser in the 440, Dick Hays in the 880, Eiland in the mile, Rogers in the shot put, and Jerry Dyes in the Javelin.

Hays, Roger Beumer and the Styrons won the 440 relay for Lew Hartzog's Indians, defending league champions, Gene Christen, Mouser, Beumer and Dave Styron took the 880 and the famed Tribe team of the Styrons, Mouser and Hays captured the mile relay.

The victory was the second straight in as many starts for Northeast. The Indians easily won the indoor Coliseum Relays in Montgomery, Ala., two weeks ago.

Northeast will compete in the Southwestern Recreation Meet in Fort Worth, Tex., next week.

Salley scored 49 points to match Longville's total and climax a tremendous touranment. The Pleasant Hill star ended up with a total of 115 points in the three-game tournament. He scored 41, including all 10 of his team's points in an overtime period as Pleasant Hill edged French Settlement, 82-78, in a semifinal clash.

Jesse Bridges contributed 20 points to the Pleasant Hill offense in the final game while Bobby Smith paced Longville with 17. Pleasant Hill led at the end of each period in the final, 18-11, 41-21 and 64-35.

Sybil Wright racked up 26 points for Negreet in the girls' final. Annie Bandy got 22 to spark Atlanta. Negreet was ahead by slim margins at the end of the first three periods, 13-9, 22-20 and 34-29, before moving away in the fourth.

Longville defeated St. Mary's, playing without ace pointmaker Walter Ledet, who broke a leg in Friday's first - round game, in the other boys' semifinal, 37-34. Bobby Smith scored 14 points for the winners and Lester Lee got 11 for St. Mary's. Butch Little got 33 for French Settlement in his team's semifinal loss to Pleasant Hill.

French Settlement squeezed by St. Mary's, 57-56, in the consolation battle with Little scoring 31. Billy Maggio got 23 for St. Mary's.

Negreet downed Longville, 52-40, and Atlanta stopped Centerville, 57-41, in the girls' semifinals. Miss Wright scored 24 for Negreet, Doris Coleman 37 for Longville, Patty Bennett 24 for Atlanta and Jackie Drinkwater 22 for Centerville.

Longville took a 55-50 decision in the consolation game as Miss Coleman hit for 34 points. Miss Drinkwater got 22 for Centerville.

Hagan, Pettit Guide Hawks Past Lakers

Hagan's clutch shot wiped out a Brilliant effort by Minneapolis' Elgin Baylor, who scored 35 points and whose two free throws with five seconds left in overtime apparently had won the game for the Lakers.

A few minutes earlier Baylor tipped in a field goal with five seconds remaining in regulation to send the game into overtime at 98-98.

The 6-5 Baylor, who hit 11 of 22 field goal attempts, 13 of 17 free throws and gathered in 15 rebounds, scored all of the Lakers' eight points in overtime. He got 31 of his points in the second half and overtime after a four-point first half.

Pettit, meanwhile, bagged six of the Hawks overtime points while Hagan got three.

The Lakers, who clinched third place and a playoff berth in the NBA's Western Division a few days ago, led at the first quarter 27-23, 53-52 at halftime and 77-74 at the end of three quarters.

For St. Louis, which has nailed down the Western Division seasonal title, it was the ninth triumph in 12 games with the Lakers.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Kentucky's Wildcats jumped to an 8-0 lead and were never seriously troubled as they downed Pitt 73-66 Saturday night.

The victory ended Kentucky's basketball season with an 18-7 record. Pittsburgh's final mark is 11-14.

Unanimous Vote For John Varino

Towering John Varino of St. Matthew's drew unanimous vote to head the 1960 All-Twin Cities basketball team and Irish mentor Jim Mahoney named "Coach of the Year" for the second straight season in a poll of nine local coaches and sports writers conducted by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Joining Varino, the 6-4 nucleus of Mahoney's Class A playoff squad, were teammate Buddy Embanato, Roy Lee Scroggins of West Monroe, Raymond Dingler of Southside and Harry "Rabbit" Crowe of Ouachita, the only repeater from the 1959 team.

Averaging a shade under six feet, the all-star quintet could field a scoring powerhouse in almost any league with an aggregate total of 81 points per game.

Varino and Embanato, who promise to give St. Matthew's a contender for state laurels again next year, are the only juniors on the squad. Dingler, Scroggins and Crowe are seniors.

Laboring relatively unnoticed at the south Monroe school, Dingler posted the highest scoring average of the five with a 19.7 mark in 19 games. The 5-10 forward is the son of Lawrence Dingler of Harrisonburg.

Varino developed fast after an average season as a sophomore last year and turned into one of the top pivotmen in this area. He surpassed the 30-point mark in several games and hauled down numerous all-tournament honors.

Although he ranked close behind Dingler for the Twin Cities scoring title with an 19.0 average, one of Varino's most valuable assets to the Irish was his brilliant backboard work.

Through 48 games the lad with the Elvis Presley profile picked off an average of 19 rebounds per outing. His most proficient scoring weapon was a soft jump shot from the key. Varino is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Varino Sr. of 1717 South Grand.

Crowe, third in a line of brothers who have starred at Ouachita, was a near-unanimous pick on last year's all-star five and missed by only one vote on the current squad. A marked man from the start of the season, the 1959 district 1-AAA leading scorer showed his old form at times and wound up with a 14.7 point mark for a second division Lion team.

A natural knack for drawing fouls made the Ouachita ace a tricky ball handler and he possessed a deadly set shot from the outside. Crowe's parents are Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Crowe of 1602 Florida.

Embanato formed the backcourt punch that helped send St. Matthew's the farthest it has ever gone in post-season playoffs.

Accurate with a one-hander 20 feet out and equally adept driving layups, the hustling g poured 'em in at a rate of points per game.

A steady performer in clutch, Embanato provided Irish victory over quarter - foe West Lake with a 3 field goal with two seconds in an overtime period. He i son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. banato of 1009 N. 8th St.

Scroggins played on a thro inexperienced West Monroe but earned a spot on the all - squad with his aggressive play and a sharp shooting The only returning starter the 1959 Rebel club, Scro was the chief ball handler led his mates in scoring w 12.6 average.

The smallest man on the along with Dingler, Scroggi the son of Mr. and Mrs. J Hackworth of 415 Bawcom West Monroe.

Mahoney, a 24 - year- native son of Seminole, won "Coach of the Year" h by a landslide margin, taking first place votes. Neville George Davis was runnerup two.

Mahoney took over the rei St. Matthew's in 1958 and the Irish into a district char last season. This year the chial school went undefeated league games and faces La Cutoff for the state title this

BASEBALL PROSPECTS

Luffey Impressed With Tribesmen

Northeast Baseball Coach George Luffey says he is very impressed so far with the pitching as well as the hitting of his 1960 edition of the baseball Indians.

Luffey has back on his mound staff his two top pitchers and also two freshman that "are really impressive."

Jay Gross (6-2) and Jerry Rouse (5-2) were the top winners for the Tribe last season, picking up 11 of the team's 15 victories.

Also returning are sophomore Jerry Collins of Jena and Terry Reeves of Neville. Reeves is a junior and has been a mainstay for the Tribe for two seasons.

"Collins is probably the most improved boy on my staff," Luffey said. "The returning pitchers are looking extremely good and my freshmen are excellent prospects," Luffey added.

The Tribe squad has been hampered by bad weather and has worked out on relatively few occasions.

"The hitting has been good overall and we've got good potential power this year," Luffey said.

The Tribe has been making good use of their new pitching machine, nicknamed the "Spaceman" by the team.

"We are going to really have to double up on our practice sessions as soon as weather permits in order to get ready for our March 23 opener," Luffey said.

Jerry Godwin, Shreveport, and Bob Lockwood, Spearsville, are the cause of joy on the pitching staff thus far. Both freshman have looked extremely good in pre-season workouts.

Tribe pitchers and catchers have been driven indoors because of the bad weather. The team is now working out in the college gym.

The squad, which started out with over 35 prospects, has been cut back to about 6 over the regular roster of 18.

"With the first game less than three weeks away we have to take advantage of every day the sun shines and try to get ready," Luffey commented.

Shreveporters Lead Ladies Bowling Meet

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — A Shreveport team, Bolero West, took the lead Saturday night in the opening handicap team competition of the Louisiana Women's Bowling Assn. state tournament here.

Bolero West had a handicap total of 3,070 pins. A team representing the U.S. Army Engineers of New Orleans was next among the 92 teams competing the first night with 3,015 pins. Penney's of Shreveport was third with 2,944 pins.

The tournament will last four weekends with team competition on Saturday and doubles and singles events Sunday. Marie Probst of New Orleans, all-events winner last year, and Betty Payne of Lake Charles, the singles champion, are entered along with all other 1959 winners.

The tournament has drawn a record entry of 1,445 bowlers and 239 teams.

The low handicap bowlers and last year's champions are not scheduled to bowl until the last two weekends.

CUSTOM DICTATES POLICY

Segregation In Athletics Varies Across Southland

ATLANTA (AP)—Eleven years ago a great clamor went up when the Brooklyn Dodgers announced they would play three exhibition baseball games with the Atlanta Crackers.

The Dodger lineup included Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella, and Negroes and whites had never before played baseball together in this southern city.

The Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan howled. A bill was introduced in the Georgia legislature to ban mixed athletic events. Herman Talmadge., now a U.S. senator but then governor, said he would look into the matter.

Nothing, however, came of the furor. The Klan backed down. The bill didn't pass. And Talmadge did nothing.

The three-game series attracted record crowds. The fans were segregated—as they always had been. They cheered when Robinson and Campanella took the field. There were no untoward incidents.

Now, 11 years later, major league clubs come to tAlanta in the spring for exhibition games and no one even asks if a club carries Negroes on its roster.

That much acceptance of interracial athletics is evident—not just in Atlanta but throughout most of the South. Negroes have made other advances in southern sports during the past few years. Complete integration in sports, however, is not indicated in the immediate future.

Unlike the cases involving public transportation and schools, racial barriers in sports have been lowered gradually thus far without the force of federal law.

Segregation in sports is a matter of southern custom, not law. An Associated Press survey of 12 states from Virginia to Texas shows that not a single state has a law banning interracial athletics. Yet the custom is so deep-rooted that it has bordered on law—and the practice has been in force so long that some of the coaches questioned thought their states had laws to back up the custom.

A few cities—notably Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala.—have ordinances banning inter-racial sports. Virginia's legislature resolved that its elementary and high schools should not engage in mixed athletics, and that has the effect of law.

Louisiana passed a sports segregation law in 1956 but the U. S. Supreme Court knocked it down last year. Colleges in Louisiana have conflicting policies. Louisiana State University, a state-supported institution, will not compete against Negroes at home or away. A few years ago LSU canceled a game with Wisconsin because of the race situation.

Tulane and Loyola University, private colleges in New Orleans, have no such barriers. Last month Loyola played host to Loyola of Chicago for a basketball game. The visiting team included two Negroes. Fans applauded Clarence Red, a Negro, for his strong rebounding. This was the first inter-racial sports event in Louisiana in four years.

Mississippi's unwritten law against integration is so strong that Mississippi State, the Southeastern Conference basketball champion last year, could not represent the SEC in the NCAA district tournament. Mississippi officials feared State might be called on to oppose a team with Negro members. The same policy prevented the University of Mississippi from going to the NCAA baseball tournament.

Kentucky subbed for Mississippi State and Georgia Tech took over for Mississippi in NCAA play.

The segregation custom creates scheduling problems for many colleges in the deep South. The subject is a touchy one and coaches don't talk about it publicly. It is no secret, however, that fear of local opposition, particularly from politicians who control the purse strings for state-supported institutions, often prevents home-and-home series with integrated schools.

Again, there are exceptions. Texas and Kentucky colleges regularly play host to integrated teams. Duke, North Carolina, Arkansas, Arkansas State and the University of Miami, Fla. have been hosts to mixed teams.

Excluding the border-line states of Texas and Kentucky, where several schools filed mixed teams, The AP survey disclosed only one instance of a southern college carrying a Negro on an otherwise all-white roster. This is at North Carolina State, where senior Irwin Holmes won a letter in tennis the past two years.

In matches held at South Caroline and Clemson, however, Holmes did not compete. Coach John Kenfield Jr. of State said those schools reported they were not allowed to have inter-racial athletic contests.

Where inter-racial athletics are staged, the games usually are played without untoward incidents.

An exception was the Cotton Bowl game in Dallas last New Year's Day. A Negro on the Syracuse team accused a Texas player of calling him "a dirty nigger." The Longhorn player denied it but a near free-for-all developed on the field.

Negroes have been playing on professional baseball teams in deep South cities and small towns since the early 1950s. When Montgomery, first capital of the Confederacy, was in the class A South Atlantic League, its baseball team included Negro players. That was before the city ordinance banned Negroes.

Montgomery now has a team in the white class D Alabama-Florida League. The class A Southern Assn., which includes Birmingham, remains segregated.

Even in areas allowing interracial sports events, Negro athletes often feel effects of segregation. While they frequently use the same dressing room as their white teammates, they often are required to use separate dining and housing facilities.

Last winter the Boston Celtics went to Charlotte for a pro basketball game. Celtic star Bill Russell was denied a room at a major hotel. He stayed at a Negro hotel and vowed never to play in Charlotte again if he couldn't stay with his teammates.

Practices often differ within a matter of a few miles. In Dallas, home of Southern Methodist University, there is a hotel which will accept Negroes if they are members of an athletic team. Thirty miles away, in Fort Worth, home of Texas Christian, no hotel will accept Negroes.

Boxing matches between white and Negro fighters are commonplace in several of the South's principal fight cities, including Miami, Miami Beach and Dallas. White and Negro fighters have appeared on the same program in New Orleans but no mixed bouts have been held.

Several public golf courses in the South have integrated, some voluntarily and some under court order. In other instances, municipal courses have been sold or leased to private operators, a dodge to prevent integration.

Acceptance of Negroes in sports has proceeded to this extent without great fanfare and with a minimum of legal pressure. No one, however, predicted any further major moves toward complete integration in the immediate future.

TONY GRAFF

Long Shot Wins Louisiana Derby

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tony Graff, an 11-1 shot owned by Anthony Graffagnini, roared from last place at the head of the stretch to nip the favorite Yorktown by a nose and win the $50,800 Louisiana Derby at the Fair Grounds Saturday.

Yorktown, George D. Widener's previously unbeaten colt, was two lengths in front of T. A. Grissom's Lurullah. Baghatur, one-half of the Schneider-Haden entry, finished fourth.

The closing day crowd of 15,687 fans overlooked Tony Graff in the betting and the brown son of Graphic returned $24, $8.80 and $5.60. Yorktown, the 8-5 favorite, paid $3.20 and $2.80. Lurullah, coupled in the betting with the fourth-running Eight-Again, returned $5.80.

Tony Graff's time for the mile and one-eighth was 1:52, almost three full seconds off the track record set last year when Master Palynch won the Louisiana Derby.

It was the second victory of the year for Tony Graff, who won only $25,000 as a two-year-old. Graffagnini picked up a check for $35,975.

Eight Again and Louis Rogers' Chinese Bandit headed the 11-horse field when it swept past the grandstand for the first time. Jockey Harlon Dalton had Yorktown on the outside and stayed close to the leaders when the field moved into the first turn.

Down the back stretch run, Eight Again and Chinese Bandit still battled for the lead with Yorktown moving closer and Tony Graff running last.

Coming around the final turn, Dalton had Yorktown flying on the outside and the Widener colt took the lead in the middle of the track.

It looked all over less than a sixteenth of a mile from the wire with Yorktown showing better than a length margin.

But Chambers was a driving fury on Tony Graff and the Graffagnini colt just made it to the finish line ahead of the Widener ace.

Strung out behind the top four were John Kroese's Power Dam, S. I. Crew's Cuvier Relic, the Jones-Tuckahoe Farm's Persian Gold, Road House, who ran as an entry with Baghatur, Eight Again, Southland Stable's Equal-Liberator and Chinese Bandit was the tail ender.

It was the first loss for Yorktown in six starts since the first of the year. Yorktown did not race as a two year old.

CUBS

MESA, Ariz. (UPI) — Tony Taylor, the Cub's Cuban second baseman, joined the team Saturday and said he was ready to play.

PHILLIES

CLEARWATER, Fla. (UPI) — General Manager John Quinn of the Philadelphia Phils said Saturday he had offered raises to holdouts Ted Lepcio and Dave Philley and indicated he wasn't concerned by their failure to report or to contact him.

SHOWDOWN COMING UP

Big Ten Athletics Racked By Dramatic Tug-O-War

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Big Ten athletics are in the throes of a dramatic tug-o-war.

It is between the restraints of faculty control and the instinct of athletic directors to make their programs bigger and more popular.

Red Mackey of Purdue reportedly fused a bombshell that hit the postwinter Big Ten meetings which ended Saturday.

He is said to have made the motion that the conference ban all postseason sports competition except Olympic tryouts. This would involve all NCAA championship events.

The motion capped a chain reaction to a 5-5 vote by faculty representatives killing resumption of a Rose Bowl football contract and a 6-4 vote against participation in the Pasadena classic on an individual school basis.

A majority of faculty representatives are believed to be in favor of the Rose Bowl. But they are under instruction how to vote from the faculty bodies of their respective schools.

It is with these governing groups at high level—whether they be committees in which faculty men are in the majority, or councils or senates—that the issue is aimed.

Mackey's motion, it was reported, got a 9-1 favorable vote among the athletic directors. A motion was then made for reconsideration.

After a short cooling off period, the vote was 7-3 to put it before the joint 20-man group of faculty representatives and athletic directors.

A proposal then was made by startled facultymen to table it. This reportedly was defeated 18-2. Another motion was made to postpone it. This lost ot 16-4.

Finally, the faculty representatives voted in favor of the postseason ban by a majority, probably 6-4.

The matter is one of basic policy and must be returned to each school's governing athletic body for decision. Another round of instructional votes will be made and formal balloting by faculty representatives will be done at the May 18-21 meetings in East Lansing, Mich.

The athletic directors are gambling that the governing groups will take a look at the whole athletic picture in a new light, or at least with more objectivity, and vote against the post-season ban.

If they don't, the Big Ten's reign as a major athletic power could be threatened.

Faculty groups are said to be just simply against athletics, or any inroads they may have in the educational set-up.

But at the same time, it was pointed out, they fail to realize that one sure rallying point for the majority of the public is symbolized by athletics that interest induced by athletics is a big factor in carrying the financial burden of the educational program.

It is no secret football receipts carry entire athletic programs. Little, if any, money is made from other sports with the possible exception of basketball.

And, in some cases, football receipts are counted on to finance campus building programs now in progress.

In view of this, it was said, the high level faculty groups must realize that they can kill the goose that laid the golden egg.

Although the Rose Bowl contract, worth about $300,000 a year, was killed, there still is hope that participation on an individual school basis can continue. This, too, is up for institutional vote after being temporarily turned down 6-4 when Indiana switched its stand in a faculty representative session.

Rose Bowl receipts were split in 12 shares — two for participating team, and one each for the other nine schools and the conference office.

This now has gone down the drain. Further loss of revenue, with its ramifications of television proceeds, would be possible under the post-season ban.

KLINKER LEADING SCORER

Season Over For Greenie Cagers

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — The Tulane Green Wave closed out its 1959 - 60 varsity basketball season here Wednesday night with a 64-54 win over rival L.S.U. That victory marked the fourth consecutive win over the Tigers in two years, giving the Wave two straight years of sweeping the series. Tulane had whipped L.S.U. 72-58 last week at Baton Rouge.

With senior All - SEC forward Vic Klinker pacing the scoring with 18 points, Tulane chalked up its 13th win against 11 losses overall and closed out the season with an 8-6 SEC record good for a tie for fourth place with Ole Miss.

Klinker's 18 against LSU put him one point shy of taking over third place in Tulane's All-Time scoring leaders' list for career totals. The Lafayette, Indiana, product completed his career with 1012 points and is now ranked fourth among Tulane's scoring leader Jim Riffey with 1179 is first, Mel Payton at 1137 second and Hal Cervini at 1013 is third. All, however achieved their totals playing in many more games than Klinker. The 6-5 blond made it into the 1000 point club in 64 games while Riffey, Payton and Cervini put together their totals in 100, 96, and 82 games respectively.

Klinker, who finished this season the No. 2 scorer on the team with 356 points, just six behind pacesetter Jack Ardon, wound up his career with a 15.8 average for his three seasons.

Dick O'Brien, who has been high ranked nationally all season from the free throw line ended his career with 573 points in 55 games for a 10.2 mark. In three varsity seasons O'Brien hit 155 out of 185 free throws for an .837 percentage. This season he was 74 for 86 and .860 percent. Ron Mitchell, the other senior who finished against LSU, wound up with a 7.3 average on 504 points in 69 games.

Sophomore center Jack Ardon, the 6-10 Lakewood, N. J., product finished his first varsity year with 362 points for a 15.1 average per game. Named Soph of The Year in the SEC, Ardon lead Tulane all season in scoring and rebounding. His rebounding total for 24 games was 342 for a 14.2 average. His 362 scoring total puts him into the No. 9 position among Tulane scoring leaders on a one - season basis. Klinker is fifth in that category on his 382 junior points in the 1958 - 59 season.

3 UNANIMOUS CHOICES

Irish, Oak Grove Place 2 Players Each On All-2-A

Champion St. Matthew's and runnerup Oak Grove each placed two players on the district 2-A all-star team selected by the league's seven coaches.

Lanky John Varino and ball hawk Buddy Embanato, who paced Jim Mahoney's Irish to 11 straight victories and the conference crown, and W. D. Martin and Ronnie Myrick of Cecil Johnson's second place Tigers headed the high-scoring quintet of the league's cream of the crop.

Burt Boyle, top scorer for third place Winnsboro, nailed down the fifth position.

Varino, Embanato and Martin were unanimous selections while Boyle was named on every ballot except one.

Varino, a 6-4 jump shot artist, dominated the league offensively, connecting at an 19.0 clip per game and averaging 19 rebounds per contest. Embanato, the Irish playmaker, sparked the St. Matthew's floor game throughout the year and averaged 15.1 points per game.

Martin, the only senior on the top five, drew the support of every league mentor in compiling a 15.3 average through 24 contests. A solid 6-0, 185-pounder, he sparkled at the foul line, netting 70.6 per cent of his attempts. His 42.1 shooting percentage from the floor was one of the loop's highest.

The shortest man on the squad at 5'9½", Myrick was the floor general for Oak Grove which compiled a 9-3 record against conference opposition. One of four juniors on the dream team, he registered a 12.3 scoring average for the season.

Boyle, nominated on six of the seven ballots, was the leading scorer for Buster Carlisle's Wildcat crew with a 14.7 mark.

Teammate Johnny Sisk barely missed a first team berth, polling three first place votes to four for Myrick. The Winnsboro ace closed the season with a rush, finishing up with a 13.9 scoring average.

Placing on the second team along with Sisk were five other players because of a tie in the balloting. Delwyn Peters of Rayville, who landed one first place vote, Charley Biggar of St. Matthew's, Philip Wheeler of Tallulah, and Doyle Hammons and Hamby of Ferriday completed the squad.

Honorable mention recognition went to Frankie Accardo and Victor Zagone of St. Matthew's, Joe Henry and Danny McGee of Winnsboro, Don Bennett of Tallulah, Alford of Ferriday and Hopper of Traylor of Delhi.

GREENS VS. WHITES

Tulane Spring Tilt Scheduled Friday

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — The Tulane varsity football squad, hopeful of better weather conditions than have prevailed recently, goes into its final week of off-season Spring practice drills with the annual intra - squad Green - White game slated as the finale on Friday night March 11 at 8 p.m. in Tulane Stadium.

Early in the week, Coach Andy Pilney will split the squad into two equal units dubbing one the Green team, the other White for the game Friday night.

The game will give Wave fans an opportunity to view the potential of the 1960 Greenies, a potential that promises a better all-around offensive attack from two solid backfields and a real contest among linemen. The heavy losses at guard and center caused some moving of personnel in recent weeks and it now shapes up as though the Wave will have a strong No. 1 forward wall with a lot of sophomore depth yet to prove itself.

Veteran ends available are Cameron Gamble, Pat McLean and Bill Roach. At tackle, Bernie Darre and Joe LeSage return for their third seasons. With all guards but one who lettered in '59 gone, All-Soph team tackle Gus Gonzales has moved to guard and adapted well. Dave Michiels is a lettermen guard returning. Larry Thompson, No. 2 in '60 center is the lone vet at the piv. In the backfield, quarterbacks Phil Nugent and Bob Cornett, halfback Terry Terrebonne, Tom Mason, Howard Kisner and Bill Osteen are back along with Bill Ary who lettered at halfback but has been moved to fullback, where Leonard Stein was the only returnee with any experience.

Promising sophomores are prevalent at many positions, but backs with fine running ability stand out most. Quarterbacks Ted Miller, Jack Dominque and Ron Melton, halfbacks Adrian Colon, Sam Camp, George Oechsner and fullback Gordon Rush should provide some good depth in the backfield.

Soph linemen like tackles Bill Kellum and Ed Reynolds, guard Grant Lyons and Glenn Holcombe and ends Joe Lasseigne and Clarence Moen appear to have the inside road in seeing action this fall.

Tickets for the Green - White game at $1 for adults and 50 cents for children are available at Tulane Stadium Ticket Office, and will also be for sale at the gates Friday night.

NBA To Lift Suspension If Terms Met

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Boxing Assn. Saturday reinstated Archie Moore as light heavyweight boxing champion providing he and Erich Schoeppner of Germany agree to meet Harold Johnson after their summer title fight.

The NBA withdrew recognition of Moore as champion Feb. 15 for failure to sign to meet Johnson of Philadelphia, rated as the No. 1 contender by the association.

Anthony Maceroni, NBA president, said Moore and Schoeppner would be required to post a $5,000 forfeit to meet Johnson providing the Philadelphian still is the leading contender at the time.

Moore and the German are expected to clash for the 175-pound title late in July or August at a still undetermined site.

Maceroni said the NBA expects the bout to be under a single promotion and not as part of a Ingemar Johansson-Floyd Patterson heavyweight championship fight as has been suggested.

Tuesday Fete Planned For Tech Cagers

RUSTON, La. (Special) — Louisiana Tech's 1959-60 basketball team will be honored Tuesday evening at a banquet sponsored by the Ruston Lions Club.

Attending the banquet, to be held at the Tech Student Center at 7 p.m., will be members of the Bulldog cage squad and coaching staff, a number of special guests and the Lions. The banquet is an annual project of the Lions Club.

Featured speaker for the banquet will be Mayor Clyde Fant of Shreveport.

The dinner will feature Kansas City steaks sent to Ruston especially for the banquet by Eddie Williams, a former Tech student who now operates a packing company in Kansas City.

One of the highlights of the program will be the announcement of the captain for the Bulldog basketball team of next year.

Three trophies also will be awarded. One will go to the Techster with the best scholastic average, one to the player with the top rebound record and one to the cager with the best free throw mark.

Tech cagers closed out the season with a 6-4 won-loss record in Gulf States Conference action which gave the Bulldogs a third place spot in the league race. In all games played the Techmen posted a 17-9 mark.

Elliott Comes From Behind In Mile Win

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Herb Elliott ran a 4:01.1 mile Saturday in winning the Australian championship, then said it was the hardest race of his career.

The world record-holding miler, who has bettered 4 minutes ten times and who holds the record of 3:54.5, had to come from behind to beat two New South Wales runners, Ably Thomas and Dennis Wilson.

Elliott was last away at the start and did not go to the front until one and a half laps from the finish. Then he drew away to win easily by 40 yards.

Afterward he said he had to fight all the way.

"I nearly vomited five times during the race," Elliott said.

Thomas also complained of a sickly feeling. The discomfort apparently was caused by a light breeze which hit the runners as they turned into the straightaway.

Otherwise weather conditions were perfect and the grass track was in excellent shape. The crowd of 15,000 was disappointed that no world or Australian records were broken on the first day of the championship meet, which will be concluded Monday.

Elliott was timed in 61.6 seconds for the first quarter, 2:03.8 for the half and 3:02.8 for three quarters.

Tigers Accept Invitation To S'West Meet

LAFAYETTE, La. (UPI) — Louisiana State's star-studded Tiger track team, winner of three straight Southeastern Conference titles, has accepted an invitation to the 32nd annual Southwestern Relays April 7-9.

Relays director Bob Evans said today that sprinter Ralph Fabian and middle distance runner Carl Seefeld have been named to co-captain the 1960 Tiger thinclads.

Fabian climaxed a bright year in 1959 by winning the 100, 220 and low hurdles at the SEC meet. Seefeld, a key member of the Bengal relay team, placed third in the 880 and 440 in the SEC meet.

High hurdler Dickie Durham, winner of last year's hurdle event, will be competing for LSU again in the meet.

University of Oklahoma, defending relays team champion, also will return this year.

Other outstanding trackmen who have entered the 1960 meet include Don Bragg, world's indoor pole vault recordholder at 15 feet, 9⅝ inches; and Bobby Morrow, former Abilene Christian ace and 100-meter Olympic winner.

Weather Plays Havoc With Tiger Drills

GRAMBLING, La. (Special) — Coaches working with spring sports at Grambling College are experiencing as many problems as young widows in soap operas.

Rain, sleet and snow have painted a gloomy picture for the baseball, track and golf teams, and the forecast is for more of the same.

Track Coach Tom Williams and baseball mentor R.W.E. Jones have been forced to work indoors for two straight weeks.

Both admitted Saturday that when it rains — or snows — it pours.

The coaching president had a solid basis for complaint. His diamond squad opens its 27-game campaign at Alcorn A&M Friday and he fears the indoor drills will produce an inaccurate gauge of strength.

Making allowance for the weather, assistant coach Frank Ensley said the Tigers will be forced to fire with damp powder.

Mentioning the weather to help carry on a conversation struck and exposed nerve with coach Williams.

In his familiar Arkansas drawl, he said it had drastically revised the script for his thinclads.

"We made excellent progress in January, but the fellows are right back where they started."

He caustiously added, "I hope there's a new plot before curtain time."

The Tigers, headed by Stone Johnson, a sprinter of national esteem, will open their campaign in the Capitol City Relays in Austin, Tex., Friday and Saturday.

Share Longest Losing Streaks

NEW ORLEANS, March 5 (UPI) —Figures released today by the Southern Association showed the Atlanta Crackers and the Shreveport Sports shared the dubious distinction of having the longest losing streaks last year.

Both clubs lost 12 games in a row before breaking into the win column. Both teams beat Chattanooga to end their skeins.

Before the altar of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Saturday, February 20 at 9 a.m., Father Hannon heard the vows which united in marriage Miss Helen Anne Benefield and Charles Joseph Pitarro. Miss Benefield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Benefield of Haynesville. Mr. Pitarro is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pitarro.

The bouffant skirt, worn over crinolines, had for accent a lustre satin bow on the hipline. From her tiara of seed pearls and sequins fell a finger - tip veil of illusion. Her bouquet was white carnations in a crescent design.

The sister of the groom, Miss Ninette Pitarro, was maid of honor, wearing a street - length dress of yellow lace over taffeta, featuring a tight bodice, full skirt and puff sleeves. Matching flowers formed the headdress. The gown of the matron of honor, Mrs. Leonard Russo, sister of the groom, was blue lace, designed like the maid of honor's. Miss Rosemarie Russo, niece of the groom, wore a yellow dress fashioned like the dresses of the honor attendants. All three carried crescent shaped bouquets of white carnations.

At the reception following the ceremony at St. Joseph Hall, the bride's table was overlaid with a white lace cloth over blue, centered with the three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Mrs. C. F. Pitarro Jr. served the cake. Mrs. Elizabeth Falletta assisted at the punch bowl. Misses Cynthia and Judy Scott, registered the guests in the Guest Book.

Wilkins-Gentry Wedding In Chapel On LSU Campus

A wedding of interest throughout this area took place Saturday, February 27, at 2 p.m. when Sylvia Gentry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Ace Gentry, became the bride of Charles Emory Wilkins, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Smith Wilkins, Baton Rouge. The double ring wedding ceremony was performed by Dr. W. E. Trice in the University Methodist Church on the campus of Louisiana State University.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was dressed in a white wool suit with a cowl collar that draped about her shoulders and was caught with a rose of self material at the throat. Her hat was of white ermine with veil and satin bows. Her bridal bouquet was an old fashioned nosegay of white carnations and lilies of the valley, with streamers of white satin ribbons.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr., who served as matron of honor. She wore a navy blue wool crepe suit with wide white linen collar and cuffs, and a flowered cloche of shades of lavendar. Her corsage was of white carnations.

The best man was Mr. James Batt of Baton Rouge.

The reception was held after the ceremony at the home of the C. S. Wilkins. Vases of early spring flowers were placed at vantage points throughout the reception suite. The dining table was overlaid with a handsome Irish linen tea cloth. Pink and white cameillas, interspersed with white candles and lilies of the valley, ran the length of the table. The focal point was the five tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom, kneeling before an altar.

Mrs. Kyle Wright and Mrs. Ralph Mathis, sisters of the groom, alternated at the crystal punch service. Miss Julia Gates of Oakdale served the wedding cake, assisted by Miss Harriet Cann of Shreveport, Miss Joan Hatcher and Miss Judy Coates of Baton Rouge.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins left for an undisclosed wedding trip. When they return they will be at home at 934 Iris Street, Baton Rouge.

The table was decorated with three gold urns filled with red and white carnations, flanked with burning white tapers. The bridal party enjoyed dancing to a string ensemble during the evening.

The young couple took advantage of the occasion to present gifts to each other and to their attendants. Miss Gentry was radiant in a white lace sheath and white roses in her hair.

The gayest of our gay seasons came to a close with Ash Wednesday this week. Mardi Gras is tres merry for those of us who stay home, as well as for those who make the trip to New Orleans, carnival capital.

Biggest party of the season in Monroe is the ball at Bayou DeSiard country club, which this year carried out an "Arts and Artists" theme. Members entering the club last Saturday night passed through a large gold frame around the door, thus entering the picture. Various periods and style of art were represented in different rooms of the club, and a number of those who had helped with decorations costumed in style befitting their room.

First prize for costumes was awarded to a group whose dress was copied from portraits by Hans Holbein. D. C. BERNHARDT was Henry VII in a jewel - studded cloth - of - silver suit slashed with grey chiffon. His surcoat was of red velvet faced with black Persian lamb. Wife ANNE was Ann of Cleves in grey velvet trimmed with Persian lamb around the wide sleeves and the hem . . . Others in the group, all in velvets, jewels, and furs, were BETTY MOORE, FRANCES and JIM ADCOCK, the JACK TAYLORS, and DOT and TOM HYLAND.

Honorable mention for group costumes were the doctors' emergency team. Four of our Tulane students, home for the party, dressed in white lab coats and brought in a "blood - stained victim" on a stretcher. In the group were PRENT SEYMOUR, NAT TROY, STEVE NICHOLS, and JOE MONTGOMERY, whose "patient" was BILLY ALLEN.

Best couples' costumes prizes were awarded to the BERT ROOTS, the HENRY HAMMONDS, and the SOL COURTMANS. The Roots, who had assisted in turning the ballroom into the Versailles Hall of Mirros, dressed in fitting eighteenth century French dress, with high powdered hair . . . The Hammonds were Uncle Tom and Topsy . . . and the Courtmans, a pair of ballet dancers, after Degas.

ELEANOR BROWN had assisted in decorating the young people's lounge with Egyptian wall paintings, sphinx, etc., and copied her costume therefrom. She was Cleopatra herself in a striped dress with gold collar and a black string wig. BILLY wore Egyptian garb, also, and a high Pharoah's crown . . . The ROY LEDBETTERS were painters — house painters . . . GYP M'DONALD was Whistler's mother; HILDA, Van Gogh, with her head bandaged and carrying her "ear" on a dagger.

Incidentally, Hilda left after the ball, with the DICK TROYS and LOUISE KLAM for New Orleans and the closing festivities of carnival there. Hilda attended the Proteus ball Monday night and the Comus ball Tuesday. The Troys and Louise saw Proteus and Rex. ANNE PRATT of New Orleans, a frequent visitor of the M'Donalds here, was queen of Proteus and a maid in the court of Rex.

A number of out-of-towners attended the Baeux Arts Ball at Bayou DeSiard Saturday night. ADA ELLIS LIMERICK was down from Little Rock to see her younger sister, BUNNY GIRAULT, crowned as queen . . . The JOHN BOSTICKS of Gilbert, the LEE INEICHENS of Rayville, and the HAROLD M'CLENDONS of Bastrop, each of whom had a daughter in the court, were among the on-lookers.

HELN THEUS brought a group of friends from the University of Alabama for the weekend. SHARON RUSSMAN of Louisville, Kentucky, was Helen's houseguest, while JACK POWELL of Montgomery, and MIKE GREGORY of Dothan, Alabama, stayed with Helen's grandmother, ALDA GRAVES. From here, the four went to New Orleans, where they attended the Comus ball before returning to Tuscaloosa.

The JIM WHITES (she was the former Polly Riley) were here for a week's visit from Warrensburg, Missouri. They attended the dance Saturday night. Sunday evening the FRED FUDICKARS, JR., entertained with a party in their honor. A mixed bouquet of tulips, stock, and painted daisies centered the buffet, where ham and hogshead cheese were features of the menu. About fifty friends called. . . . On Monday, DIT CUTLER honored Polly with a luncheon at home . . . The Whites returned to Missouri on Friday.

Two lovely luncheons were given this week by MARY HUDSON honoring her sister-in-law and houseguest, DOROTHY MADISON of Garden City, New York. The parties were held at the Lotus Club on Tuesday and Thursday, with twenty - six ladies attending on each occasion. Spring flowers, acacia, tulips, and Dutch iris were used on the long table in the library.

The JOHN KELSOS, JR., are in Memphis this weekend. They took their dog, Vicky, to the field trials of the Memphis Retriever club.

A congenial group in New Orleans last weekend were the BEN JOHNSTONS, the JOHN STODDARDS, the SQUIRE PICKETTS and the HILARY SANDERS, JR. They went down for the Hermes ball on Friday night, and attended the races on Saturday, returning home late Sunday.

Due home today are the HAROLD WOODS, SR., who have been in Houston, Texas, on a business and pleasure trip since Wednesday.

Local gourmets are looking forward to the cocktail hour at the Bayou DeSiard country club this coming Saturday night. Refreshments will be served "on the House" from seven until eight, and the hors d'oeuvre table promises a new and elaborate array of delicacies. A trio will provide the music for the party . . .

If it's been a discouraging week for you, A. E. Housman is just the man to describe your feelings:

Yonder see the morning blink:
The sun is up, and up must I,
To wash and dress and eat and drink
And look at things and talk and think
And work and God knows why.
Oh! Often have I washed and dressed
And what's to show for all my pain?
Let me lie abed and rest:
Ten thousand times I've done my best
And all's to do again.

Handmacher Suit Makers Recommend Sanitone Cleaning

There are two persons who are most interested in having a fine suit or other garment look and feel like new during a maximum period of use. They are the person who wears the garment and the person who makes and sells it. Their interests are identical.

"Clothing care" is important to both of them and "clothing care" means, primarily, frequent dry cleaning by the most modern and approved methods. Such care, it has been demonstrated, renews garments and preserves their original shape, texture and freshness.

Accordingly, Alvin Handmacher, president of Handmacher - Vogel, Inc., one of America's leading makers of women's fine garments, recently established a precedent in the textile and garment industries by attaching string tags to thousands of his 1960 line of suits recommending that they be cleaned by the Sanitone dry-cleaning process, according to D. B. Weil, of Weil Cleaners at 508 North 4th Street in Monroe.

His recommendation was made only after exhaustive tests had proved to his satisfaction that the Sanitone process achieved the results desired.

Several pairs of identical suits were used in one of the tests. One suit in each pair had been dry-cleaned by the Sanitone process 20 times. The other suit in each pair was brand-new. Not one person at a recent fashion showing in New York could be sure which suits were new and which had been cleaned.

Girl Scout News

Today is the day! The beginning of Girl Scout Week for girls in the Twin Cities and in the Silver Waters Council and in the U.S.A. .. March 12, next Saturday, is the actual birthday, the day on which the first group of girls met 48 years ago in a room above the carriage house at Juliette Low's home in Savannah, Georgia. From that small beginning the Girl Scouts have grown to number more than three and a half million in our country.

This afternoon girls and their parents and friends will gather for three birthday programs at 2:30, one at Sherrouse School, one at Lexington School, and one at Highland School at 3:00. All programs will be different, but will have several things in common, a birthday cake with candles, the traditional opening flag ceremony, presentation for the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund. The Fund, established in memory of our Founder, is used to spread Scouting and to further friendships among girls around the world.

Girls from each troop will go on stage to present their offerings, which may be a penny for each year of age, one for each inch of waist measure, for each letter of their name, an amount equal to the troop number, a sum earned, or whatever the troop decides. One girl explains about the amount, one lights a candle for the troop.

Intermediate Scouts have the parts on the program, serve as ushers, have made the birthday cakes. We've heard already that the one for West Monroe, made by Troop 9, is a remarkable creation made of stiff soapsuds with a cardboard box as base. Troop 26 is making one for the Northside program, and Troop 58 has charge of the one for the College Neighborhood. We understand that these girls plan to make a real cake, inviting their parents to join them afterward at the home of their leader, Mrs. D. T. DeMasterson, to sample a piece.

Jane Edwards, Troop 1, will preside over the College Neighborhood program at Sherrouse School, Jayne Wallace, Troop 17, over the one at Highland, and Brenda Carso, Troop 48, over the Northside program.

As a part of the College Neighborhood program, Troops 42 and 44 are working on an appropriate choral reading "Her Wish Came True", under the directions of Mrs. Louis Breard, Jr. Troops 2 and 33, will give the same reading at the Northside program, under the direction of Mrs. Frank Halpin.

During February, Troop 32 has been carrying out the requirements of the World Trefoil badge in order to learn more about Scouting around the world. As one of the requirements, the girls worked up an original ceremony stressing things that all girls have in common. The troop has been asked to give this on the program. We like to hear of these original efforts.

The Scouts in Bastrop are to have a regular birthday party after school Wednesday, at Southside School. There will be games and fun and refreshments, and a chance to contribute to the Juliette Low Fund. Troop 104, Mrs. Leroy Martin, Leader, will have charge of the birthday ceremony.

We hope most of the Scouts went to their own churches in uniform today. Let's see all of them, their families and friends at their neighborhood programs. Don't worry; the programs will last not more than an hour.

"Old N. Orleans," Theme H.P.C.C. Mardi Gras Ball

The Highland Park Country Club of West Monroe was the scene of an outstanding event of the Mardi Gras season on Saturday night. The music was furnished by. Mehl Addington and his orchestra from Shreveport, who are noted for their soft muted tones. The large number of members and their guests attending enjoyed their rendition of rhumbas, sambas, cha cha and waltzes.

The club rooms were elegantly decorated using the theme of Old New Orleans. Black wrought iron decorations were used throughout the ballroom, at the end of which was a patio scene so realistic one felt he could dance out and on it. The old brown jugs, the moss hanging from the pine trees, spotlighted to give the illusion of moonlight, tropical plants, a fountain flowing, colorful camellias, a waterfall over a lovely sculptured nude figurine, all helped to create the atmosphere of the deep south.

Masks were presented to the dancers by the Management and the committee. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hartman were the winners of a bottle of champagne for the best dancers of the cha cha.

The committee responsible for this outstanding occasion were: Mrs. H. Mayo, chairman; Nancy Calhoun; Camille Yeldell; Dorothy Labrano: Audrey Davis; Bonny Davis; Dee Smith and Ellen Dage.

The host clubs were the following local organizations; the Magnolia Study Club, Twin City Study Club, Welcome Book Club and the Monroe Junior Woman's Club. Registration was directed by Mrs. Ed Whatley and members of the Twin City Study Club.

A coffee hour was enjoyed after which all assembled in the convention hall and the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Annette Coolidge, 5th District president from Mangham. Mr. Haynes L. Harkey, city attorney, gave the address of welcome with Mrs. J. B. Kendell of Ruston giving the response.

Mrs. Coolidge welcomed the distinguished guests, Mrs. May Oppenheimer of New Orleans, president of the Louisiana FWC, Mrs. Claude Grimes, state treasurer, and the other distinguished visitors.

The Monroe Jr. Woman's Club, the new club in the district, was recognized.

The singing of the Ouachita Parish High School ensemble with Ronnie Brothers accompanying them was the highlight of the program.

A beautifully appointed luncheon followed in the ball room of the hotel. The centerpiece of white milk glass held an arrangement of flowers in the colors of the Federation, blue and white, and dozens of Monroe's camellias and ivy adorned the full length of the long tables. The guests enjoyed a style show during the luncheon.

At 1 p.m. the meeting was again called to order, at which time the annual memorial service was conducted by Mrs. F. B. Sartor, Alto, chairman of Religious leadership. Awards were made to the Junior and Senior Clubs for Year Books, Press Books, Vogue Sewing contests and Fine Arts.

The Cosmos Club won 1st place as the outstanding club in the senior division with 93 points, honorable mention going to Littera Club, Mangham with 92 points and the Magnolia Study Club with 83 points. Outstanding junior club 1st place winner was Rayville Art and Civic Club with honorable mention going to L'Avenir Club of Ruston.

After the election of officers, state president, Mrs. Oppenheimer, installed the new slate for District Five: President, Mrs. Thomas Jett; 1st vice president, Mrs. George Forman; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Jeff Davenport, Oak Grove; 3rd vice president, Mrs. Lovell Hayden; secretary, Miss Annette Jobert, Rayville; treasurer, Mrs. W. C. Irby, Ruston, and auditor Mrs. E. B. Knott.

The 1961 convention will be held in Rayville, the host clubs being L'Avenir Cultural, Rayville Art and Civic and Rayville Literary clubs.

MRS. A. J. GARVIN on the hostess committee of the Bonhomie Book Club, pins a corsage on Mrs. May Oppenheimer, state president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs, while Mrs. George Forman, 2nd vice pres. of the 5th district LFWC, looks on approvingly.

Part of the universal appeal of Madri Gras is the masking. Every color of the rainbow and some yet to be put there appeared in the maskers' outfits Fabrics ranged from tarleton to satin. There were royalty and hobos, clowns and beatniks, characters from famous paintings, bearded Cubans and artists. The costumes showed originality and imagination.

The club was transformed by the committees headed by Mrs. Jack Taylor, general chairman, assisted by Anne Bernhardt. The entrance hall became New Orleans' famous Pirate's Alley under the chairmanship of Frances Adcock with Alice Smith, Yvonne Anderson, Betty Moore, Jeanne Myatt, Darlene Crossland, Dot Hyland, Mary Wilton Mc Henry, Joy Marshall.

The main Ballroom looked for all the world like the Versailles Hall of Mirrors, a truly elegant room. It opened on the porch decorated with rose trees and a fountain to represent a formal garden. Mary Lee Milam, chairman planning both rooms with Nancy Weaks and Martha Grant as assistants had a committee to help consisting of Dot and Fred Amman, Alice and Ted Allen, Paulie Riley, Louise Seymour, Jewel Rivers, Helen Campbell, Billie Root, Sara Cole McSherry, Betty Goyne, Merle Adams, June Eby, and Billie Smelser.

The dining room was a Japanese Temple garden. Anne Terzia and Barbara Easterling were assisted by Leila Ewing, Jerry Oakley, Mary Alice Husted, Pat Bagwell, and Bitza Brown.

Cody Rosamond was in charge of the young people's lounge which was decorated with art of ancient Egypt. Bess Courtman, Eleanor Brown, Bary Anita Lennon, Anna Claire Seymour, Jackie Woods. Billie Smith, Jean Dickenhorst, Dot Hyland, Jean Mintz, Nora Marie Inabnet and Peggy Greenbaum.

Modern art and beatniks held forth in the bar, where Georgia Touchstone and Teetie Dixon were assisted by Joan King, Baby Loflin, Bo Fudickar, Jane Oliver, Pat Riley, and Kay Cotton.

THE HOME SHIFT

Measures For Petal Blight

By MILDRED SWIFT

Looking over last year's Home Shift for March, I realized how late our blooming plants are. March 1, 1959 many pear and plum trees were out in full bloom. Scilla was at its height. Thrift was in full bloom. There's plenty of time, though and we'll enjoy the blossoms when they show up.

We are told to be on the look out for camellia petal blight at all times during the blooming season. This blight affects only the camellia flower. Fortunately the disease is still not universal. Several years back petal blight was found on camellias in one or two yards in Ouachita Parish. It has never been found in the nurseries in our parish. Since they guard against this fungus at all times, they'll most likely never have that trouble.

However, it is possible that you can get this blight in the camellias in your own garden. The symptoms are browning of the flower petals. Don't get alarmed, though because cold injury can also cause petals to brown. There is this difference though: cold injury causes petals to brown on the outer edge and it's relatively dry. Petal blight browning starts off as small brown spots at any point on the petal. It spreads rapidly to the entire flower. Also, and this is important, if you rub a suspected petal between the thumb and finger, petal blight damage can be detected by a slimy feeling.

CONTROL

Since the disease, petal blight, is known to spread from flower to ground and back to flower the following season, the recommendation is: Keep all fallen flowers and leaves picked up and destroyed, either by burning or by burying at least two feet deep. Never put this material in your compost heap.

Remember, we have had no petal blight in our nurseries, but certain areas are quarantined in some other parts of the state. Only a few though.

The organism that causes petal blight is a fungus. It remains in an inactive stage at the base of infected flower, or in the soil where it has fallen from flowers, from late spring until the following January.

At that time, when weather is cool and damp, it becomes active again. A mushroom like growth is formed, the cup producing millions of spores. These spores are blown by the wind, and each one that lights on a camellia petal starts a new cycle of the fungus. It has been estimated that the wind can carry these spores for a mile. The dormant stage of this organism can remain in or on the ground for as long as three years. Because of that, control of the disease is at least a three year proposition.

GARDENING

It's still not too late to plant a lady banksia rose if you have a place for one. This is a climber, and it is our only thornless evergreen rose. Some of our most beautiful ones grow in trees. This climber seems to be well adapted for that use. The rose blooms before the trees leaf out and this is a lovely sight. Also they can run and spread on top of small buildings such as garages or carports. They can be staked to a heavy support, grow up and cascade over. The blossoms are pale yellow and each stem is a mass of blooms.

Don't forget to put out some canna bulbs a little later. They are so beautiful as cut flowers. The leaves as well as the blossoms work in arrangements so well. There are many new colors as well as the old reds and yellows. Mrs. F. T. Smith has such a gorgeous rose one. If you have not divided your established cannas, do that in March if they need it. These should be divided every three years if you are to get large blooms.

Remember the dainty little flowering almond. The pink is so pretty in the garden and as a cut flower. The white is available now and is mighty pretty. It is not too late to put out this plant.

Let me remind you again of the acubas, solid green and variegated golddust. The foliage is gorgeous used in the house. The bold foliage makes a striking contrast in the garden, too.

Bells of Ireland can be planted at any time of year. It's chartreuse colored balls are gorgeous fresh or dried. Seed are available.

If you love gourds, don't forget to pick up some seed to plant when the ground warms up a bit.

Put a little lime around the roots of your clematis vine. Remember they like a sweet soil, their head in the sun, their roots in the shade.

No! Don't put out caladium bulbs yet. The ground is too cold. It is also too early for hibiscus. They belong to the cotton family and can't stand the cool nights of March.

HINTS

With so many models and movie stars (and lovely Grace of Monaco) wearing eye glasses, young women nowadays do not hesitate to wear them. In fact many girls treat the glasses as a glamorous accessory. Since you'll be wearing them frequently, it's worthwhile to take a little extra time to get the frame color that will do the most for you.

Whether you live in a part of the country where snow has fallen, or in another section of this land where the hot sun beats down on the white sand of the beaches, you'll find that white is a top favorite, fashionwise. The fashion world is being blanketed in white. There are white spring coats and light weight wool dresses. White brocades are perfect for after-five parties. White shows up in knit suits. For those who stay at home there's the allw hite house coat.

A clean comb and brush are necessary for a clean scalp and hair. To clean, soak comb and brush in water with several tablespoons of baking soda added. This gives an acid reaction which cuts and removes odors and oils.

Baking soda also is useful for treating tired feet. For a soothing, refreshing foot bath, add a couple of tablespoons of soda to a basin of warm water and soak. This not only will pep up tired feet but will relax the whole body.

A hint comes from the fur people. Keep furs in a bag so they will not get worn from rubbing other garments — and in the bottom of the bag, not touching the fur, put a sponge and keep it damp. Furs do not like a dry atmosphere.

STAMP NEWS

A new series of stamps with a religious theme has been issued by Malta to commemorate the 1900th anniversary of the "Shipwreck of St. Paul."

The 1½-pence depicts the shipwreck as adapted from a painting in St. Paul's Church in Valletta. The 3-pence shown the consecration of St. Publius. The 6-pence illustrates St. Paul leaving Malta. The 8-pence pictures the statue of St. Paul. The 1-shilling shows an allegorical subject with quotations from the Acts of the Apostles. The 2-shilling 6 pence has the figure of St. Paul with the St. Paul's Bay Islets in the background.

Still in a religious vein, the three new airmails just issued by Israel are unique in that they depict a trio of ancient towns steeped in history not generally known to many stamp collectors.

The 15 - agorot honors Zefat where many Hebrew sages lived. Even today it is still a town of religious scholars. But, oddly enough, it is now the home of many artists and today it is considered a town of mysticism and romanticism.

The 20-agorot pays tribute to Ashqelon. Its name was mentioned as long as 2700 years ago and also appears frequently in the Bible. History records that many ancient nations fought for control of the town until it was destroyed in the 13th Century. Today, however, a thriving modern city exists on a slope overlooking the beautiful Mediterranean.

The 65-agorot is for Tiberius founded in 19 A. D. by Herod Antipas and named in honor of the Roman Emperor Tiberius. After the destruction of the Hebrew Temple in Jerusalem, the spiritual center of the Jews became located in Tiberius. Tombs of the ancient sages are found there today although a completely new civilization has emerged amid the ruins of the old as shown on the stamp.

Cyprus has overprinted 15 of its existing pictorials to honor the Constitution of Cyprus as an independent republic. The overprint is "Cyprus Republic" in Greek and Turkish. The overprints will remain on sale until a new issue of stamps can be produced.

Camera News

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography can be fun if you develop a photographic sense of humor. Often it is no more work than a click of the button as you capture a funny expression or situation. At other times, it may take thought, planning and some serious camera work to get a funny picture.

Children and pets are the most likely subjects for impromptu humorous pictures. A photographer doesn't have to coax them into mischief; a better idea would be to remain as inconspicuous as possible but prepared to shoot when mischief breaks loose. As an example, visualize the familiar situation of a spruced-up youngster meeting a mud puddle or an open jar of his favorite jam. Though we've seen it many times, the results are still hilarious to everyone except the mother . . . but if she had a camera in her hand, it might be funny to her too. And it'll be funnier when the pictures are seen later.

Accidental double exposures are no laughing matter to most cameramen. Sometimes, however, instead of ruining two pictures the blended images produce an amusing result. This has led many photographers to explore the field of making deliberate double exposures for a bigger laugh.

One of the best examples of this is a series of multiple exposures carefully contrived by photographer Ronald L. Wilhite, of the San Bernardino, Calif., Sun-Telegram. His subject was Billy Barty, a midget actor with an ability to vary expressions. Wilhite made from two to as many as four exposures on one negative showing the 39-inch Billy in different positions, actions and expressions involving a humorous situation.

Pictures of this nature require a black background and the camera on a tripod. Wilhite made an exposure for each figure making sure that they did not overlap each other to prevent "ghost" images at the point of blending.

Any prop used in the foreground must remain stationary throughout the multiple exposures. However, to avoid the "ghost" image again, the subject must not overlap any part of the prop. It is possible, though, to use a prop in one explosure than cover it with a black cloth or remove it before the next exposure on the same negative, provided the background behind it is black.

Another method of having fun in photography is through trick camera angles. People in the foreground can hold or balance objects or even buildings which may be miles away if proper perspective and angle are figured.

Need Weather For Planting

By AUDREY DAWSON

If the weather has been too cold and damp for you to get those shrubs planted that you had so wanted to get out this year, there's still plenty of time during these early days of March. We really need a few days for gardening. The first pretty day make a visit to your local nursery and select your shrubs, but do not buy more plants than you can handle at one time.

Be sure to prune your summer flowering shrubs and evergreen shrubs that first day that the weather permits, but do not prune your spring flowering shrubs until after they flower.

If you have not pruned your roses, be sure to do it right away. Also, begin spraying to control mildew, black spot and aphids. There's plenty of work in the yard if the weather man will give us a few days of clear weather and just a little sunshine.

SOMETHING NEW

Available soon in the refrigerated cases of grocery stores will be a number of small cans of ready to eat, cured pork products will include boneless cured available only in large cans holding 3 pounds or more. The products will includde boneless cured ham, pork shoulder picnics, loins, and pork luncheon meat in cans as small as 12 ounces. These small cans will be handy for small families who want to buy for only one or two meals or have limited refrigerator space.

FREEZING MEAT

Recommendations made by the food preservation specialist at LSU that cooked meats which are to be frozen need to be covered with a gravy or broth has been substantiated by the Ohio Experiment Station. Sliced portions of cooked meat (round of beef in this instance) were covered with salted and unsalted gravy, packaged in moisture vapor proof material and then frozen. Two comparisons were made. They tasted and compared the palatability between salted and unsalted gravy packages, since it was thought that salt was conducive to curdling sauces. Their findings was that salt made no difference. The other comparison was on the palatability score for the fresh cooked with that of same meat frozen with gravy. There was little, if any, change in flavor.

RESEARCH

Homemakers who sew for their family will be interested to know that research is being conducted on the effect of resin treated sewing thread or cotton fabrics having a wash and wear finish. Preliminary work has shown that seam puckering is practically eliminated when resin treated fabrics are sewn with thread treated with the same resin finish.

Yours truly and the Assistant Home Demonstration Agent, Donna Moore, will be in Baton Rouge, the last three days of this week attending the annual Home Demonstration Agents convention and the Louisiana Home Economics Association State Meeting.

ELECTRIC BLANKETS

Although electrical insulating materials have been greatly improved in recent years, it is still wise not to have an electric blanket dry cleaned. Many of the new electric blankets according to the manufacturers can be machine washed. However, in all cases, the instructions on how to do it as given by the manufacturer would be explicitly followed. An electric blanket should never be pinned to the bed because you may injure the insulation or the heater wiring and create a fire hazard in future use of the blanket. The blanket should not be folded while in use or rumpled or twisted. Hot spots often develop from twisted sharply bent heating elements thus, make a fire hazard possibility.

A THOUGHT — There are several ways to attain failure. Never taking a chance is the best of the lot.

Tinkling Bell

LONDON (AP) — The tinkling bell of the mobile ice cream vendor may be silenced by law in London. Parliament member Rupert Speir, who is pushing a noise abatement bill, says he has been asked to add the ice cream man's bell to his list.

OF FAMILIES

Social Scientists Fight Breakdowns

NEW YORK (UPI)—Social scientists fighting family breakdown are taking a page from the book of medical scientists warring on cancer.

They've found that impending family breakdown—a sociological cancer—gives off danger signals, just as physical cancer does.

If the signs of trouble are recognized in time, there'a a good chance steps can be taken to cure the sociological cancer. That is—before it gets to the point of no return.

The cancer-fighters' approach to family breakdown was cited by Mrs. Frances Beatman, executive director of the nation's largest family service agency, the New York Jewish family service.

During an interview, Mrs. Beatman listed the five "danger signals" which usually herald family breakdown. They are:

—Husband or wife, when thinking of the family, concentrate on "hardships" involved and lose sight of the joys.

—Husband or wife starts censoring or holding back his or her accounts of experiences, pleasurable or otherwise. This is a sign that the party with the "secret" suddenly feels the other party may not understand. It's the first block in a fall of secrets.

—Children and adults lose the conversational quality when at home. Instead of calmly talking out differences, there is nagging and fighting. The communication lines get blocked.

Now and then, such situations occur in most "well" families, Mrs. Beatman said.

"It is when they occur over and over again, establishing a pattern of long duration, that they should be considered danger signals," she said.

When you recognize the signs of impending family breakdown in your house, it's time to act, clearing the air yourself—or seeking outside assistance.

Mrs. Beatman said some persons can spot the troubles, think through a solution and mend the broken links of the family circle.

Others, she said, show strength by recognizing their own weakness or inability to patch the trouble spots. They seek help.

"There's no stigma attached to going to a family service agency and putting your cards on the table, requesting professional assistance," Mrs. Beatman said.

The agency which Mrs. Beatman heads serves 14,000 families yearly—counseling nearly 36,000 individuals on personal and family problems.

It was the first family agency in the nation to devise a fee structure, where people pay what they can afford—opening the agency to all segments of the population, not to the economically depressed alone.

Many family service agencies across the nation have followed suit. If you think your family is in danger of "breakdown," Mrs. Beatman suggested that you contact your local family service agency.

Movies Face Cataclysm

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The movie industry is face to face with a cataclysm that could mean the end of the Hollywood system that has long ruled the film world.

The actors have voted to go on strike at the major studios at a minute past midnight Sunday night. The producers have made no move to stop them. Bitterness grows on each side.

If the strike continues a long period, some predict major studios will vanish from the Hollywood scene. Movies will still be made, but the industry may be reduced to a shadow of its one-time giant size.

What brought about this fight, called by one company head "a battle to the death"? The answer is simple: Money.

The actors want a share of the money from recent movies sold to television. The studios won't give it. Each side has its arguments.

1. THE PRODUCERS. They have been beset with problems ever since the war. First, the government stepped in and made the studios give up their theaters, which acted as a buffer against losses on production. The trustbusters also stopped block-booking, the system of selling theaters bunches of movies — the good and the bad — instead of each one on its own merits.

Then came TV—along with new interest in bowling, motor sports, boating, Little League baseball and other competitors for the entertainment business—making TV films, drilling for oil, selling studios and leasing them back. The biggest source of income was selling old films to TV. Examples: Paramount's sale of its pre-1948 films for 50 million.

The movie makers argue they need the money from TV sales of post-1948 movies to stay in business. They argue that most new features lose money at the box office. They claim the actors want to get paid twice for doing one job.

2. THE ACTORS. Economic survival has always been a problem for the acting breed. Though they found new work in television, actors have been drawing less and less money from movies. They want a share of the millions the studios are getting for old movies in TV.

They claim they have been paid once for doing two jobs. They argue that movies and television are two different mediums and they should get income for each. Having their images on the home screen deprives them of work today, they declare.

Film Monopoly

BERLIN (AP) — DEFA, the film monopoly in Communist East Germany, has brought suit in a West Berlin court against a director who fled to the West. The grounds: He left a movie unfinished.

The lawyer for DEFA accused Herbert Ballmann, the director, of breaking his contract by leaving the film "Try It With Love" in the middle of shooting.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Sunset Club Stages Show

By MARY JARDINE

MRS. K. R. YOUNG
Guest Writer

The Sunset Garden Club of Ruston staged a nice show at the Center this week, driving over on Tuesday through the very cold rain we had that day. In spite of the weather they managed to find enough flowers for some beautiful arrangements.

Sunset Garden Club is a new club, federated only last November. Mrs. Frank Parrish, the president of the club is an enthusiastic horticullurist and a horticulture judge. Several of the members are enrolled in the flower arrangement classes at Louisiana Tech. In both the growing of flowers and arranging them, this is quite an active group and is planning lots of worthy projects for the future.

FIRST PLACE

Mrs. Paul Davison won first place with her arrangement. The triangle design was fashioned by using flowering quince to form the lines, with the new growth and blooms of the Serrulata Photenia placed low in the focal area. She chose a black, oriental type container that made a most pleasing color combination with the quince and the unusual brownish red of the photenia. This is a beautiful arrangement and expresses a great deal of originality.

Mrs. W. W. Cobb's second place design features spikes of yellow gladiola as line material, chrysanthemums in a slightly darker shade of yellow in the focal area and a few sprigs of oriental holly as filler material. This is done in a brown - green container which is quite suitable for the vertical arrangement Mrs. Cobb has fashioned. She has given her design a nice rhythmic feeling in the placing of her material and with the pleasing color combination.

Mrs. Louis Vick's arrangement uses daffodils, oriental holly and variegated pittosporum. The holly forms her triangle design. The daffodils were grouped at the center of interest making a pleasing massed line effect. Her container is a low, blue-green ceramic bowl suitable in form and texture for the lovely arrangement she has done.

In the horticulture division, Mrs. Vick entered three blue ribbon daffodils and Mrs. Davison entered branches of Photenia Glabra and Buffordi Holly, both entries taking blue ribbons.

We were happy to have had the Sunset Garden Club with us, and are looking forward to having them again in the future.

Shrub Berries Attract Birds

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The ripening fruits on elaegnus bushes are making the birds happy. These little sour sweet berries are tasty to humans, too. We have remarked in the column several times that elaeagnus berries make good jelly. How anything so acid can acquire the flavor of raspberries after cooking is certainly remarkable, but they do. For some reason, this jelly comes out a sort of gray color, and some cooks add some artificial coloring to it.

HOLLIES FROM SEED

Holly berries are ripe now, too, and the birds are beginning to carry them off. If you want to try your hand at growing holly seedlings, gather the berries and pour about a quart of them into a bucket. Then pour in another quart of very coarse sand. Mash the berries and sand hard with something rounded on its end like a base ball bat. The object is to rub the pulp loose from the seeds.

Most people do not have the patience to separate seeds from pulp. They find a rich spot in the woods or in an out of the way corner of the garden and plant sand, pulp, seeds and all. This can be done very easily by raking back the soil about an inch deep and scattering the mixture over the area. The soil that was raked away can be raked back into place for just the right amount of covering. Then tramping the soil down with the feet will firm the seed bed satisfactorily.

You never can tell how many of your holly seeds will come up because the seeds from different trees differ amazingly in their power to germinate. Many berries are often full of seeds with no embryo, too. Different species of holly produce seeds with the widest variation in their power to germinate. Our wild American holly produces seeds of very low germinability except on some trees. Nevertheless, it is not much trouble to plant a few quarts of seeds, and you may, in some seasons, get a lot of little trees. A single one would be worth the trouble.

The best thing to do to a holly seed bed is to forget about it for a year or so. Some of your seeds may come up next spring. American holly seeds have been known to lie dormant for several years and then come up. In the Spring before your columnist went off to the last war, he sowed a gallon of seeds from a fine variety. Four years later, these seeds were still coming up. All this waiting was worthwhile, however, because the ten fine trees that resulted are now ten to twelve feet tall. So try your hand!

Farm Bill Gap Noted In House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There was a significant gap Saturday in the list of House Democrats who have signed as sponsors of a controversial new bill to reshape the federal farm program.

At last count, 19 Democrats had introduced almost identical versions of the new "Family Farm" bill which would authorize farmers to adopt a wide range of new production control programs.

But not one of the 19 was from the Deep South which is heavily represented in the membership of the House Agriculture Committee and has a powerful voice in determining what the House does about farm policy.

Two of the 19 sponsors of the bill labelled by some of its backers a Democratic "answer" to administration farm policy are Southwesterners and rank high in the party's farm leadership. They are Rep. W. R. Poage (D-Tex.) vice chairman of the Agriculture Committee, and House Democratic whip Carl Albert (Okla.), also an Agriculture Committee member.

But other committee members from such states as North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Kentucky, Virginia, Louisiana, and Tennessee have not joined in sponsoring the bill.

Reps. E. C. Gathings (D-Ark.) and Thomas G. Abernethy (D - Miss.) said that they and other committee members from the South were not consulted when the bill was drafted by a group of Midwestern and Western House Democrats.

Without the support of the Southerners, backers of the bill would have only a slim chance to get it approved by the Agriculture Committee. Eleven of the committee's 22 Democrats are from Southern states (not including Texas) and the committee's 12 Republican members have shown no enthusiasm for the bill.

In addition to Poage and Albert, sponsors include three House members from Iowa, three from California, and one each from Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Indiana, Wisconsin, Ohio, Idaho, Oregon, Colorado, and Missouri.

The bill would allow producers of most major crops, excluding tobacco, sugar, and wool to adopt nationwide marketing control orders. Growers of crops which did not employ this device would be asked to choose between continuing present federal programs and adoption of new "stabilization" plans which could include rigid marketing controls and a wide range of support devices, including limited direct compensatory payments.

Atlas Missile Blows Up While Being Fueled

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—An Atlas intercontinental missile blew up while being fueled in a routine training operation Saturday.

The mysterious explosion occurred on one of three operational Atlas launch sites, a spokesman said. It was not disclosed whether this West Coast missile base had another Atlas on stand-by 15-minute alert.

The Air Force said no one was injured in the blast, which occurred at noon.

A spokesman said the missile, 82 feet tall, "destroyed itself" as it was being fueled in a routine training operation.

At least one missile on the three combat-ready pads at Vandenberg reportedly is armed with components of a nuclear bomb, ready to be launched on 15 minutes notice. There was no indication, however, whether the missile that exploded contained these components. There was no nuclear explosion.

The Air Force said an investigation was under way to determine the cause of the explosion.

Install New Pastor At W.M. Church

Installation services for the Rev. Earl Wiggins, pastor-elect, at Highland Presbyterian Church in West Monroe were held last Sunday with the Rev. John Bradshaw of St. Joseph serving as guest speaker.

Dr. Hugh Bradshaw of the Memorial Presbyterian Church presented the charge to the pastor and Elder George T. Walker gave the charge to the congregation. Rev. Archie Faires of the Rayville Church presided at the installation service.

Rev. Wiggins was born in Van Alstyne, Texas, and holds degrees from Austin College and Austin Theological Seminary. He has held pastorates in Tallulah and Wichita Falls, Texas. For the past six years, he has served as pastor of the Natchitoches Presbyterian Church.

He is married to the former Miss Gladys J. Martin of Cameron, Texas, and is the father of four children.

Air Charges Of Reds In U.S. Churches

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Accusing the churches of Communist ties is an old and familiar occupation.

It is the chief endeavor today of numerous small associations and individual pamphleteers about the country.

Their theme was echoed in the Air Force training manual which was withdrawn after a protest from the National Council of Churches, but which has stirred continuing controversy.

The material that caused the uproar, however, was nothing new.

Mlle. de Verno Is Fr. Fashion Ambassador

Associated Press Women's Editor

Speaking of glamour careers, meet Monique de Nervo.

This chic and charming young Frenchwoman has a job that most any girl in the world would give her eye teeth for. As representative of the Chambre Syndicale of Paris she is international good will ambassador for French fashion.

She is in New York in charge of 17 temperamental Paris models and 45 costumes from the Haute Couture, worth a quarter of a million dollars and weighing 900 pounds. Girls and clothes were flown to the United States for a gala TV spectacular on the evening of Feb. 29, coinciding with the release date for publication of Paris spring fashion pictures. While others are supervising the production, Monique is responsible for the safety and good conduct of models and the priceless gowns from Paris.

"Until you've tried to chaperone 17 French girls in New York," she says, "you'll never know what can happen to your nervous system. And until you've had nightmares about what could happen to a quarter million dollars' worth of Paris originals, through theft, fire or flood, you'll never really value a good night's sleep."

THE BETROTHAL of Miss Carolyn Sue Peoples, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Peoples of Winnsboro, to John Marshall Wright Jr. of Winnsboro, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wright is made known today. The vows will be heard by Rev. Joe Mongle at the Temple Baptist Church, Winnsboro, March 18 at 8 p.m.

Two Convicted Killers Hired To Babysit

WALLA WALLA, Was. (AP) — "Certainly, we trust them with the children," says Warden Bob Rhay of the two convicted murderers who help care for his five young daughters. "They're almost like members of the family."

The two convicts, called Chop Chop and Neal, are cook and houseboy, respectively, in the Rhay home on the Washington State Prison grounds.

"When the kids fall down or get in trouble, they run to Chop," says Rhay.

"Chop and Neal are both like big brothers. The tendency is to spoil the girls."

At night the two convicts return to their quarters in the prison's minimum-security building.

"The kids don't think of them as inmates," the warden explained "They just say Chop and Neal have gone home."

Twelve-year-old Joel Montgomery of Denver, Colo., was winner of the National Spelling Bee contest in 1959.

University To Designate News Award

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)— Lincoln University announced Saturday it will present awards for fair coverage of racial news to The Associated Press.the Atlantic Monthly and the Columbia Broadcasting CO.

The 1960 Curators' Awards for "significant contributions to better human relations" will be presented March 30 by the university's school of journalism.

Lincoln University, a Negro school until 1954, at that time began accepting white students who now number about one third of its 1,500 enrollment.

The Associated Press was cited for "it's long record of depth coverage of both racial conflict and racial harmony; it's concentrated attention to the multifarious aspects of the integration story, and its extensive use of the survey to interpret public behavior."

CBS's practice of integrating network program personnel and granting equal employment opportunities earned it a citation, the university said.

The Atlantic Monthly was praised for its several reports on problems of racial minorities and underprivileged peoples.

Frank J. Starzel, general manager of The Associated Press has been invited to receive the award for the AP. Columbia's invited representative is Dr. M. George Crothers, chairman of that network's "Invitation to Learning," and Edward Weeks, editor of the Atlantic Monthly, is scheduled to receive the magazine's award.

The awards were established in 1952 to honor media and agencies whose reports and published materials serve to promote understanding among faiths, ethnic and cultural groups of this and other countries.

The department of journalism selects the award nominees which are reviewed by the university's board of curators.

Two Men Held In Bombing

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Two men were arrested Saturday for investigation in the bombing of a nonunion barbershop.

Police Chief Ron W. Orin identified them as Merrel Jackson Cline 32, formerly of Johnson, Kan., and Tommy Hoover, 18, of nearby Martinez, Calif.

None of the 11 persons in the shop or a real estate office next door was injured.

Cline, a barbershop owner at Martinez, was booked on two felony charges, possession of explosives on a public street and illegal use of explosives. Hoover was held for questioning and for parole violation.

Orin told newsmen that Cline admitted he drove a car which took a handmade time bomb to the nonunion shop operated by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McConnell. Gunpowder and a coil of fuse were found in Cline's car.

The bomb was placed on the roof of Chris' Barbershop at 3:30 a.m. Friday. Although timed to explode in 15 minutes, it burst about 10 hours later.

A large hole was blown in the shop's roof, a plate glass window was shattered and the ceiling in an adjoining real estate office was damaged.

Orin said Cline had been a member of the barber's union Local 917 at Pittsburg, Calif., two years.

McConnell, 36, said his wife, Christine, 30, also a barber, had received threatening telephone calls. Although his shop was picketed at one time, McConnell refused to join the union.

Union barbershops in the San Francisco Bay region charge $2 for a hair cut; nonunion shops $1.50.

International Bank Being Organized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost surrounded by multibillion dollar neighbors, the world's newest international bank is being organized in rented offices in a Pennsylvania Avenue building.

It is the Inter-American Development Bank, established by 20 of the 21 American republics to help speed Latin America's economic development. Cuba at first hesitated, then spurned, and finally attacked the bank as a scheme of Yankee imperialism.

Actually the bank is run largely by Latin Americans, and six of its seven directors are Latin Americans.

The new institution did borrow some desks from the U.S. Treasury to get started but these will be returned.

He appears unawed by the giant institutions in the neighborhood. The World Bank, with $18,800,000,000 capital, and the International Monetary Fund, with 14 billions, are just across the street. Nearby is the U.S. government's Export-Import Bank, with 7 billion dollars of capital.

"We are making a modest beginning, but it is our hope the bank will be one of the means of channeling into Latin America great amounts of developmental credits," Herrera says. "By attracting private capital into financing of worthwhile projects, for example, we should be able to provide credits greatly exceeding our eventual capital of one billion dollars."

Right now, the bank doesn't even have a vault. It has a nominal fund to get operations under way, and expects to have capital subscriptions og 150 million dollars by Sept. 30.

Herrera says the bank expects to be ready to receive its first loan applications by that time.

As to why a new international lending institution is needed, Herrera says "this is a regional organism, especially for Latin America, with a program designed particularly for that area."

INCLUDED IN REPORTS

Rate Increases Are Gloomy Spots

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)— Rate increases subject to possible refund are among the few gloomy spots natural gas transmission companies are including in 1959 financial reports.

Revenues received but subject to downward adjustment in the future involve hundreds of millions of dollars.

The tedious and time-consuming process of affecting rate hikes to some degree is hindering long-range planning by the interstate pipeliners.

Business continues to boom for the long line industry that moves gas from the Southwest to such areas as the Middle West and Northwest. But negotiations for final approval of rate hikes sometimes continue several years.

The interstate lines, after a six-month notice, can start collecting a higher rate without prior approval by the Federal Power Commission (FPC), ny portion later failing to receive FPC approval, however, must be refunded.

Two of the nation's five largest transmission companies released glowing reports this week of 1959 operations. Between them, however, they reported $118,780,000 in refundable income collected over a three-year period.

Tennessee Gas Transmission Co. reported a 13 per cent increase in operating income but placed the amount of conditionally refundable revenues for the past three years as $13,697,000, $29,527,000, and $43,102,000.

Total consolidated operating revenues for Texas Eastern Transmission Corp. rose 11 per cent over 1958 but collections subject to refund as of December 31 totaled $32,454,106.

The situation drew emphasis in reports to stockholders of both companies.

Despite operating revenues, Texas Eastern's net income declined. The uncertain status of pending rate increases drew part of the blame from George R. Brown, board chairman, and Orville S. Carpenter, president.

"Because of the time involved in securing Federal Power Commission approval of rate increases, the earnings picture of the natural gas industry for several years has been overshadowed by the contingencies of revenues collected subject to refund," they said in their report to stockholders.

"Settlement of these rate cases, in addition to providing increased revenues, would enable us to plan future operations unencumbered by such contingencies. . ."

Gardiner Symonds, board chairman and president, said Tennessee had three gas sales rate cases before the FPC at the end of 1959.

"Hearings are continuing in 1960 on increased rates subject to refund since 1957," Symonds said. "A second increase subject to refund became effective May 15, 1959, and a third filed Oct. 5, 1959, will become effective April 5, 1960.

"These new rates are necessary to offset rises in the cost of gas purchased and in the costs of operation and debt capital."

Texas Eastern rates still pending became effective Nov. 10, 1957, and Dec. 1, 1959.

Tennessees' operating revenues last year exceeded 463 million dollars, compared to 408 million in 1958. Texas Eastern's record consolidated operating revenues exceeded 296 million, compared to 266 million a year earlier.

Business Belted By Weather

NEW YORK (AP) — A steep drop in stock prices and bad weather belted finance and business this week.

The stock market suffered its most severe loss of the year.

Some analysts contended the bull market had turned into a bear market. Others argued it was only a temporary setback.

Stock sales amounted to 16,239,695 shares compared with 12,689,645 the previous week. On the bond market, sales amounted to $32,534,000 par value compared with $23,267,000 the previous week.

Business men persisted in their statements that 1960 is going to be a good year. But brokers found discouragement in signs that it isn't going to be as good as almost everyone thought at the beginning of the year.

Cold and snow swept across most of the nation and played hob with consumer buying. Retail trade's decline from a year ago was as high as four per cent in some areas.

In the Northeast, many industrial plants shut down because of the snow.

The Federal Reserve Board reported that buying on credit got off to a fast start in January, mainly on the basis of new car purchases. The January total rose 393 million dollars over a year ago.

A nationwide survey of purchasing agents showed they are finding business good but not living up to the "Sizzling 60s" predictions of a few weeks ago.

The Commerce Department reported construction outlays of $3,600,000,000 in February, a record for the month. The four per cent drop from January was less than the usual seasonal decline.

The steel industry operated at an estimated 93.1 per cent capacity this week, down only 1.3 per cent from last week. A secondary wave of demand from small users of steel was reported giving the steel market a steadier tone.

Estimated automobile production of 155,000 cars this week showed a slight gain over last week and a sharp rise over a year ago. But some makers started cutting output because dealers' stocks were pretty well clogged.

Production for February totaled 659,303 cars, not as many as anticipated but still ahead of the record 1955 rate.

Wholesale food prices crept up this week with Dun & Bradstreet's index—the cost of one pound each of 31 foods in general use—reaching $5.81. It was $5.78 a week ago and $6.11 a year ago.

Briefly around the business scene: Southern Carpet Mills are following textile mills in raising wages. Hart, Schaffner and Marx predicts clothing prices will rise next fall because of wage increases. Filter cigarettes accounted for more than half of the total cigarette sales in 1959. Western Union Telegraph Co. awarded a contract for a 3,700-mile microwave system linking Boston and Los Angeles. The Federal Home Loan Bank Board says the average retail price of homes will increase four per cent this year. Montgomery Ward & Co. and Wilson & Co. joined in a plan to sell frozen meats by mail order.

Mickey Drives Home After Weeks In Jail

By JACK OWENS

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Dr. George H. Mickey Saturday drove home the automobile authorities hold seven weeks while he was jailed on a charge he murdered a woman professor.

The grand jury deadlocked in atempts to decide whether to indict him on the charge or clear him. He is free on $10,000 property bond.

Stock Mart Hits Worst In 2 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market this week, hexed by a "bear market signal" in the Dow Jones average, plummeted to its worst weekly loss since October 1957.

An estimated $9,400,000,000 was shorn from the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, based on the fall in The Associated Press average.

This put the total quoted value of stocks listed on that exchange roughly at 279 billion dollars.

The market declined during every session this week and marred budding hopes for a "spring rally" fostered by higher prices in the two preciding weeks.

Sellers rushed to unload Thursday when the Dow Jones rail average plunged below its November low of 146.55 as it fell 3.92 to 142.98. According to followers of the Dow theory — and there are many on Wall Street—this "confirmed" the February drop of the Dow industrials to a new 1959-'60 low and therefore a "bear market" was official.

Many Wall Street analysts do not hold with the Dow theory and say similar "bear signals" in 1953 and 1957 caused merely a temporary interruption in the 10-year bull market. Nevertheless, the theory is held in enough respect so that discouraged selling reached quite a pitch.

Volume swelled to 16,239,695 shares compared with 12,689,645 the week before and was the largest since the week ended Feb. 20 when 17,290,350 shares were traded.

The AP 60-stock average fell 7.10 to 211.50, matching its lvel Feb. 9, 1959. It was the worst weekly break since the "sputniked" week ended Oct. 11, 1957 when the AP average lost 8.20.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 22.21 to 609.79, a new low for this year.

Of 1,416 issues traded this week on the exchange, only 286 advanced while 1,016 declined. New 1959-'60 highs totaled 39 and new lows 227.

Most active issue this week on the New York Stock Exchange was American Motors (new), unchanged at 24 on 425,200 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was Brown Co., up ⅛ at 14⅛ on 156,700 shares.

U.S. government securities led the bond markets in a broad general advance.

Trading started slowly but closed with a rush. Corporate bonds had their busiest day of the year Friday with a turnover of $8,160,000 par value on the big board.

Grain Market Posts Some Of Best Gains

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market posted some of its best gains in a month this week on a combination of factors. It also had some of its steepest setbacks in two weeks or more.

Oats and soybeans were the big gainers, rye the broadest loser. Wheat and corn prices were mixed, moving up on old crop contracts and falling back on the new.

Weather became more of a long range market consideration than it had been for some time. The succession of snowfalls over much of the Great Plains continued to be a boon to the 1960 winter wheat crop for its protection against a cold wave at midweek and for the moisture it will provide when the grain emerges from dormancy in the next few weeks.

But traders talked, too, of the probable delay it will cause in spring field work.

At the end of the week, wheat was ⅜ cent a bushel higher to ⅞ lower, March $1.97⅜-⅝; corn 1 cent higher to ⅜ lower, March $1.13-12⅞; oats 1⅜-1¾ higher, March 75¼; rye 1-2½ cents lower, March $1.19¼; soybeans ⅞-1¾ higher, March $2.10⅛-⅜.

Power Lines Are Restored After Storm

HOMER (Special) — The power lines of Claiborne Electric Cooperative, Inc., severly crippled by last week's ice storm were almost all up again Saturday night, according to manager Orval Couch.

Couch said that Wednesday morning his system was almost totally disabled by falling trees laden with tons of ice from the previous night's record freeze. The 2,500 miles of lines serve over 9,000 member-consumers. A majority of them were without electricity after the icy deluge.

Couch also reported that the lines and poles of Louisiana Power and Light Co. and Southern Bell Telephone Co. in the area around Homer were also down.

PROGRESS

Crews from the co-op and both the utilities have been working around the clock to restore service.

As of Saturday morning, Couch said, all but about 20 per cent of the co-op members had the electric service restored. The remaining 20 per cent were hooked back up throughout the day.

Linemen and work crews from Baton Rouge, Natchitoches, Winnsboro and Ferriday assisted Claiborne service men in working the lines.

Damage to the timber in the northern section of the state affected by the ice storm was estimated to run into several million dollars. One old timer said the was the most damaging freeze this area since the 1890's.

STORY OF THE WEEK

Supreme Court's 2 Big Decisions

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Supreme Court struck two blows for Negro voting rights this week while Southern senators tied Senate business in knots with an around-the-clock anti-civil rights filibuster.

First, the court upheld the constitutionality of the 1957 Federal Civil Rights Act which permits the Department of Justice to bring civil suits on behalf of disenfranchised Negroes. This case concerned voting registrars in Terrell County, Ga.

Next, it unanimously affirmed a lower court decision which ordered Louisiana to restore 1,377 "purged" Negroes to the voting rolls in Washington Parish so they can take part in an April 19 election. The Negroes were disenfranchised by the White Citizens Council because of "errors" in their registration forms.

The edicts in effect cleared the way for full-scale enforcement of the civil rights law. They also bore significantly on the Senate civil rights debate since unabridged voting rights is a major issue.

Attorney General William P. Rogers asserted the decisions were "a firm foundation for further congressional action to protect the right of Negroes to vote."

Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.), chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and champion of white supremacy, refused to allow the rulings to be printed in the Senate record.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., (D-N.C.) spoke after Eastland and challenged the qualifications of the Supreme Court justices. He said it was "an astounding thing" but that few had had long legal experience. Ervin is a former justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Associate Justice William J. Brennan Jr., read the high court's opinion in the Georgia case. He asserted the civil rights statute "was clearly constitutional as applied to the facts in this case"—discrimination by state officials—and that the lower court had erred in even considering the constitutional issue.

The case was the first brought under the civil rights law by the attorney general. It charged the county registrars had applied, excessively rigid standards to Negro literacy tests and had rejected among others four local Negro teachers who had college degrees. An injunction was sought.

Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis dismissed the suit. He held that the U.S. Constitution banned racial discrimination "only by government officials"—not private citizens—and that the act could be construed to permit suits against private citizens.

The case went back to Judge Davis who now must decide whether the registrars did discriminate against the Negroes as charged.

In Terrell County, chief registrar James G. Raines said the ruling did not alter procedures under the 1958 Georgia Registration Act and hence the county would continue to register Negroes under it even though most of them might be disqualified.

Under the literacy test an applicant to qualify must read intelligibly and write legibly sections of either the U.S. or Georgia constitutions. Or he may qualify by answering questions on the federal or state government systems.

In the Louisiana case Federal Judge J. Skelly Wright of New Orleans had ordered the Negroes restored to the rolls but action had been delayed by the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals until it could hear an appeal. The Supreme Court vacated this order.

The Civil Rights Act seeks to support the 15th Amendment to the Constitution which holds that "no state" shall deny any citizen the right to vote, regardless of race or color.

The Louisiana suit was started by the Justice Department against the Washington Parish registar, the Citizens Council of the Parish, and others. Under Louisiana law any two qualified voters may challenge another's right to vote. The government suit charged the council members challenged Negroes for reasons of race and used faulty excuses to disqualify them.

ELECTION YEAR TALK

State Primaries Can Be Important

By RELMAN MORIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

For two reasons, a state primary can be an extremely important event in the year when Americans elect a president.

In the first place, the primary may be a political weather vane pointing the direction of voter sentiment. In the second, it often has a powerful psychological impact on the national nominating conventions; it may start one band wagon rolling and effectively put the brakes on another.

It is always the first of 16 state elections. This year, it is to be held March 8.

WATCHED CLOSELY

As the first, it attracts more attention than its size would warrant if the election were held later. Politicians — party leaders, candidates, delegates and would - be delegates in other states — carefully analyze the returns from New Hampshire.

Twice, in the immediate past, New Hampshire voters gave the professionals something to talk about.

In 1952, they expressed a marked preference for a man who was an x-factor in the political equation and was not even in the United States at the time—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. His opponent was the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, who campaigned hard around the state.

Again in 1956, the voters cast a surprising write-in vote — totaling 23,000 — for Vice President Nixon. It went a long way toward squelching the "dump-Nixon" movement, initiated by Harold E. Stassen. Stassen had claimed that surveys showed Nixon would hurt the Republican chances if he were named as Eisenhower's running mate.

Here's the way the New Hampshire primary shapes up this year:

It is actually two elections, Republican and Democratic, held simultaneously. Party members cannot "cross over," that is, the law does not permit Republicans to vote for Democrats and vice versa.

The state will send 14 GOP delegates to the national nominating convention. There are 20 to be elected to the Democratic convention, each with a half-vote.

Contending for the 14 Republican seats are 37 candidates, 28 favorable to Nixon, six for New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, and one each for Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, and Lar (America First) Daly, a perennial candidate.

In the Democratic election, 45 persons are contending for the 20 seats. The Democratic ballot breaks down like this:

Twenty are pledged to Sen. John F. Kennedy, of Massachusetts; another 16 are running as "favorable" to him, the result of an intra - party fight.

There are five running "favorable" to Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, two running uncommitted, and one each "favorable" to Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota and Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic candidate in 1952 and 1956.

There, the voter casts his ballot, not for a delegate pledged or "favorable" to a candidate, but for the candidate himself. It was here in 1956 that the 23,000 wrote in Nixon's name.

This year, two names are in the Democratic "beauty contest," Kennedy's and that of Paul Fisher, Chicago manufacturer.

The Republican ballot has the names of Nixon and Daly in the preferential section.

To be in the "beauty contest," a candidate must give written authorization to his supporters to put him on the ballot. Humphrey, Stevenson, Symington, Rockefeller, Lodge, and Dr. Eisenhower did not give this authorization.

Their names, however, may be written in the "beauty contest."

Thus, considerable interest centers this year on two questions relating to the ballot —

First, will any of the delegate-candidates running as "favorable" to men not on the ballot be elected in preference to those who back the candidates officially on the ballot? That is, will any of Kennedy's backers be defeated by delegate - candidates "favorable" to the other Democrats? And will any of those favoring Rockefeller defeat those running as favorable to Nixon?

Second, will there be any sizable write-in votes in the "beauty contest" for men whose names are not printed on the ballot?

If Kennedy and Nixon win easily in their respective elections, political analysts will have little to study.

They may, however, find some food for thought in another aspect of the voting.

New Hampshire is a Republican state. Usually, the GOP vote in the primary is twice as big as the Democratic total, or more. This year, Kennedy's supporters are working hard to narrow the margin between the total votes cast for the two parties.

They hope that this will demonstrate Kennedy's vote - getting power — with the desired effect on Democrats all over the country.

For the same reason, Nixon's backers are out to roll up a vote for him which will maintain the traditional margin between the parties.

Admiral Tells State Group Of Red Might

NEW IBERIA, La. (UPI) — Adm. Arleigh A. Burke said today that America should start preparing for the day when Russia will have nuclear - powered submarines capable of firing 1,500-mile missiles like the Polaris.

The chief of naval operations said in a prepared speech that the Soviet fleet of 400 submarines already constituted "the greatest challenge to our free use of the seas."

Speaking at the opening of a Naval Auxiliary Air Station here, Burke added:

"This threat will grow as Soviet submarines also achieve nuclear power, and can handle missiles like the Polaris."

Burke said America, to meet the submarine threat and to counter the Soviet challenge in the air, must replace existing aircraft carriers that he described as "old, old indeed."

He said these carriers must be replaced with types that can handle more modern planes equal to the best the Russians have.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY NEARS

Most Popular Irish Song Was Written By Dutchman

Editor's Note —No matter where you go on St. Patrick's day, you're sure to hear someone singing "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." And before you know it, the whole world is joining in. It undoubtedly is the most popular Irish song ever written. But the question is: Is it Irish?

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

STROUDSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Many's the night as he lies in bed in his hotel room here, George Graff will be kept awake by the raucous sounds of a party drifting up from the ballroom below.

As the party gets later and louder, with the inevitable whisky tenors bawling out the oldtime songs, Graff will be on the verge of picking up the phone to complain to desk clerk. But then, as almost always happens, someone will intone:

"When Irish eyes are smiling, Sure it's like a morn in spring-"

The singing won't be very good —it seldom is at that hour—but to Graff it will sound as glorious as the great John McCormack himself. With a beatific smile on his face and maybe just the trace of a tear, Graff will roll over and sleep the sleep of sweet contentment.

George Graff just can't help smiling whenever he hears "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." You see, he wrote the words to that song nearly a half century ago and lived to see it become the most popular Irish song ever written. Quite an accomplishment for a Dutchman who has never been to Ireland and doesn't have a dropeen of Irish blood in his background.

Graff is going on 74 now, a spry, bouncy broth of a lad who still writes songs, mostly of a religious nature these days, and gets from $7,000 to $9,000 a year in ASCAP fees and recording royalties from his all-time Irish hit.

If he wanted to, he could have a ball every St. Patrick's Day. "I could go from one end of this town to the other and never have to buy a drink, just on the strength of 'Irish Eyes.' But they always ask me to sing it, and that embarrasses me. I'm not much of an entertainer, never have been. So I spend the day by myself here in the room."

There were times in the past when St. Patrick's Day held nothing but trouble for the man who immortalized smiling Irish eyes. After the big parade in New York he'd stop into a bar or restaurant for a bit of refreshment, and sooner or later some homesick Hibernian would wrap his tonsils around "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

"I wrote that song," Graff would announce with quiet pride when the last high notes had cleared the chandelier.

"You're a bloody liar," would come the wounded retort. "Sure didn't I learn that lovely ballad at me old mother's knee?"

And, ironically, both of them would be right. The song has that kind of a history.

It was written in 1912 for a Chauncye Olcott show called "Isle O' Dreams." Olcott then was the country's foremost Irish actor and singer, starring in a series of sentimental comedies that extolled the virtues of Irish country life. Under titles like "Barry of Ballymore," "Mavourneed" and "The Heart of Paddy Whack" these bucolic romances played to packed houses across the country for more than three decades, mainly on the strength of the star's box office appeal.

Roguishly handsome and endowed with a rich tenor voice, Olcott was billed as "The Serving Girls' Delight." because of the number of heartsick immigrant lasses who swooned to his portrayals of the brave bucko back home in the sugarloaf hat, the gaudy green jacket and the ruffle-collared shirt.

Few suspected he was born John Chamberlain in Buffalo, N.Y., started out in show business as a blackface minstrel and sang his first Irish song in an English music hall.

Sometimes Olcott wrote these plays and did all the songs. Other times he called in outsiders like Anne Nichols of "Abie's Irish Rose" fame. For "Isle O' Dreams" he hired Ernest Ball and George Graff, a new song writing team that had just turned out "Till the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," a 2½ million sale hit.

Ball, who did the music, was born in Cleveland of German panrets; Graff, the lyricist, was born in New York City of Dutch and German stock. Both were on the staff of M. Witmark & Sons, then as now a leading song publishing house, but both had outside jobs. Ball was a relief pianist in a vaudeville house, Graff was sales manager of a cutlery importing firm.

"Isle O' Dreams," like all the Olcott shows, had about a dozen songs interpolated into the plot. "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," the big commercial number, was the last to be written. Graff vividly recalls how this came about.

"I was recuperating from an appendicitis operation when someone down at the office spread the rumor that I was dying," he said. "My sales force was on the verge of quitting so I called a meeting to show them I was on the mend. We no sooner got started than Julie Witmark telephoned to ask about the final song for the Olcott show. I recessed the staff meeting until 8 that night and hurried up to Witmark's.

"Olcott was already there. He suggested something about eyes, maybe Irish eyes, but not, he insisted, mother's eyes. He was death on the word mother in a song title, although later he and Ernie Ball had a tremendous hit in 'Mother Machree.' I already had Irish and eyes. The rest was easy."

BREATHLESS WAITING

Jurors Weighing Finch Evidence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nearly alone in the huge country courthouse, 12 jurors Saturday weighed conflicting claims in a maze of testimony equalling the wordage of 25 book-length novels. They sought:

The truth about socialite Barbara Jean Finch's death.

This they must decide:

Was it an accident, as Dr. R. Bernard Finch and his pretty mistress, Carole Tregoff, contend?

Or was it a cold-blood deliberate murder, as the state says?

On the finding of the seven women and five men may hinge the lives of the rish suburban surgeon and his onetime receptionist.

The jurors were virtually the only occupants of the two-block-long courthouse Saturday.

The jury reconvened at 8:30 a.m. Saturday after having deliberated 95 minutes Friday. In midmorning they sent out for some large sheets of paper, the type used earlier in the trial for maps of the death scene.

Gone were the hundreds of spectators who have filled the corridors and courtroom much of the time since the courtroom drama began Dec. 8.

Absent, too, were those most concerned with the decisions being made by the jurors. Dr. Finch, 42, and Miss Tregoff, 23, waited in their jail cells. Their attorneys and Superior Court Judge Walter R. Evans were at their homes.

Scattered though they were, the prime figures all waited only for the ring of a telephone — for word that a verdict had been reached. At that signal they would hurry to the courtroom.

Mrs. Finch, the doctor's estranged second wife. was shot in the back outside their fashionable West Covina home last July 18.

The prosecution charged that Dr. Finch and Miss Tregoff plotted to kill his wife so they could wed without splitting th e$750,000 Finch estate with Mrs. Finch.

The defense denied any plot, beyond attempts to find compromising evidence against Mrs. Finch to offset the doctor's admitted adulterous affairs. The shooting itself came, Dr. Finch asserted, when the pistol went off as he tried to hurl it out of reach.

The jury's biggest job: Whom to believe?

The doctor — who had three jurors weeping when he described a dramatic death scene in which his dying wife whispered, "I should have listened."

Miss Tregoff — who denied they ever planned to kill her love rival.

John Patrick Cody — a Minneapolis underworld character who said the couple hired him to murder Mrs. Finch, although he never intended to go throught with it.

Marie Anne Lidholm—the Finch maid who said her mistress was terrified by threats from Dr. Finch.

The jury will not be brought to the courthouse Sunday. Confined to their downtown hotel, they will be allowed to leaveonly to go out to dinner by bus. They will not be permitted to go to church because they must stay together and not all are of the same faith.

Small Boy Symbolic Of Many Asians

TOKYO (AP) — In a thatched village on the Mekong River in Laos, two days travel from anywhere, a ragged Laotian boy approached a wandering American, grinned and said: "I like to speak English with you."

The lad, who had seldom met a Westener in the tiny Southeast Asian kingdom until the crisis in Loas last summer, stumbled over the next couple of words and stopped with embarrassment.

Athough he mumbed and sputtered, he was symbolic of thousands of Asians who have been zealously studying English since World War II in order to widen their horizons — some by methods rather dubious and at times humerous.

In no small way the American GI has been a well-meaning English-language ambassador wherever he has been stationed.

An incident reported — which may or may not be true — involves a proud American GI who exchanged vows with his Asian girl before a U.S. Army chaplain.

"Do you take this soldier to be your lawful wedded husband?"

"Sahr," she demurely replied, "Dat no bull."

And yet despite such innocent blunders, the desire to "speak English" with an American or a visiting European is demonstrated almost every day in capital cities of the Far East.

English conversation schools have mashroomed throughout Asia. In Malaya and Singapore. however, newly won independence and a rising tide of nationalism have caused the resurgence of native tongues — primarily Malayan and Chinese.

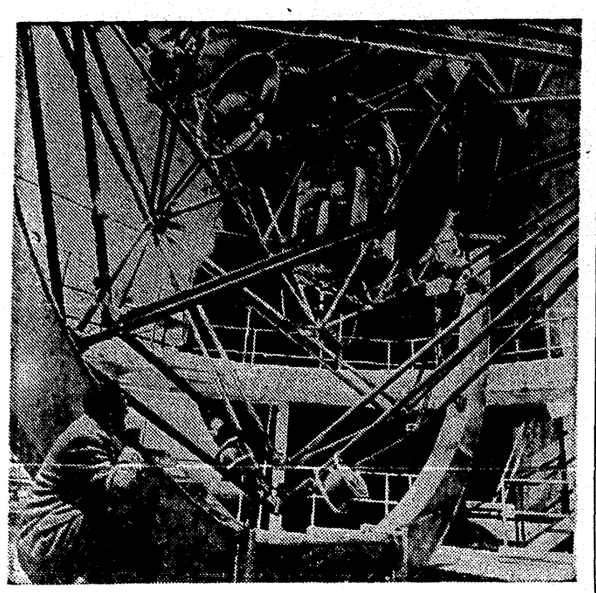
Nonetheless, English — a legacy of a century of British rule — is still favored in government and commercial circles there. Observers believe English will remain the favorite in former British administered territories of Southeast Asia since Colombo Plan activities and international trade are becoming more dependent on the English language.

English, both grammatical and pidgin — that strange jargon consisting of a simplified form of English based on an Asian syntax first started by the Chinese —has been the common language in Hong Kong from the time the British first took over the colony in 1841.

English was adopted by Thailand as its second language a century ago when King Mongkut of "Anna and the King of Siam" fame studied it in a monastery and then ordered an English tutor for his children.

In South Korea and Formosa, English was practically unknown under Japanese occupation but today it is fast becoming the second tongue. South Korea has an estimated 5,000 students, reportedly second only to Canada, studying in America.

Reports. indicate Communist China is not discouraging English. In fact, it is believed to be second to Russian.



ENGINEER ROBERT R. MILLER conveys instructions to pilot-engineer Joseph Algranti as they run disorientation, or "spin tests," in the Multiple Axis Space Test Inertia Facility at the Lewis Research Center near Cleveland. The simulated space capsule is instrumented and mounted in the center cage of the three-cage gimbal rig. By means of jet motors emitting spurts of nitrogen gas, the multiple axis rig simulates all attitudes—pitch, roll and yaw—of space flight. The rig is being demonstrated at the Lewis Center. LAKE BRUIN

Improvement Plans Underway At Park

BATON ROUGE (Special) — One phase of improvements for the Lake Bruin State Park has just been completed and plans are already being studied for another phase to get underway almost immediately, according to L. A. Talley, director of the Louisiana State Parks and Recreation Commission.

Talley who is currently making a tour of the state parks stopped at Lake Bruin recently to inspect the improvements and to discuss the plans for more with superintendent Raymond Doss.

Lake Bruin State Park which consists of some 53 acres has been made more accessible to the public, Talley pointed out, reporting that a two and a half mile stretch of black top road has just been completed leading to the park proper and inside the park a mile of black top road has been added.

One of the major improvements included at the park is the combination recreation hall and picnic shelter.

The two existing parking lots which cover more than 3,000 square feet have also been black topped, the state park director said.

The beach along side the swimming pool at the park has been enlarged to three times its original size. The park has been landscaped with new sod, shrubs and bulbs being planted.

Talley said that a 600-foot by 75-foot lagoon has been dredged along Lake Bruin so that cruisers and runabout boats of visitors can be docked easier. The twelve fishing boats at the lake have been repaired and painted.

The lake cottage has been renovated and a new tent and camping area covering a 10-acre site has been established. This area is equipped with electrical and sanitary facilities.

Talley in giving his report on the Lake Bruin improvements noted that plans are being made for the construction of a boat dock and shelter facilities for housing privately - owned boats. He explained that the Tensas Parish police jury will cooperate in providing funds for this project.

Lake Bruin which is located six miles north of St. Joseph off U. S. Highway 65 provides facilities for fishing, swimming, picnicing, boating and camping.

Lake Bruin has attracted many visitors each year and last year Talley said that 138,000 persons took advantage of the park facilities.

Population

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The civil population of this Nationalist Chinese island stood at 10,431,341 at the end of last year, the government announced. This shows an increase of 391,906 in 1959 and does not include armed forces of about 600,000 men.

The Statue of Liberty is 305 feet 1 inch from the foundation of the pedestal to the torch.

Growing African Lion Sold By Want Ad

When H. R. Ankrom, Washington, D. C., bought an African lion "just for laughs," he forgot about a young lion's tendency to grow bigger and bigger . . .

Finally, with a 100-pound beast rough-housing around, and with the Welfare Dept. "suggesting" he get rid of the animal, Mr. Ankrom ran a Want Ad in The Wheeling Intelligencer. Response was so great that he quickly sold the lion to an Advertising Executive) and received at least ten other offers.

DAGWOOD--WAKE UP! THERE'S A BURGLAR DOWNSTAIRS
IT'S JUST YOUR IMAGINATION--YOU'RE ALWAYS HEARING THINGS
REALLY--I'M RIGHT THIS TIME--I ACTUALLY HEARD HIM RATTLING OUR SILVERWARE
IT'S JUST THE WIND OR A MOUSE
NOW, STOP ARGUING AND GET DOWN THERE QUICK!
WE'LL ALL CHEER FOR DADDY WHEN THE FIGHTING STARTS
HALP--HE'S GOT ME BY THE THROAT!
QUICK--QUICK--HE'S STRANGLING ME!
BE BRAVE, DEAR--WE'RE COMING
WE'LL SAVE YOU, POP
STOP IT! THIS IS ME! THE BURGLAR IS IN THE NEXT ROOM!
THAT'S NO BURGLAR! IT'S JUST MY SEAMSTRESS' DRESS FORM
THERE--YOU SEE, I WAS RIGHT IN THE FIRST PLACE! THERE WAS NO BURGLAR AFTER ALL
YOU JUST DON'T WANT A BURGLAR

I THINK YOU SHOULD GIVE SOME OF THEM UP-
AW, NO-- I'M THINKIN' OF TAKIN' UP MOUNTAIN CLIMBIN'-
RIDICULOUS! A MAN YOUR AGE TAKING UP SUCH A DANGEROUS SPORT-
IF YOU WANT MORE ACTIVITY, WHY NOT WORK A LITTLE HARDER?
THEN YOU WOULDN'T HAVE SO MUCH TIME TO SPEND WITH YOUR ROWDY FRIENDS!
OK! OK! I'LL STICK TO CROSS-WORD PUZZLES!

SMILIN' JACK
AFTER THE VIOLENT BREAK-UP BETWEEN HARDWAY AND APOGEE, NO-SWEAT MOVES IN ON THE REBOUND!
JACK
HE PLIES APOGEE WITH FLOWERS AND KIND ATTENTION AND SOON THEY ARE GOING TOGETHER AGAIN!
WELL, APOGEE, NO-SWEAT IS GOING TO TRY THE FIRST FIN SKID LANDING IN THE X-SHHH!
YES, SMILIN' JACK--HE'LL CUT LOOSE FROM THE B-52 SOON! I'M SO WORRIED!
HOW CAN THE TINY WINGS KEEP THAT BEAST FROM FALLING?
IT'LL BE LIKE TRYIN' TO FLY A LOCOMOTIVE --BUT OTHER CLIP-WING JOBS LIKE THE X-15 FLY!
AT 40,000 FT. AND 500 M.P.H. NO-SWEAT CUTS LOOSE!
HARDWAY WATCHES
I SHOULD BE FLYING THAT X-SHHH BUT I LOST OUT AS A TEST PILOT AND I'VE LOST MY GIRL, TOO!
MEANWHILE: PRINCE PYRO IS ALSO THINKING ABOUT A LOST GIRL.
EVERY TIME I FLY TO THE CARIBBEAN ISLANDS, I FEEL I'LL FIND SIROCCO!
HAVE EITHER OF YOU EVER SEEN THIS GIRL?

Little Orphan Annie

"THE FOXES HAVE HOLES, AND THE BIRDS OF THE AIR HAVE NESTS; BUT THE SON OF MAN HATH NOT WHERE TO LAY HIS HEAD."—JUST GIVE THIS GAL TIME!
—NEW TESTAMENT.

OH, BOY! DID THAT KID FOOL US! BUT IT WAS OUR OWN FAULT! SHE NEVER SAID SHE'D MISSED THAT TRAIN, OR THAT SHE WAS ALONE AND BROKE!

NOPE! WE FIGGERED THAT FROM THAT TAG SHE WAS WEARIN'! BUT I'LL BET SHE IS ON HER OWN!

CIGARS! A WHOLE BOX O' CLEAR HAVANAS! AND THAT DOLL SHE GOT FOR YOUR KID!

Y'KNOW, IF MY LITTLE GIRL SHOULD EVER HAVE TO BE OUT ON HER OWN, I PRAY SHE CAN HANDLE IT AS WELL AS THAT LITTLE RED-HEAD! THAT'S ALL!

THOSE FELLAS JUST MIGHT GO LOOKIN' FOR US ON FIRST AVENUE, WHERE THIS SHIPPIN' TAG SAID!

SO WE WON'T GO NEAR FIRST AVENUE! WITH MILLIONS O' FOLKS LIVIN' IN THIS TOWN, THERE'LL BE PLENTY PLACES WHERE NOBODY'LL NOTICE US!

TH' TRICK IS, NEVER LOOK LOST! WALK AS IF YOU KNOW ZACTLY WHERE YOU'RE HEADIN' FOR! MAKE LIKE YOU'RE A NATIVE!

LE'SSEE, NOW! RICH NEIGHBORHOODS ARE NO GOOD FOR US! RICH FOLKS ARE O.K., BUT MOSTLY THEY'RE PRETTY BUSY!

AND THEY DON'T WARM UP MUCH TO STRANGERS, 'SPECIALLY NOT TO STRANGE KIDS! CAN'T BLAME 'EM, I S'POSE! WHY ASK FOR TROUBLE?

POOR FOLKS ARE MORE OUR SPEED! PEOPLE WITH NOTHIN' MUCH T'LOSE DON'T HAVE T'BE SO CAREFUL WHO THEY MEET, I GUESS!

ANYWAY, WE WANT T'EARN OUR WAY, 'S WELL AS WE CAN. WHAT COULD WE DO FOR FOLKS THAT HAVE EVER'THING?
